

PANTHER '86

REVEAL THE PRIDE

Behind every Paschal student lies a panther.

THE PANTHER
1986
VOLUME LXXVII

R. L. PASCHAL HIGH SCHOOL
3001 FOREST PARK BOULEVARD
FORT WORTH, TEXAS 76110

Pride. Pride is a complex word, a word of many meanings.

"Virginia, I just can't see the family resemblance." Virginia St. Clair and Melissa Rich have fun with SOS pads.

Synchronicity. An Le "watches" at Sanger Harris.

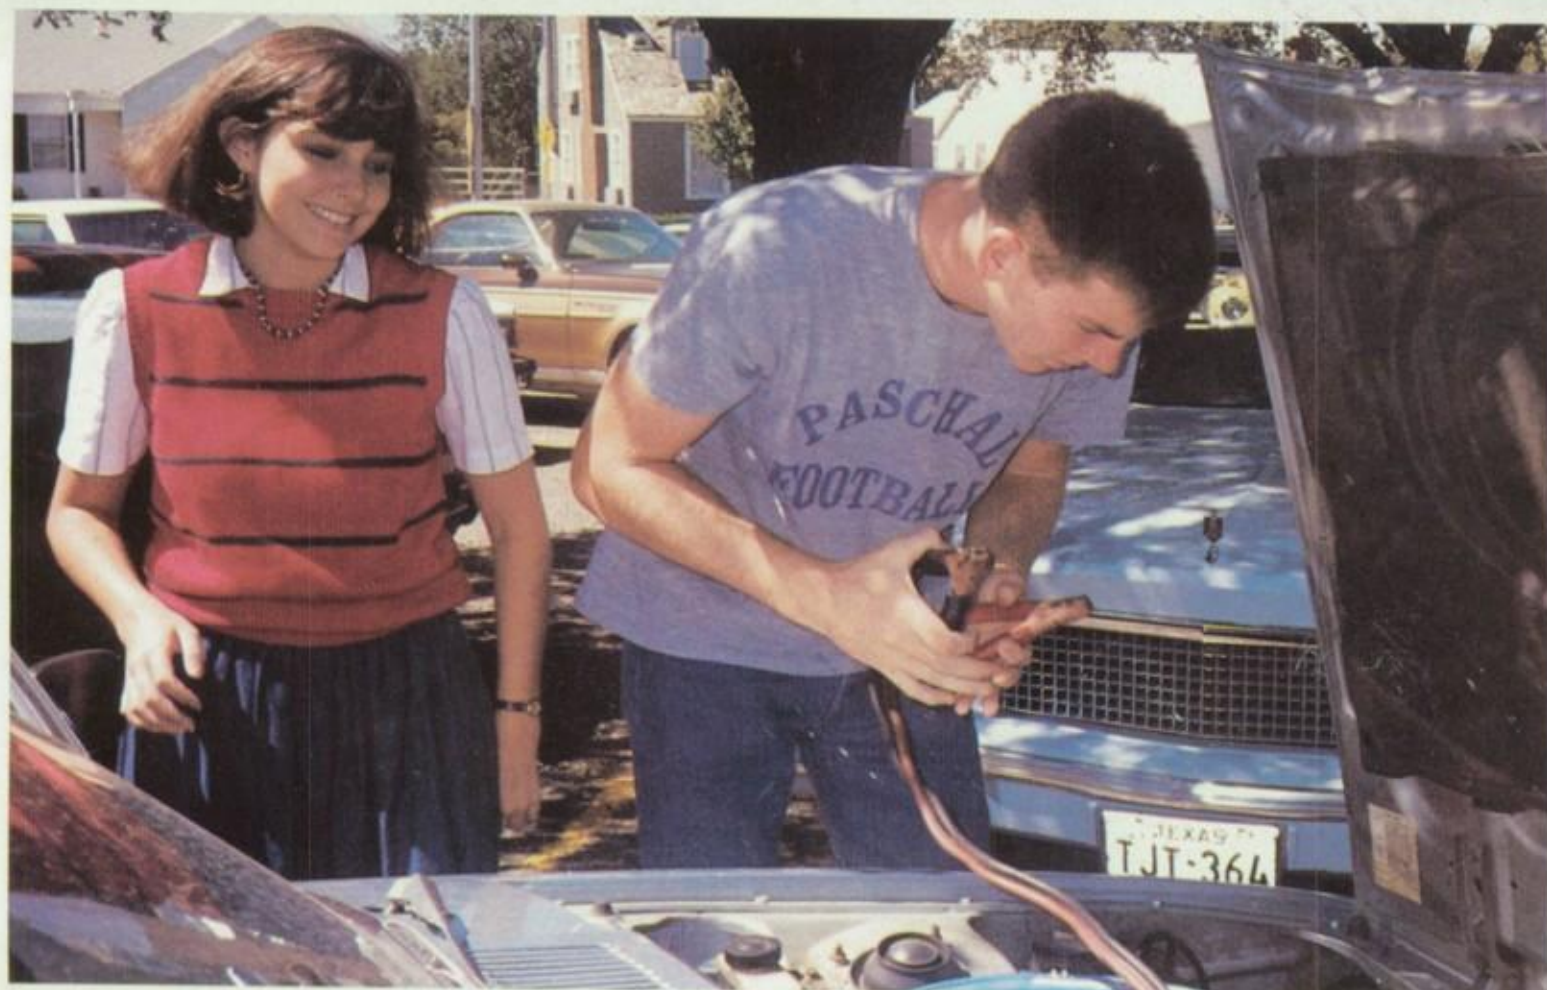

Hazel Rhodes, Nancy Love, John Andrus, and Mandy Bell sing in church choir.

"It's all in the knees." Tony Geeslin drills in soccer.

Pride implies love for a person or place or thing, and a desire to improve and grow.

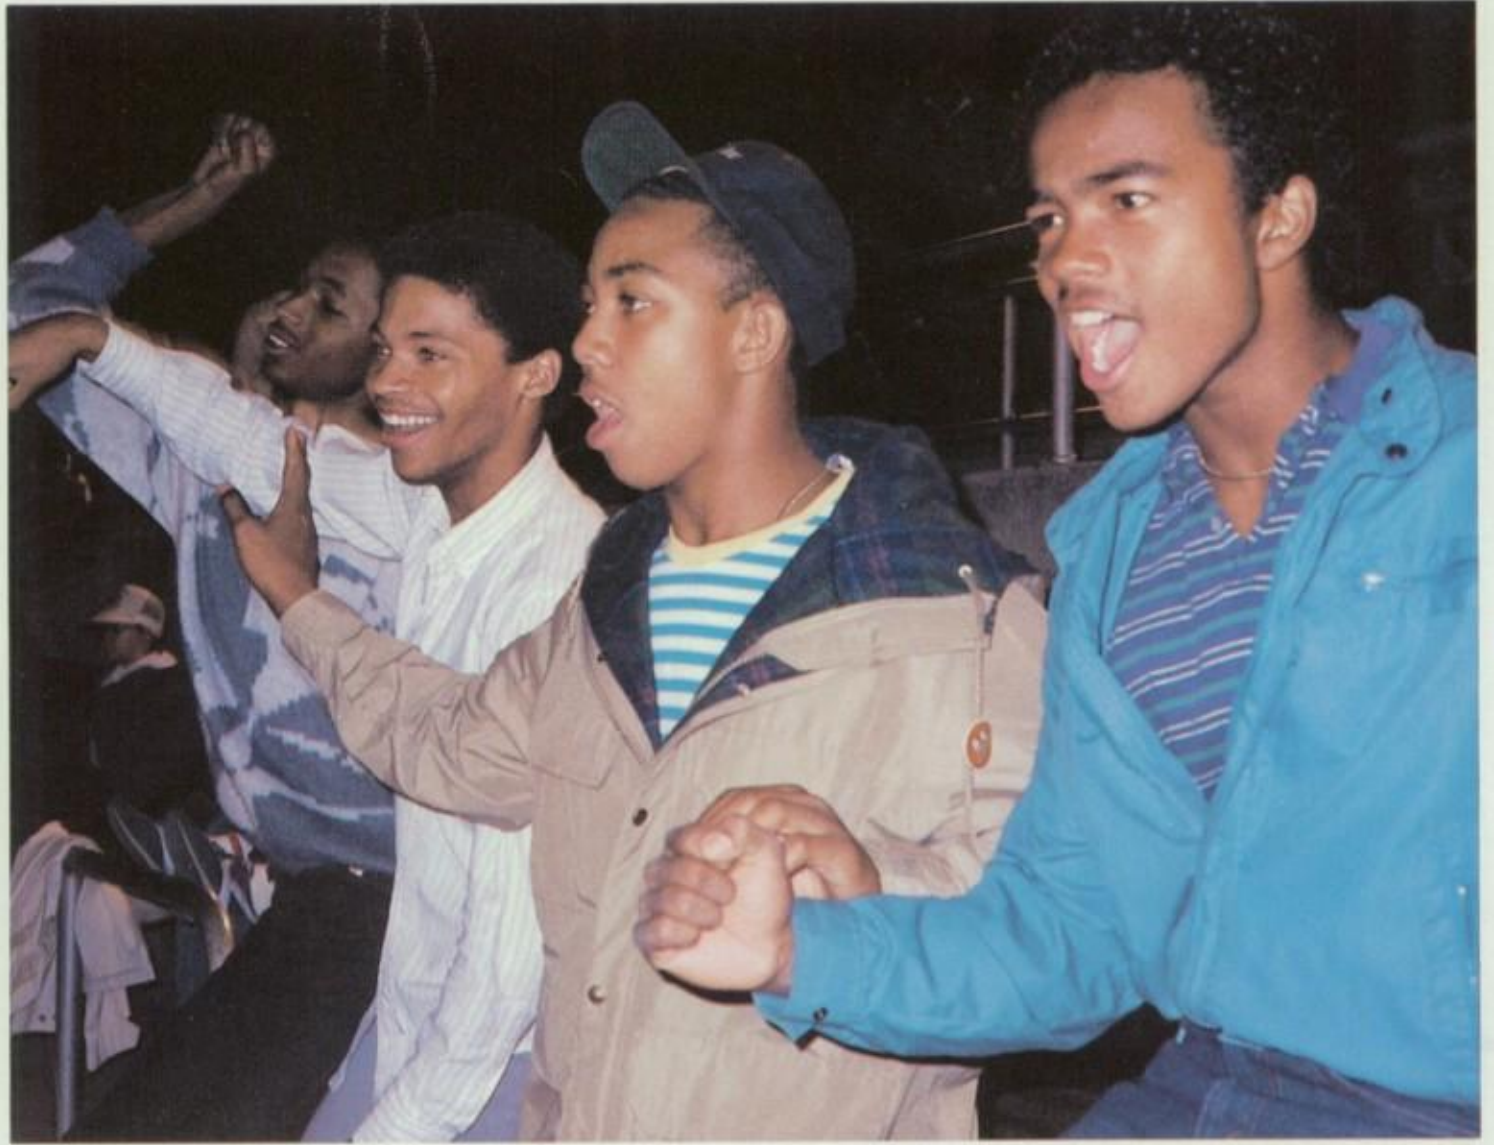

Energize me! Courtney Chalker, resident mechanic, jumps Katy Delucchi's car after school.

Pride. Pride is a pleasant word,

Fred Wilson, Brian Wilson, Marcus Mallard and Larry King give their support at a pep rally.

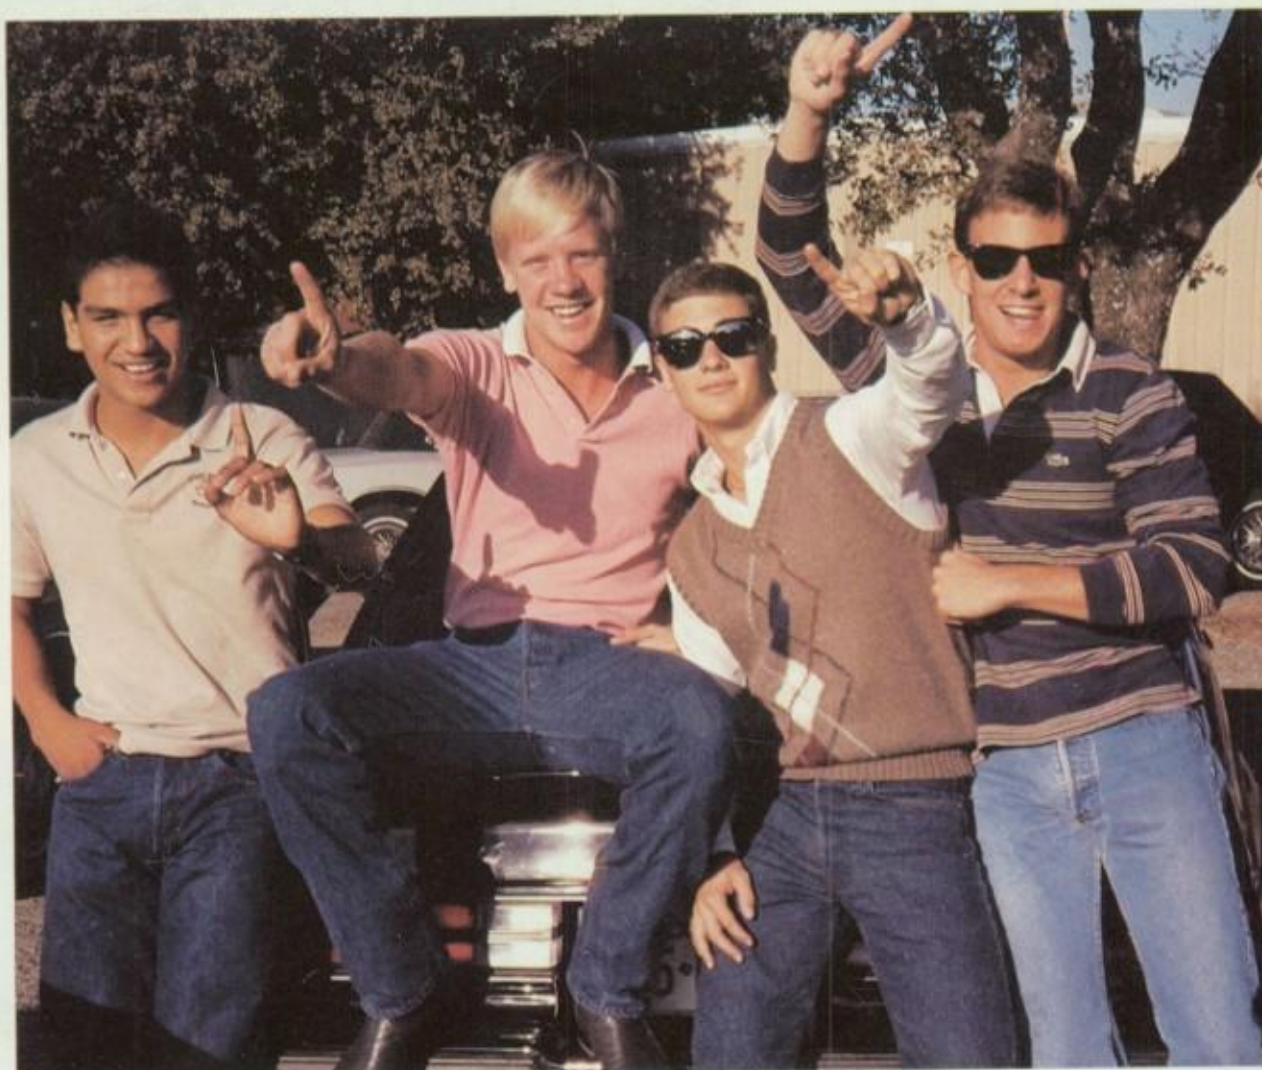

"But I didn't drop the ball," Keith Paul listens to Ted Hubbard whine.

Paula Warren cheers for the Panthers.

A balloon lifts Heather Cordray.

Danny Trevino, David Trimble, Mike Hart and Cory Lanier hang out in the parking lot.

Yes folks, here they are . . . a volcano of purple pride, the Paschal cheerleaders.

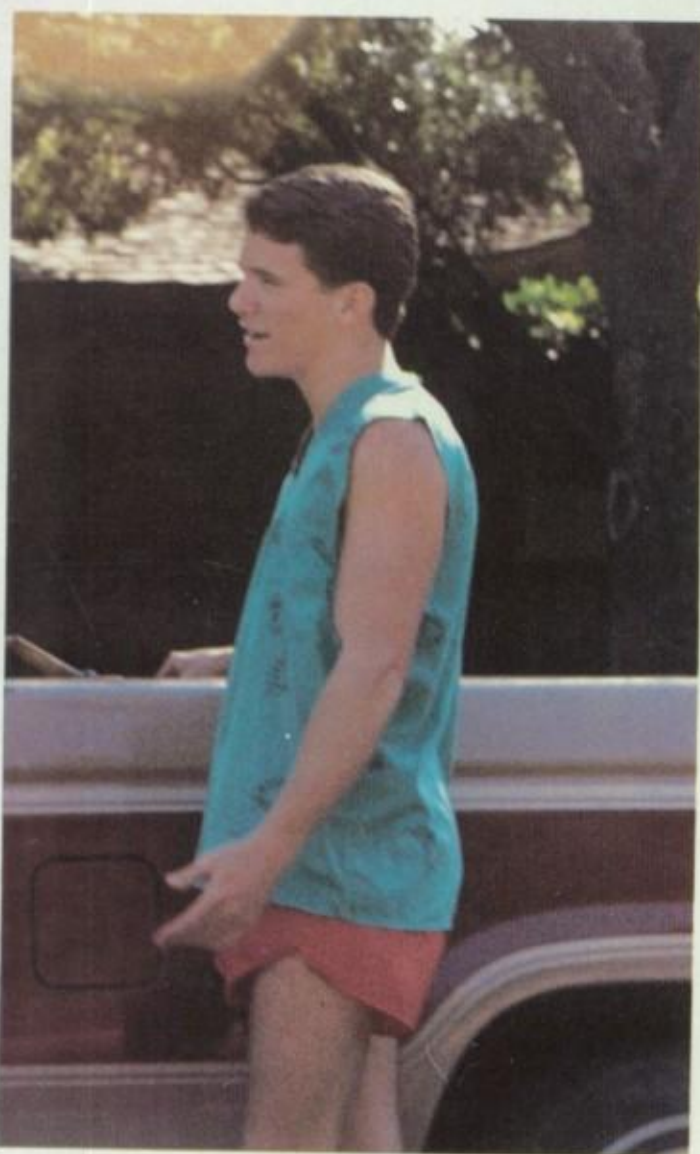

a good memory, a job well done.

Karen Gregory cheers at a football game.

"You learn something new every day!" agree Estella Martinez and Author Monsivias.

"I could've had a V-8," sighs Mark Hefner.

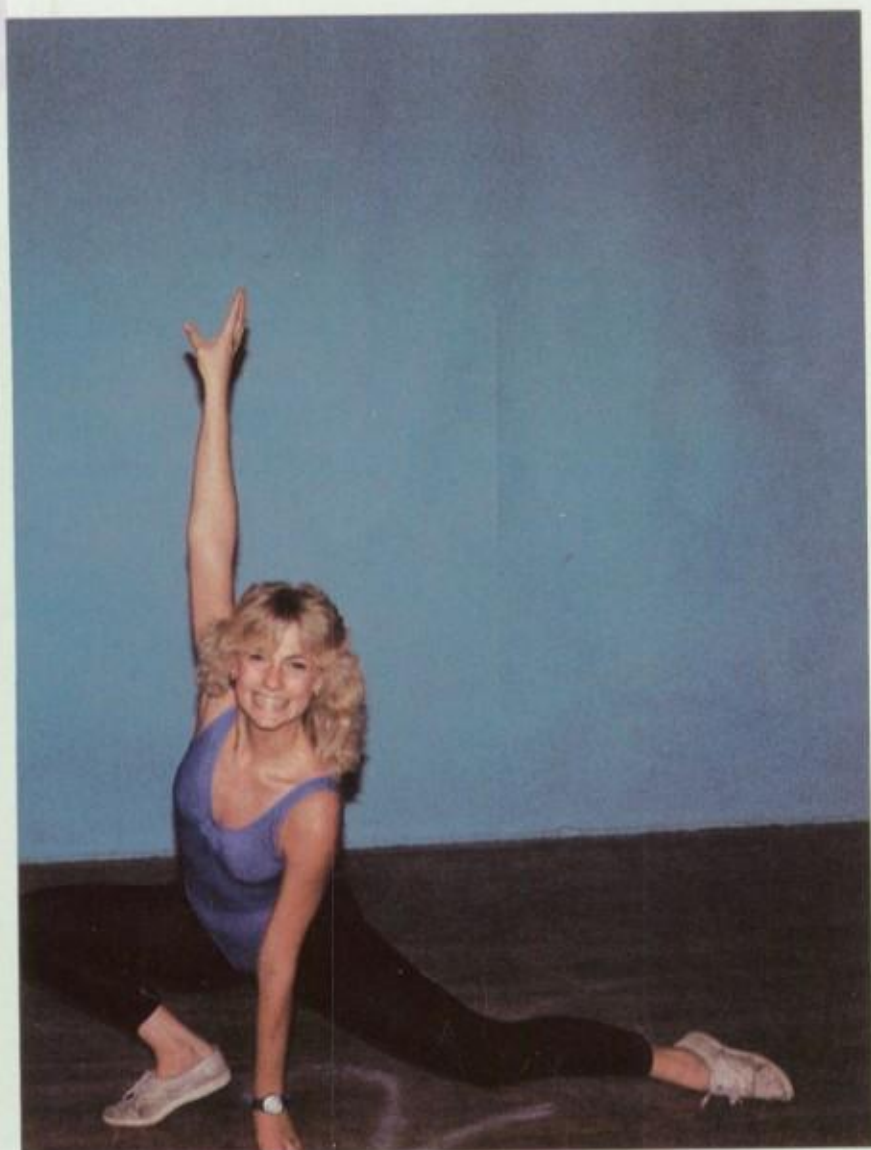

University Cleaners proudly displays Paschal's calendar.

Tim Bieser whistles while he works.

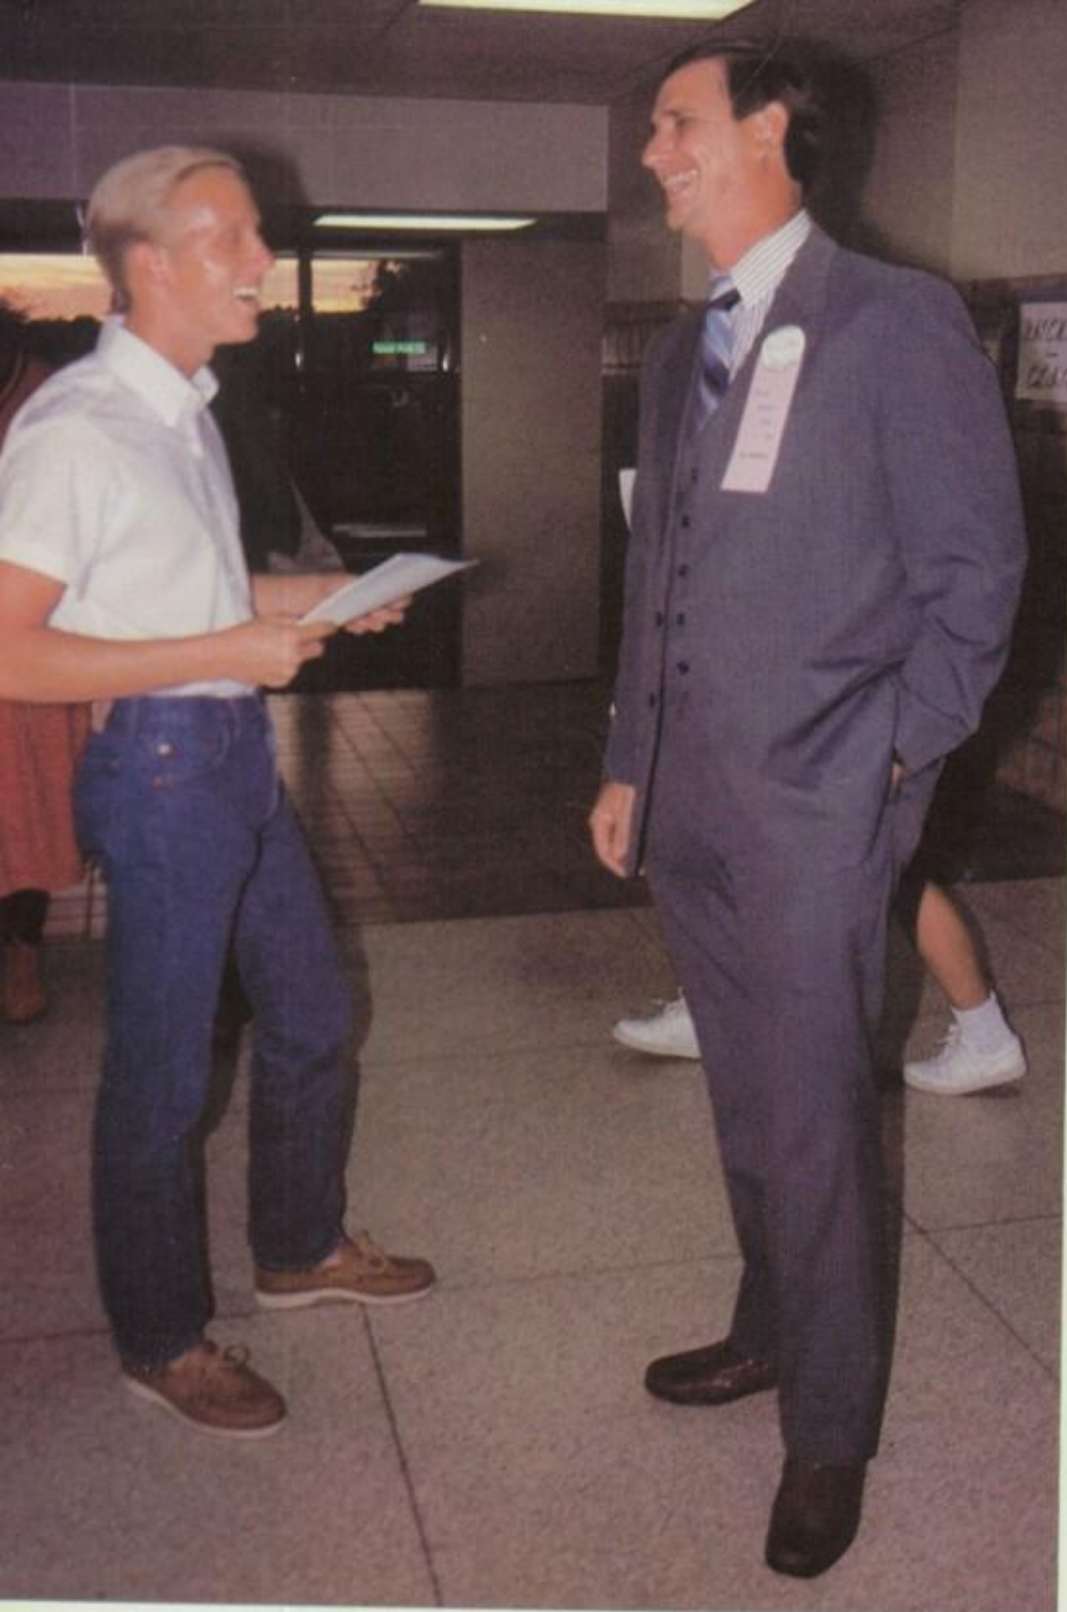

The benefits of pride are long lasting, just as the memories of high school will be real and important through our lives.

"Jane Fonda watch out!" exclaims Alaina Davis.

"A, B, C, D . . ." Deborah Yarborough files cards in the library.

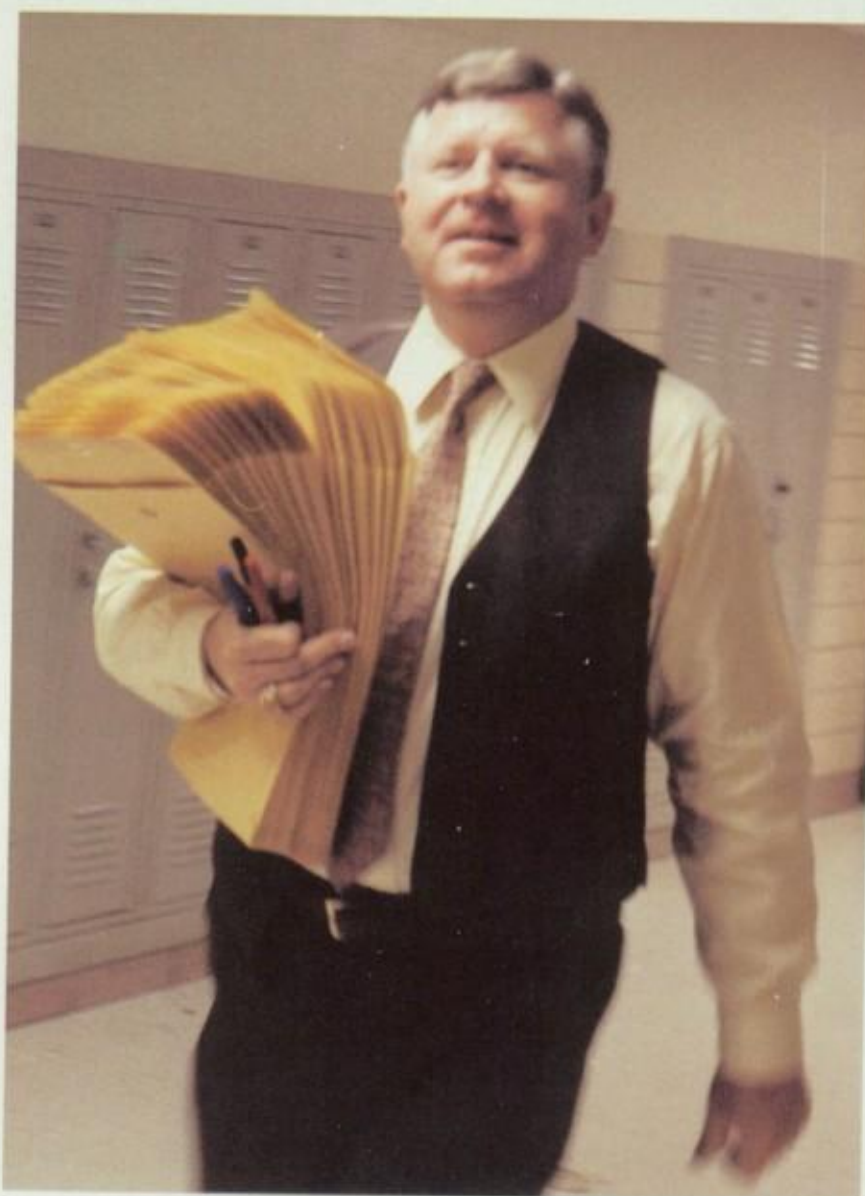

Tony Webster and Mr. James Bretthauer tell jokes about soccer.

"I wonder if Mrs. Bott sees that picture they're drawing?" smirks Janet Walsh as Mrs. Carol Bott directs her attention across the room.

"Hey did you know you missed a spot?" Ms. Jhani Wright helps the seniors with their very successful car wash.

The Mad Hatter, Mr. Larry Barnes, sings, "I'm late, I'm late, for a very, very important date!"

Mrs. Le Ann and Mr. Duvall Webster, chaperones at the Howdy Dance, join Samantha Sloan and Jay Montleon for a picture.

Yet Pride is not a gift.

Mr. Weldon Lotspeich tries to show Joel Fox how to use a mortar and pestle in Chemistry 3-4.

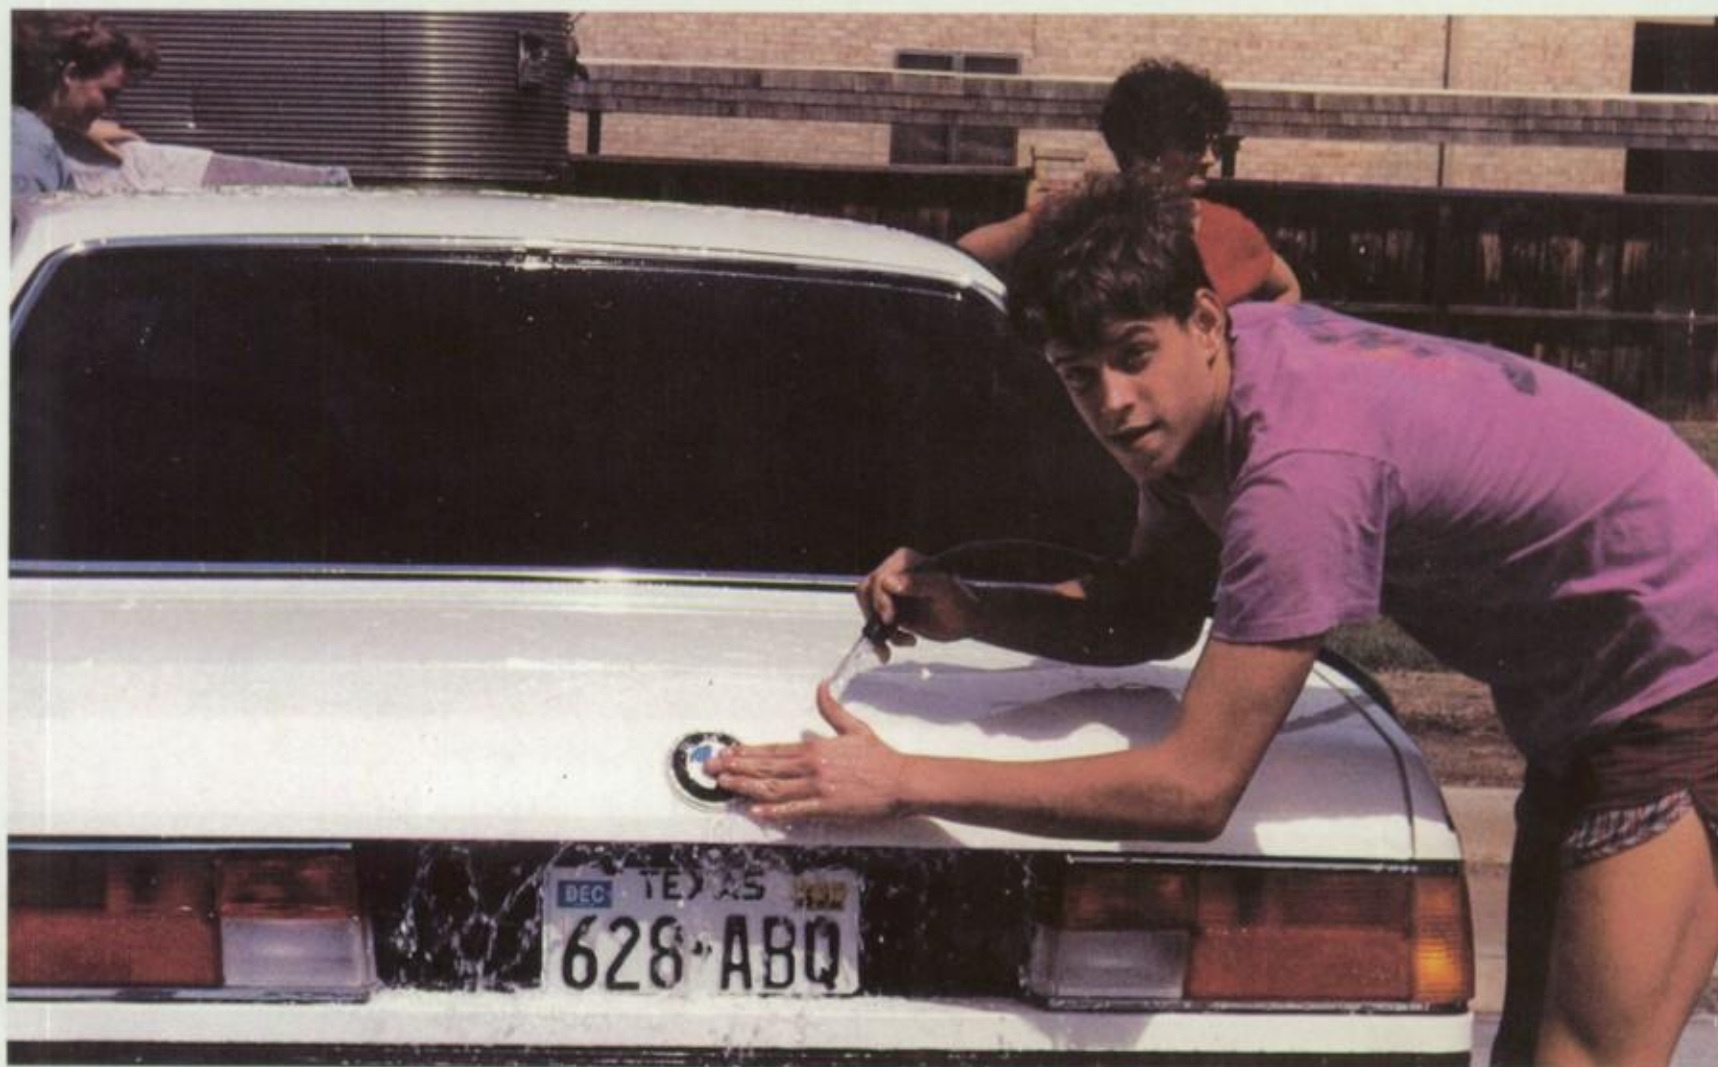

The PTA sponsors Paschal at Open House.

Instead, it is a goal to work toward,
an ambition
to aspire for,
an objective
to pursue.

Paschal
students realize that perfection is not granted

"E for Ella," Ella Baker files patient charts at Mr. McDowell's office.

Eagle Scout John Van Hook describes his civic duties to Bob and Regina Mavias, out-of-town visitors in Trinity Park.

"Amy! This isn't a can drive for Morris the cat!" Amy McKinney collects food for the Can Drive.

Teen Board member Missy Ware brightens the day of a young shopper by giving out balloons at Sanger-Harris.

Anita Whitaker volunteers at the Daisy School, helping care for the Paschal class of 2004.

... it is attained.

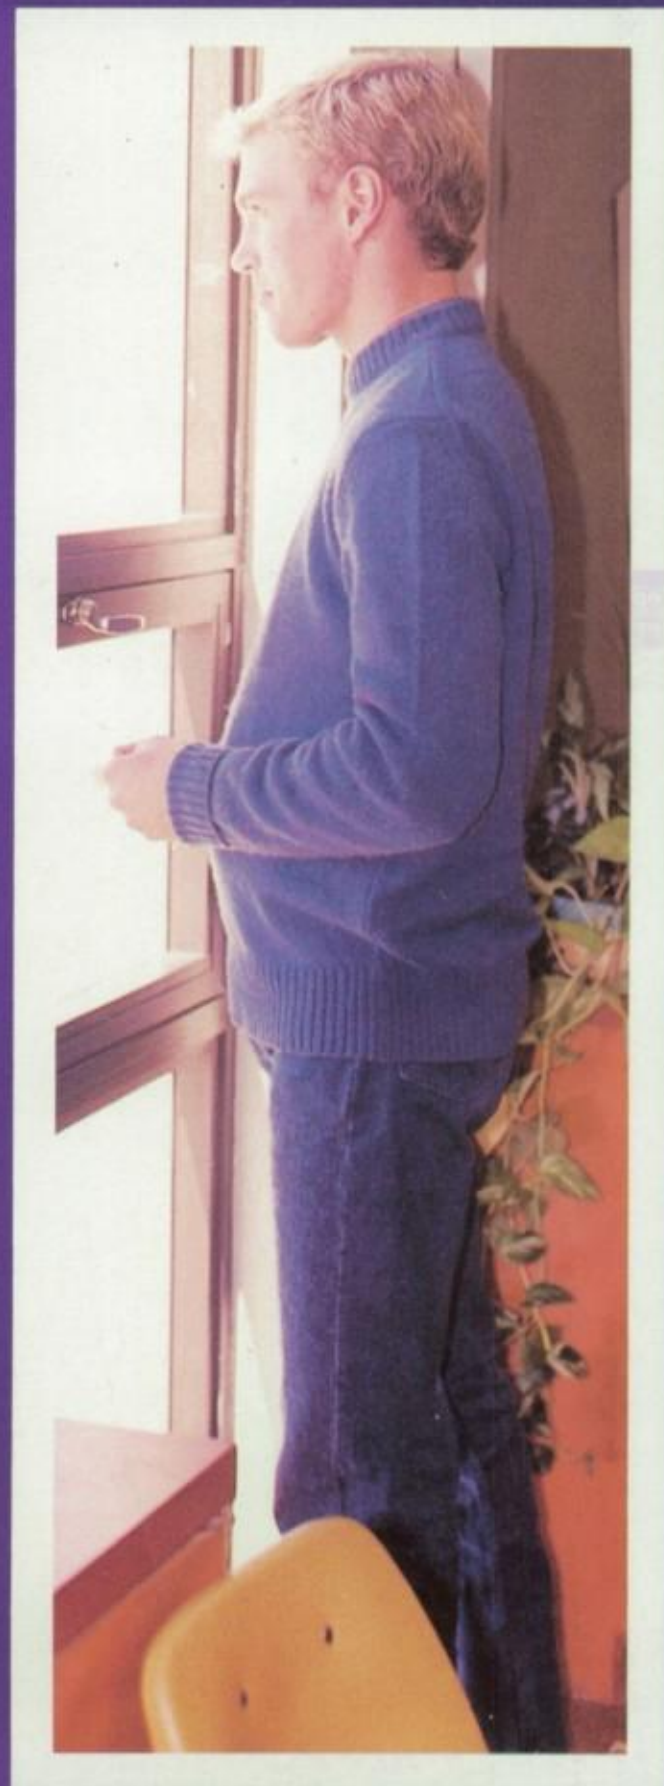

Happiness is not reached without frustration,
without determination, without pride.
That is why, as Paschal students chase their dreams and meet new challenges,

"Is there a Panther behind this face?" Wendy Dragich touches up her painting.

"Flash 'em that winning smile." Holly Prater poses for a picture in homeroom.

Byron Renfro daydreams from a classroom window.

Zephia Briscoe's movements become mechanical as she stamps card after card to fulfill her duties as library assistant.

Jeff Gonzales and Kelley McNeill portray Akenaten and Nefertiti for a vanguard world history project.

Beth Summers uses the microfiche to assist her research for her term theme.

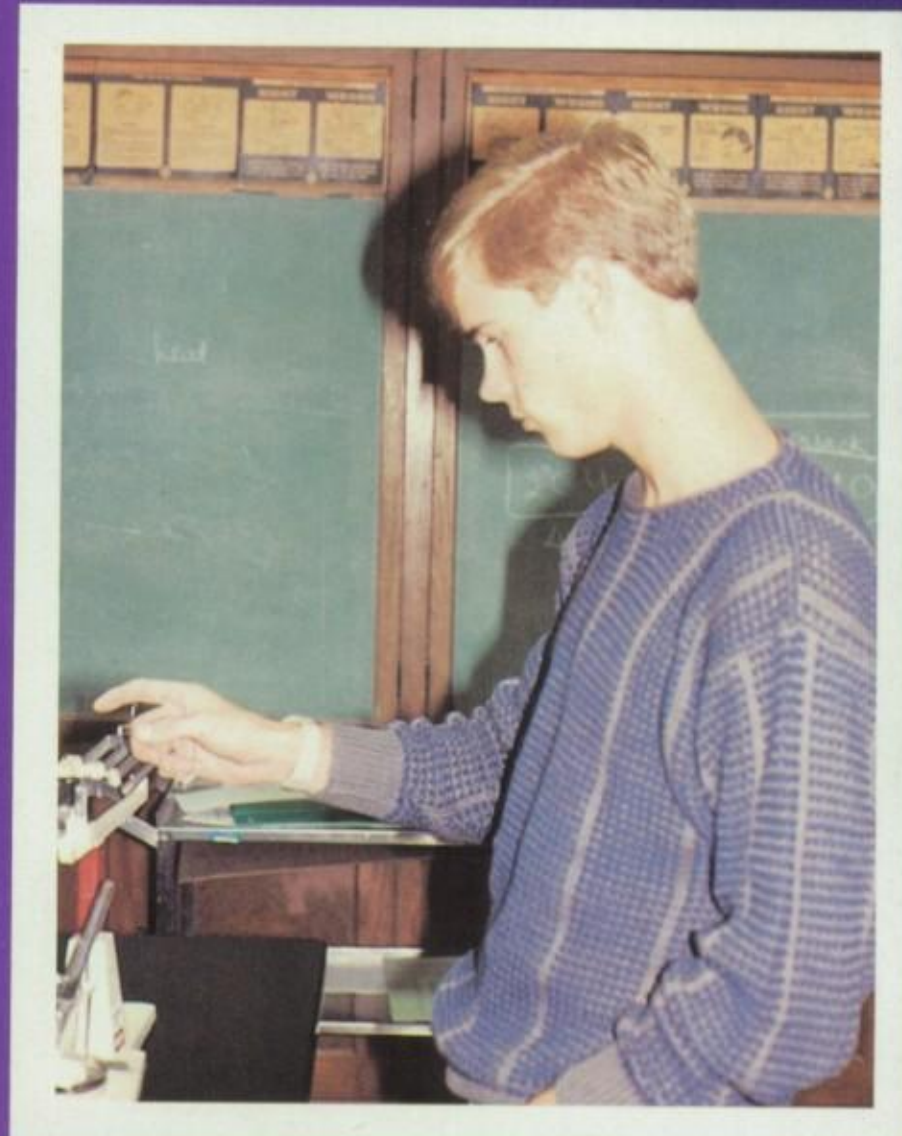

Maike Michielsen studies in the Spanish lab.

they do so with pride.

That is why,
behind every
Paschal High
School student,

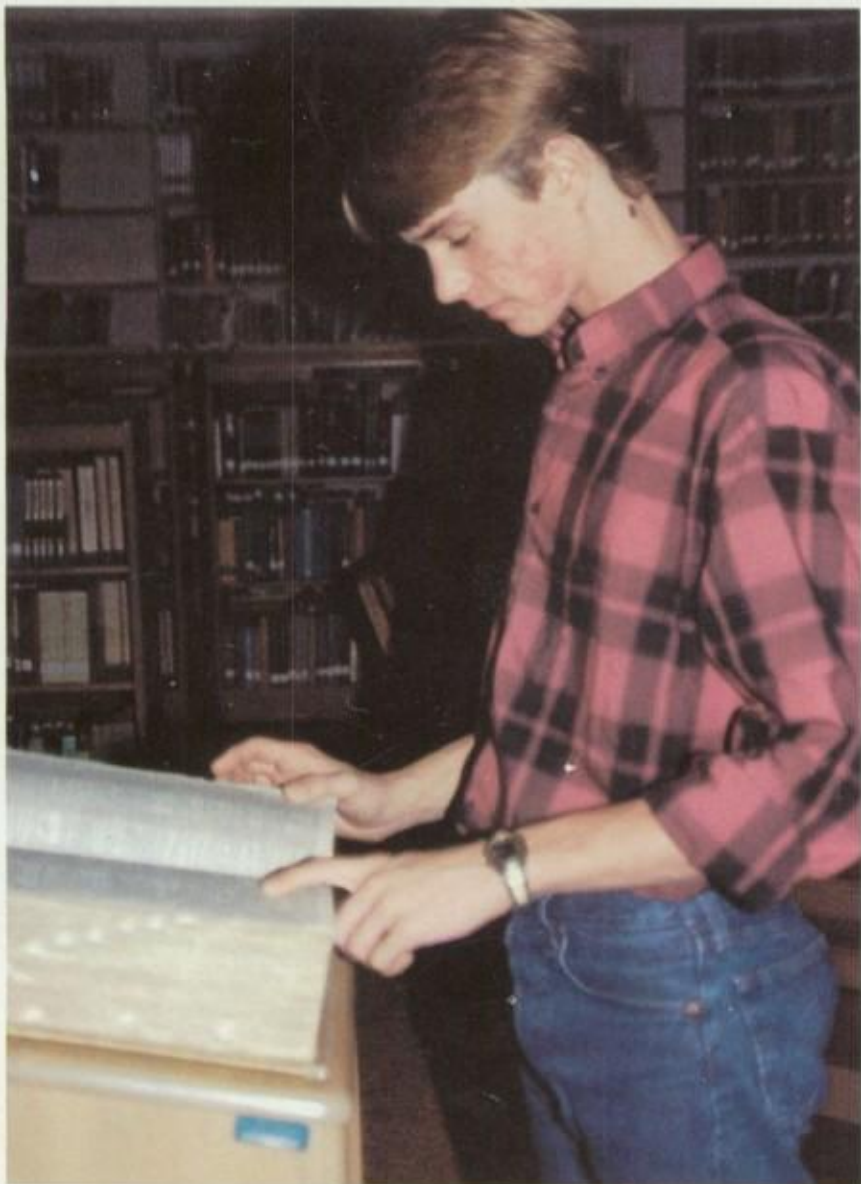

Members of Students Against Drunk Driving hand out pamphlets.

Eric Oltersdorf uses precision in weighing a beaker for Chemistry I.

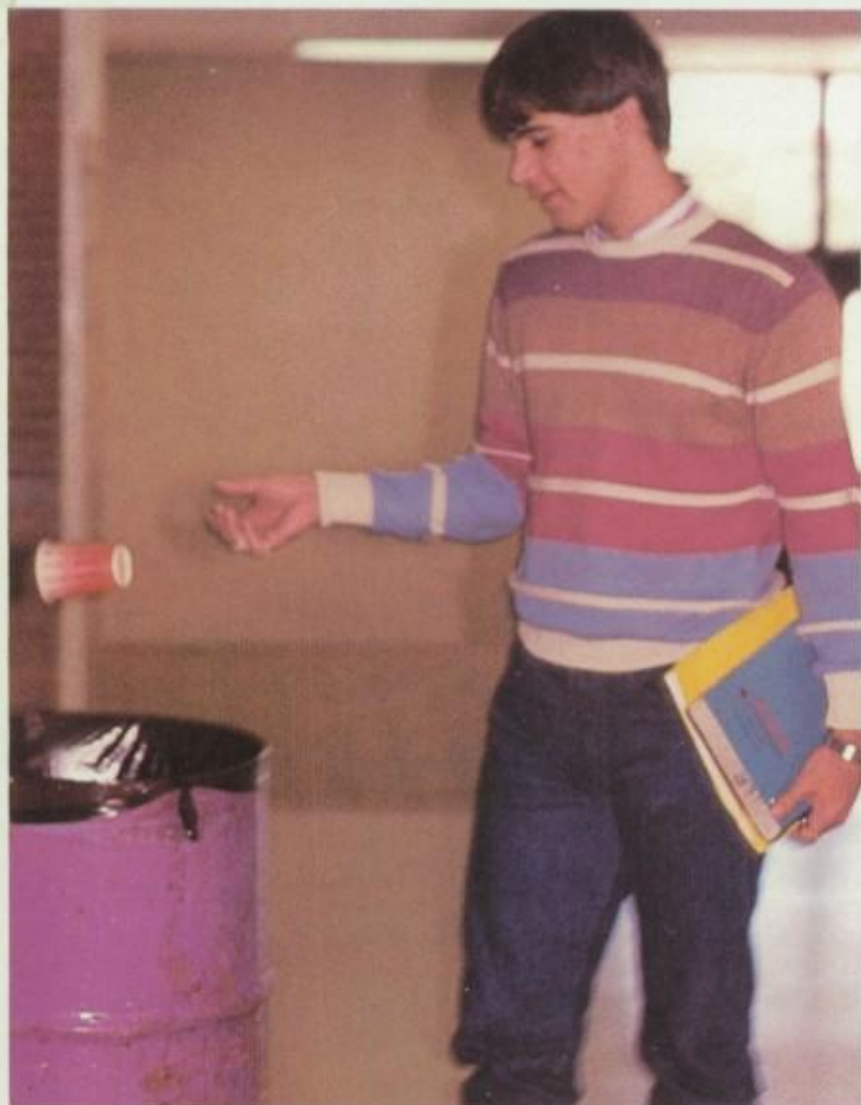

"Come on baby, light my fire." Jeff Day, Christie Lemon and Richard Williams build a campfire for Outdoor Adventure and Awareness.

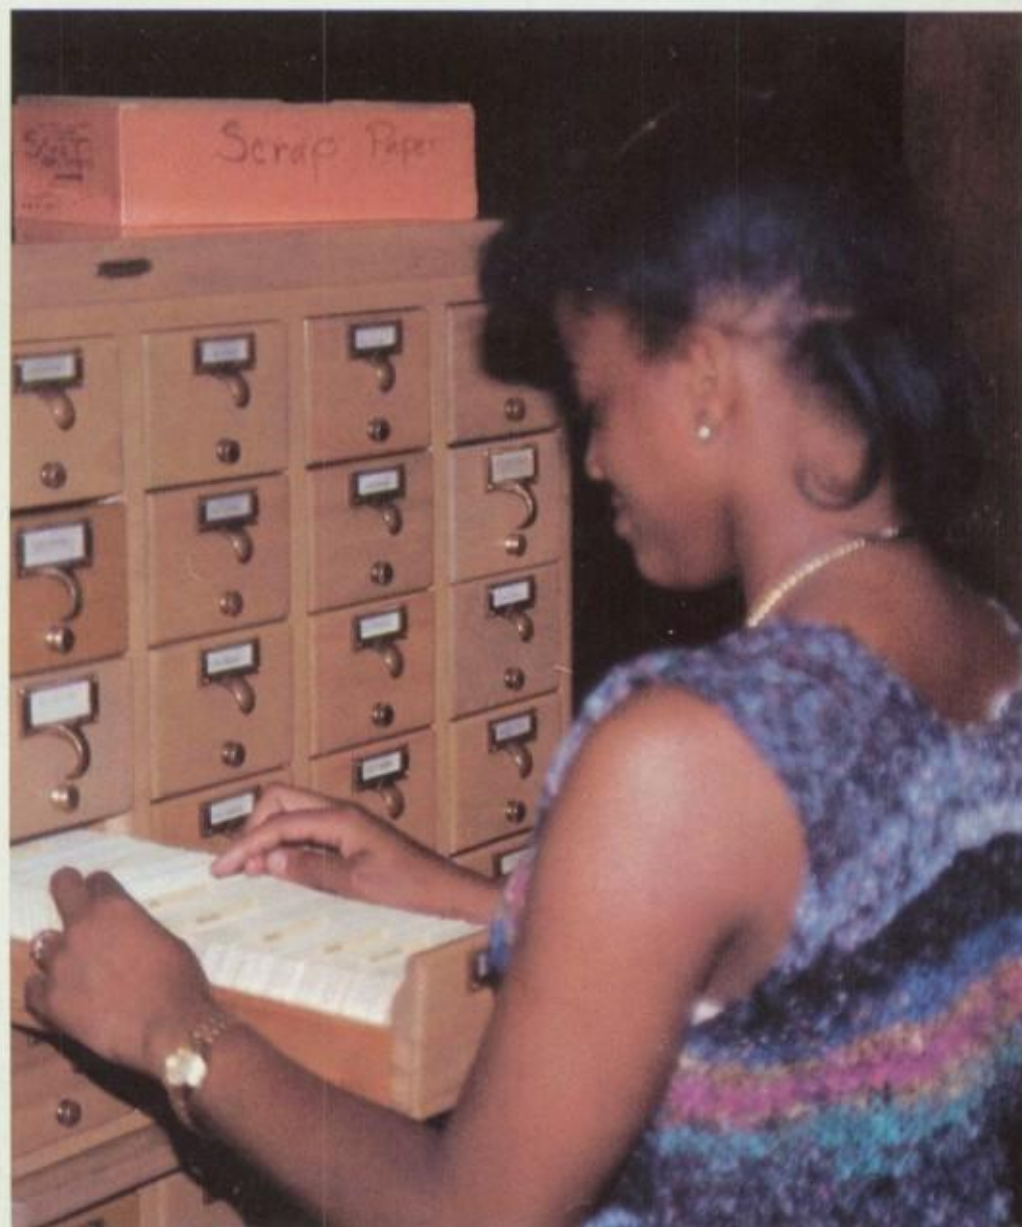

"Is Eric studying for the SAT?" Eric Betts uses the library dictionary.

Chris Yarbrough types diligently at a word processor.

Proudly, Bruce Smith uses a purple trash can to keep our campus clean.

Zeronica Williams finds the title of a favorite book.

there is a Panther.

PEOPLE....

UNMASKING PERSONALITIES

Seniority Takes Its Place

SENIOR — 1. older. 2. higher in rank or longer in service 3. of or pertaining to the graduating class.

The latter of the three defines the seniors of 1986. The twelve year waiting period, starting in kindergarten, was over. Seniors had finally made it to the top. Being a senior was no longer a dream but a realization. This realization included work, play, and planning for the future.

Last year's PSAT became this year's SAT requiring seniors to gather all their knowledge and distribute it evenly between English, history, and math. Outside of school many seniors acquired jobs to help parents and prepare for future college expenses.

Being a senior also brought fun. There was no more getting caught off campus without a lunch pass. Getting out of school earlier gave seniors more time to play. They even had their own kiddie day to let the little boy and girl out one last time.

Then seniors realized they had to plan for the future. College and career decisions were no longer just around the corner. It was finally time to make the choice of what they wanted to do with their lives. As most seniors went their separate ways, they looked back and realized that their senior year had brought them close together again before drifting apart. For the first time seniors began feeling sentimental about their last thirteen years of school.

Confidence was what the seniors needed to feel they were ready to graduate and go out into the real world. With plenty of years under their belts to build that confidence seniors felt capable of facing whatever crossed their paths. The seniors of 1986 were ready to graduate but will never forget their years at Paschal.

"Sean, act your age." Sean Ray displays his souvenir from Long John Silvers.

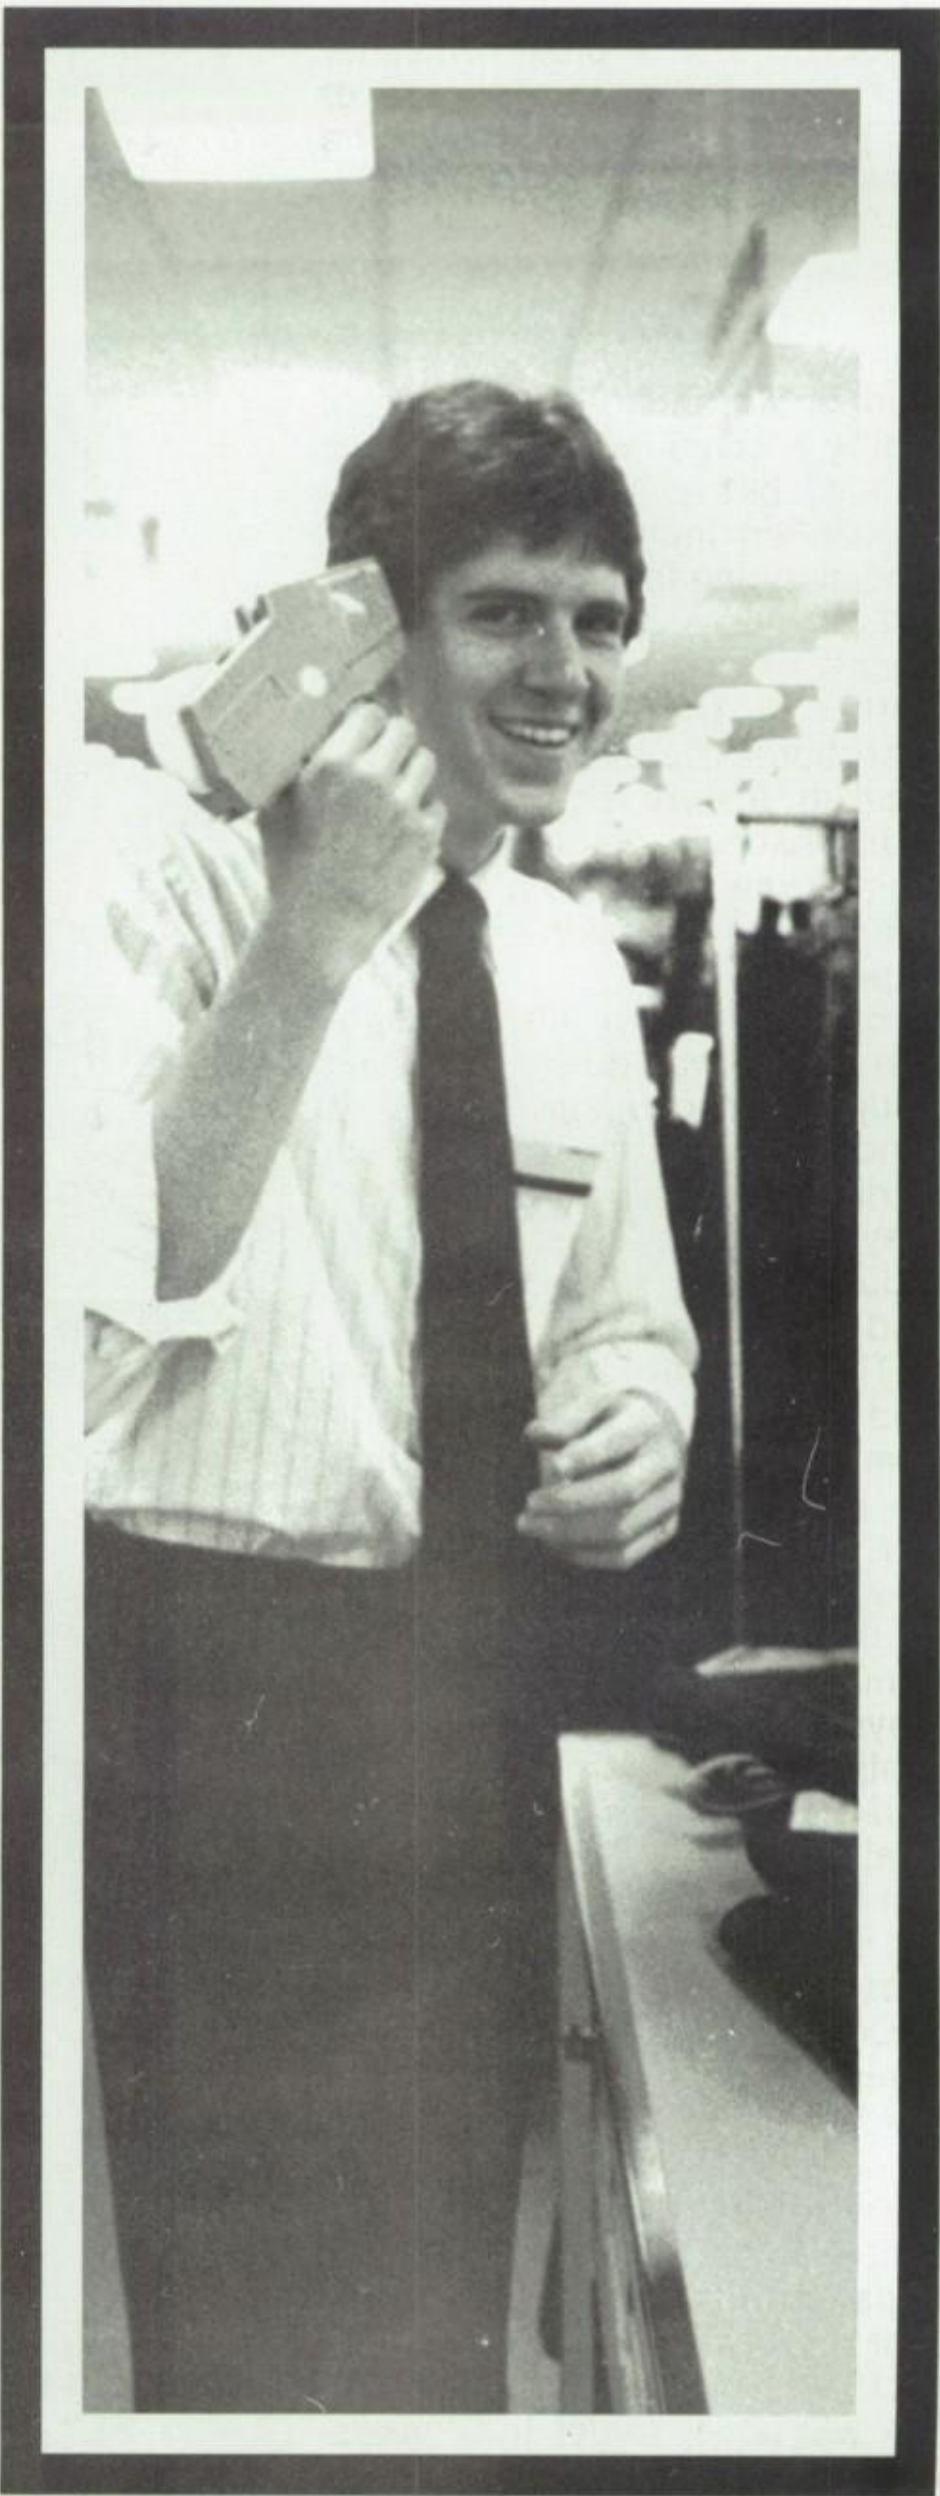

"Should we prepare to wash dishes again?" Holly Foard, Ellen Giordano and Cammi Macy eat dinner at Daniels before rushing off to a football game.

Katy Delucchi anxiously awaits the debut of the 1986 football team.

"What has six legs and two heads?" Jon Kunert, Jamie Key and Sharon Frampton are holding a run-through at a football game.

Working at Mervyn's is not Stephen Mair's idea of the fun life.

Juniors Jump Toward New Expectations

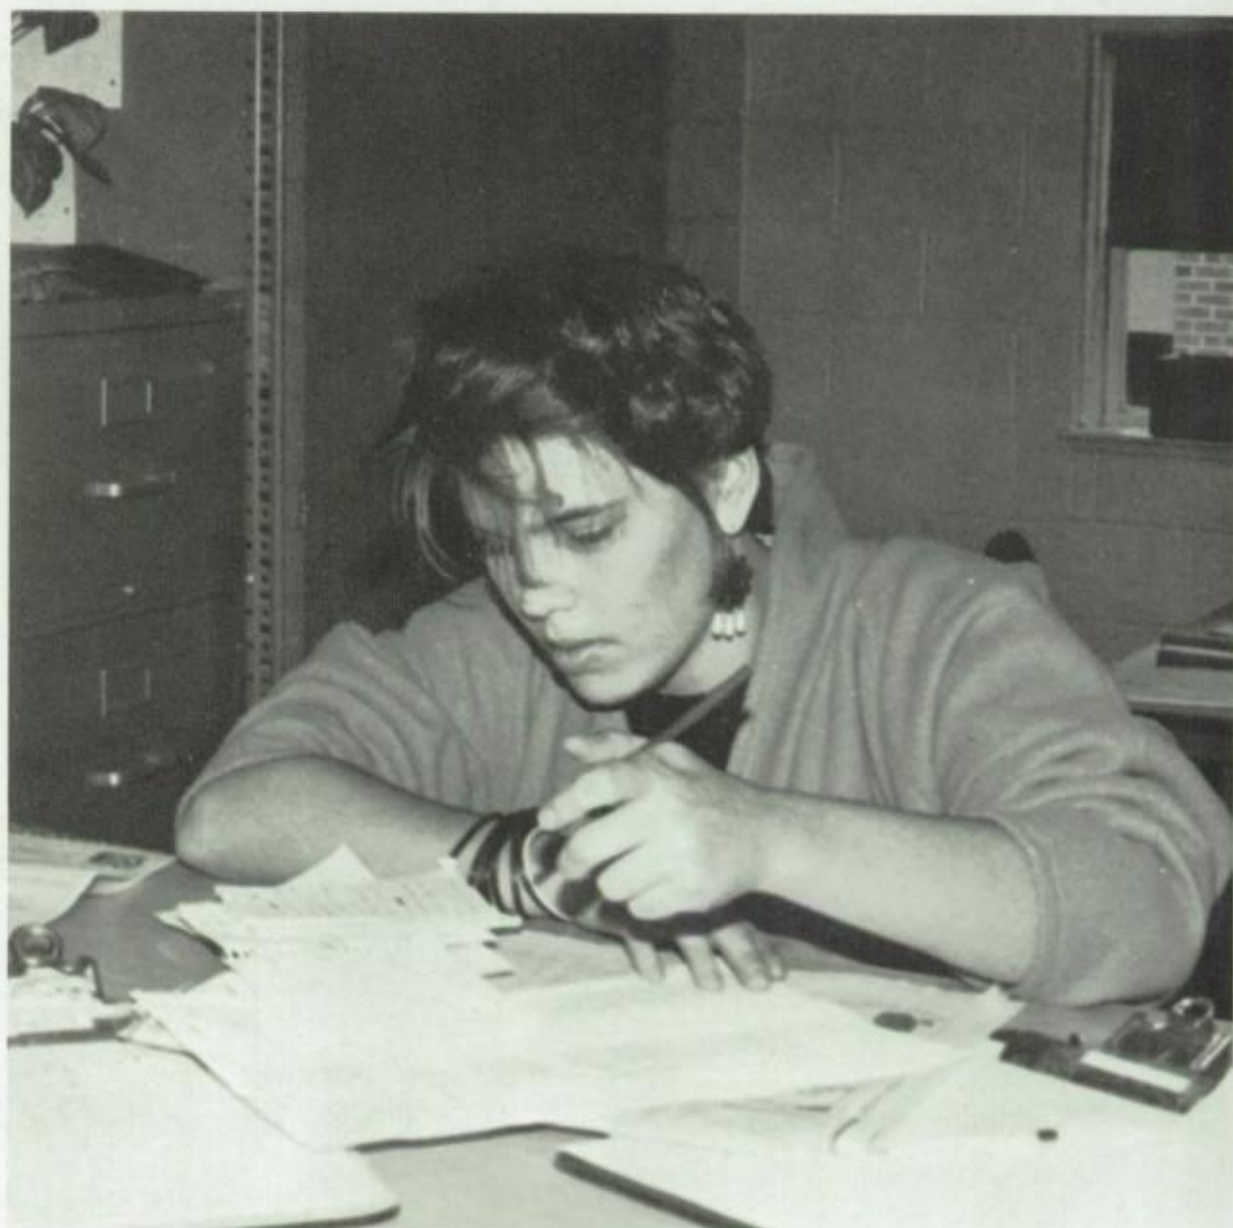

"You look maahavalous." Marni Berkowitz gets frustrated.

"What's the answer to that question?" Roderick Charles does a worksheet in class.

As last year's sophomores became this year's juniors, each of them felt more pressure; but at the same time, they felt a sense of excitement as they became upperclassmen. Being a junior meant signing up for harder classes, taking the PSAT "for real," and having greater expectations and responsibilities. It also meant being able to take only five classes instead of six, having a greater sense of power in the school, and being one step closer to that all mighty goal of being a senior.

Just what was expected of the juniors? For some juniors it was simply getting to school on time. For others, it was passing such classes as EA/calculus, chemistry, AP biology, and American Thought and Culture. Being a junior also meant contending with House Bill 72 and passing the TEAMS test as a requirement for graduation. However, most juniors survived and went on to become seniors.

Lee Smith writes dismissals in the attendance office.

"I always eat my pen for lunch." Thomas Espinoza works in English.

"Hi!" Anna Tinsley participates in French Club activities.

Lee Norman says being a junior is a growing experience.

Sophomores Strive for Excellence

A group of girls entered the building on that rather warm first day of school. The girls smiled at a group of freshmen, remembering how nervous they were their freshman year. Now they were sophomores and were looking forward to a year of fun and excitement. As sophomores, they have the confidence to join more clubs and to participate in more activities than they had as freshmen. This year also brought new responsibilities since many sophomores passed their driving tests and got their first jobs. Grades played a more important part in their year also. Combining hard work and fun, these sophomores made a place for themselves at Paschal. Soon they were looking forward to their junior year — that next step toward graduation.

Excitement Grasps The Freshman Class

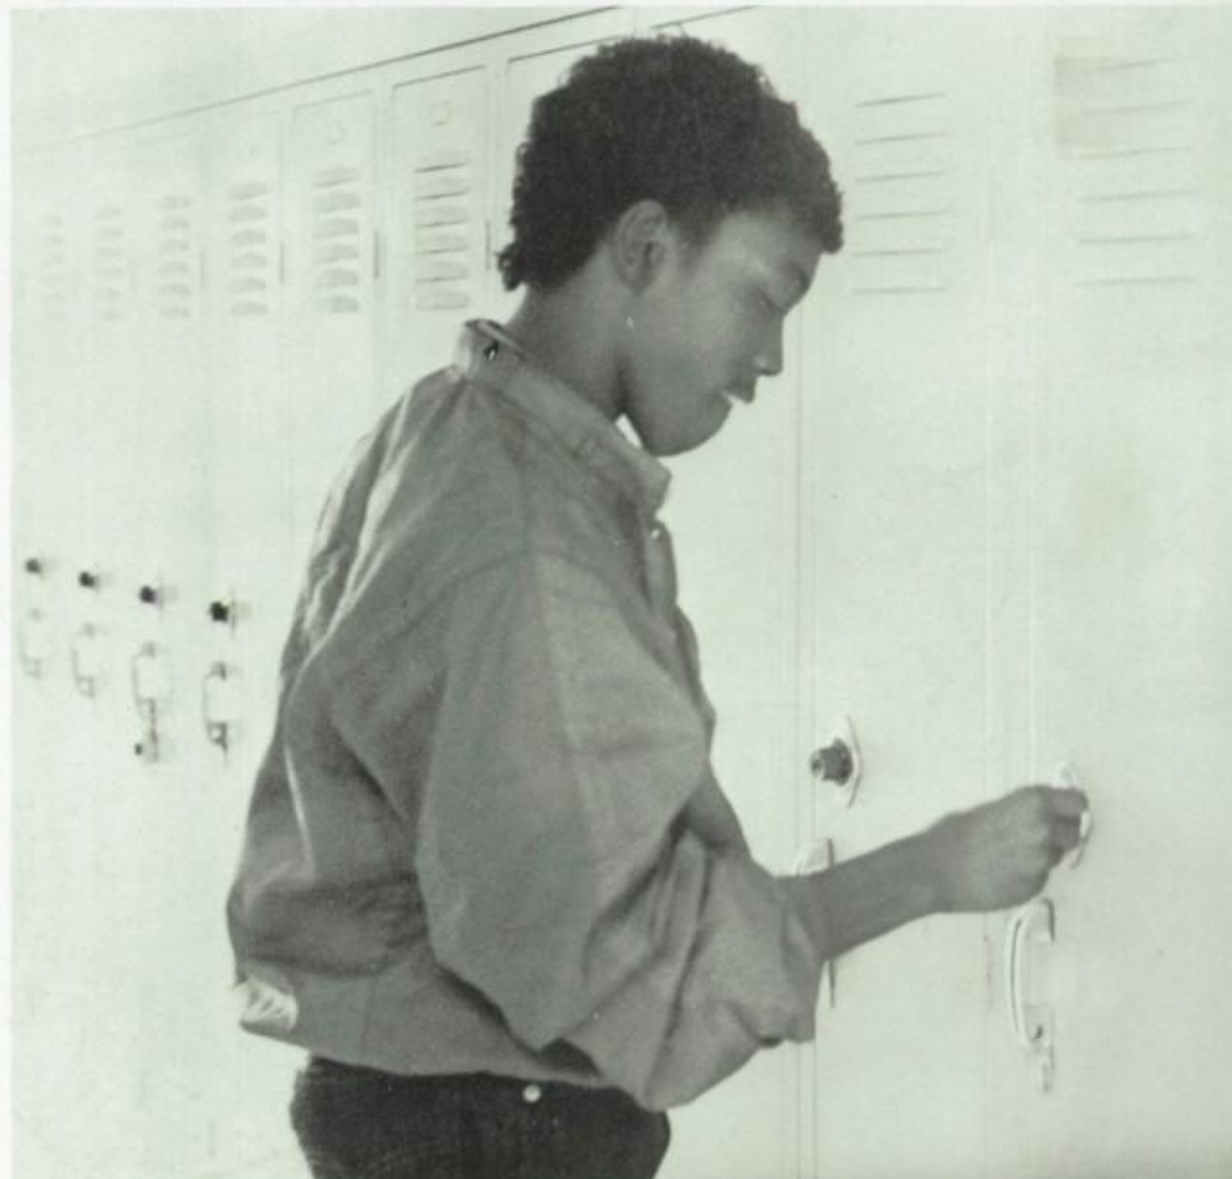

Byron Wells wonders about philosophy.

A wave of excitement swept over the anxious freshmen as they approached the enormous doors of high school. Yet this was only the first step of their high school experience. Waiting for them beyond these doors was a busy schedule involving classes, sports, clubs, dances, and other school activities. Computer scheduling enabled freshmen to get acquainted with students from a variety of backgrounds and interests. After the initial shock of being a lower classman wore off, freshmen felt like they were a part of high school life. The class of '89 quickly became a major asset to our campus.

Dedication Makes Teachers Unique

The faculty at Paschal takes pride in both their work and their students. Coming early or staying late at school to sponsor tutoring sessions has become normal for many teachers. Some members of the faculty even sponsor extracurricular clubs or academic societies in addition to their daily responsibilities. Because of this extra interest and concern for student academics and activities, the faculty instills a sense of pride in the students. Instructors gain respect from students through their encouraging attitudes and their intense interest in the individual.

Students Sail Into Howdy Week

Friday night, September 6, marked the first high school football game for Janna. Janna peered anxiously across the stands looking for some familiar faces that she had met last week at the Freshman Orientation and Leadership Committee's Howdy Skit. Spotting a few people, she wandered over to the bleachers and sat down with her new friends. Along with the smiles that greeted her, came invitations to the annual Howdy Dance Saturday night!

Janna and her new friends, dressed in their sailor attire, entered the Will Rogers Exhibit Hall, ready for a fun-filled night at the Howdy Dance. Shelley and the Cobras played her favorite dancing music, and the photographers were ready to snap pictures of Janna and her friends in front of a nautical mural. This was her first high school dance, and she knew she would never forget it!

Walking into the front foyer Monday, Janna thought she had boarded a ship! The walls were covered with name tags shaped like fish, anchors, life preservers, and sailor hats. A huge banner that was posted across the hallway read, "Welcome Aboard." Tuesday night was the famous rollerskating party, with polyester-crazed seniors skating wildly around the rink. Wednesday was dress-up day, and Thursday was Club Day, where Janna got to sign up for all the clubs that interested her.

Janna never thought high school would be so exciting. Howdy Week had played a big part in acquainting her with her 'new' environment. Now she could raise her anchor and sail into a great freshman year.

Keith Paul guards his treasure chest.

Inga Hopkins is on "the good ship Lollipop."

Heather Cordray loves to roller boogie!

Shelley and the Cobras are a hit at the Howdy Dance.

Keeley Ferguson, Ann Werner, Julie Williams and Tom Wacker love that camera!

Maike Michielsen skates like a pro!

Is There Life Before School?

As Anne heard the alarm go off, 30 minutes late, she knew it was going to be another one of those rough mornings before school. She threw on shorts and a T-shirt. Anne heard her friend, a senior who drives like a maniac, honking the horn of her car in the driveway. "I just hope I get there alive," she prays as she puts the last roller in her hair. In spite of the rough ride to school, she got there in one piece. In the parking lot, Anne rushed to put on her make-up and to remove her rollers. She hoped to have enough time to get to her locker before the morning rush and to socialize in the front foyer. Although Anne stopped traffic to cross the street, she made it to the front doors on time and with life and limb intact. Before-school activities are enough to tire any one person out before the day even begins.

David Stanley and Derek Lamkin discuss the pros and cons of rock and roll.

"Thank goodness that's over." Celeste Sloan and Izumi Couch finish last minute homework.

"Eat your heart out Princess Di!" Samantha Sloan tries to get ready before the bell sounds.

"Mirror mirror . . ." Gina Eno rushes to put on a happy face.

Barry Royal fights the morning rush.

It's Off to Lunch!

Do you remember those five minutes before lunch? During those few minutes before first lunch, Smith and Jones thought, "Will class ever end?" It seemed as if nearly an hour had passed before they heard the bell sound. They were off. Smith bounded through the door first and Jones followed a close second. They were neck and neck. They bashed through the cafeteria doors. It was a tie. They scanned the cafeteria lines. "No rolls today? Well, then I won't eat," whined Jones. "Me either," echoed Smith. "Oh well, maybe tomorrow they will have pizza," said Jones, consoling his buddy. The cafeteria had many things to choose from. "What more could we ask for?" said Smith. "Don't ask." Jones replied.

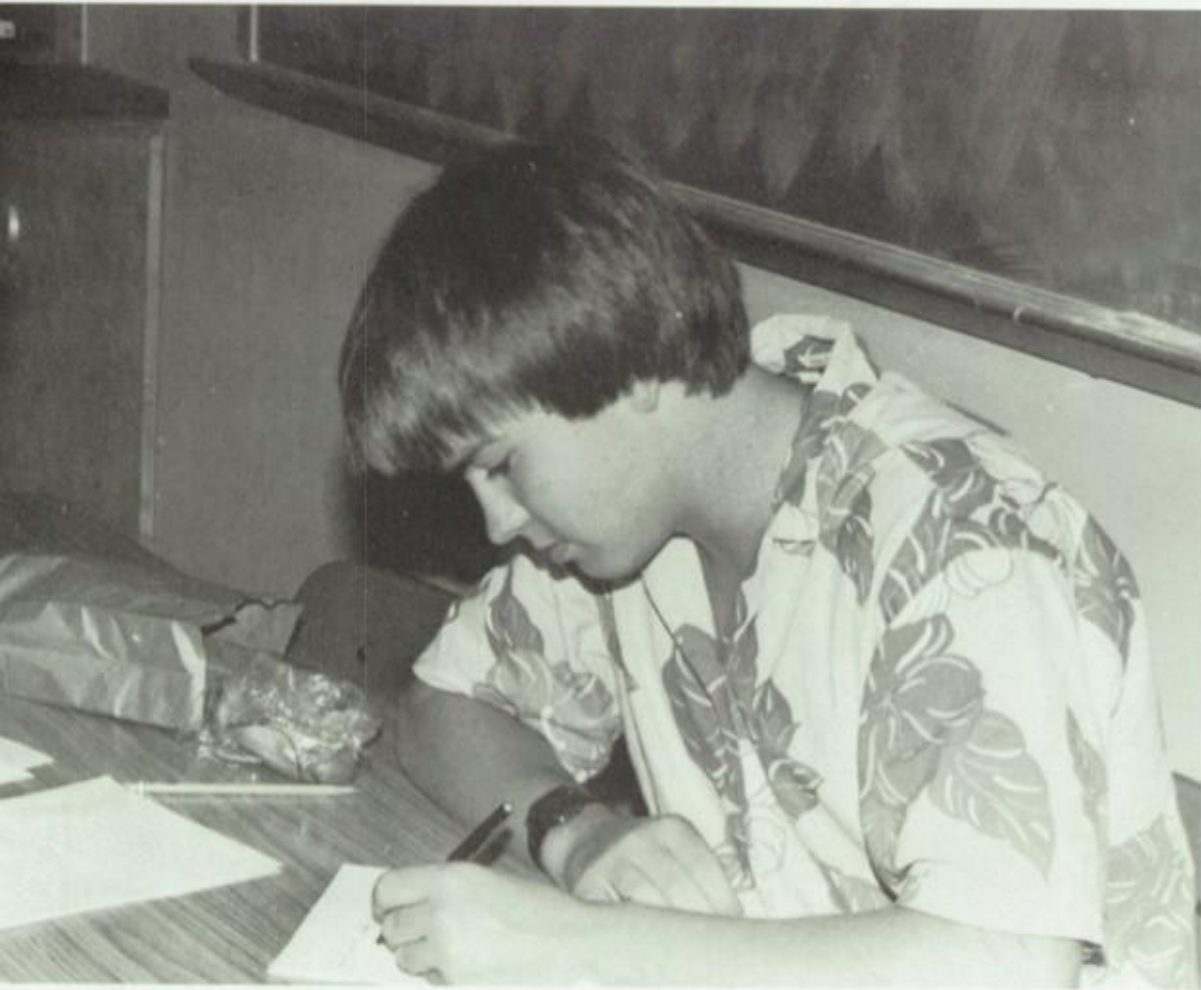

Mark Perkins explains to Elisabeth Brooke why he took a sip of her Coke.

Stacy Touzel checks on things at home during lunch.

Anna Tinsley, behind the sunglasses, sneaks a quick snack during lunch.

James Nickel eats his Wheaties.

Arthur Valero tells Paula Longenbaugh how to drink her milk.

What Goes on Behind Closed Doors?

The clock struck eight A.M. The big Paschal doors closed, to begin another day at school. Students arrived early to study or to talk with friends, but from then on it was rush, rush, rush.

We all have had one of those days when nothing went right. You got to school at 8:10, and were late because your alarm didn't go off on time. You rushed to your locker only to find it jammed, and this confusion caused you to be even later to class. Your teacher was mad, and your day had begun terribly. During homeroom, Mr. King announced, "There is a white Mustang, license number 408-PRY that's being towed right now. If it's yours, come to the office." You died, because it was your car being towed away. Now you were positive your day would be horrible. You asked your teacher for a pass to the nurse, since you now had a terrible headache. The nurse gave you permission to go home. Your day had ended early, and you were thankful!

After Hours: Students Enjoy Time Off.

Following the hustle and bustle of a hectic day at school, many students faced additional responsibilities in the job market.

Keeping a job could be extremely tiring since homework, family time, and socializing were all part of the daily routine. Many students held jobs in clothing stores or eating establishments. Those who did not have a job spent time on leisure, sports, music, art, or whatever struck their fancy. Time, endless as it seemed to be, was engulfed by extra-curricular activities. The hours passed especially quickly after school.

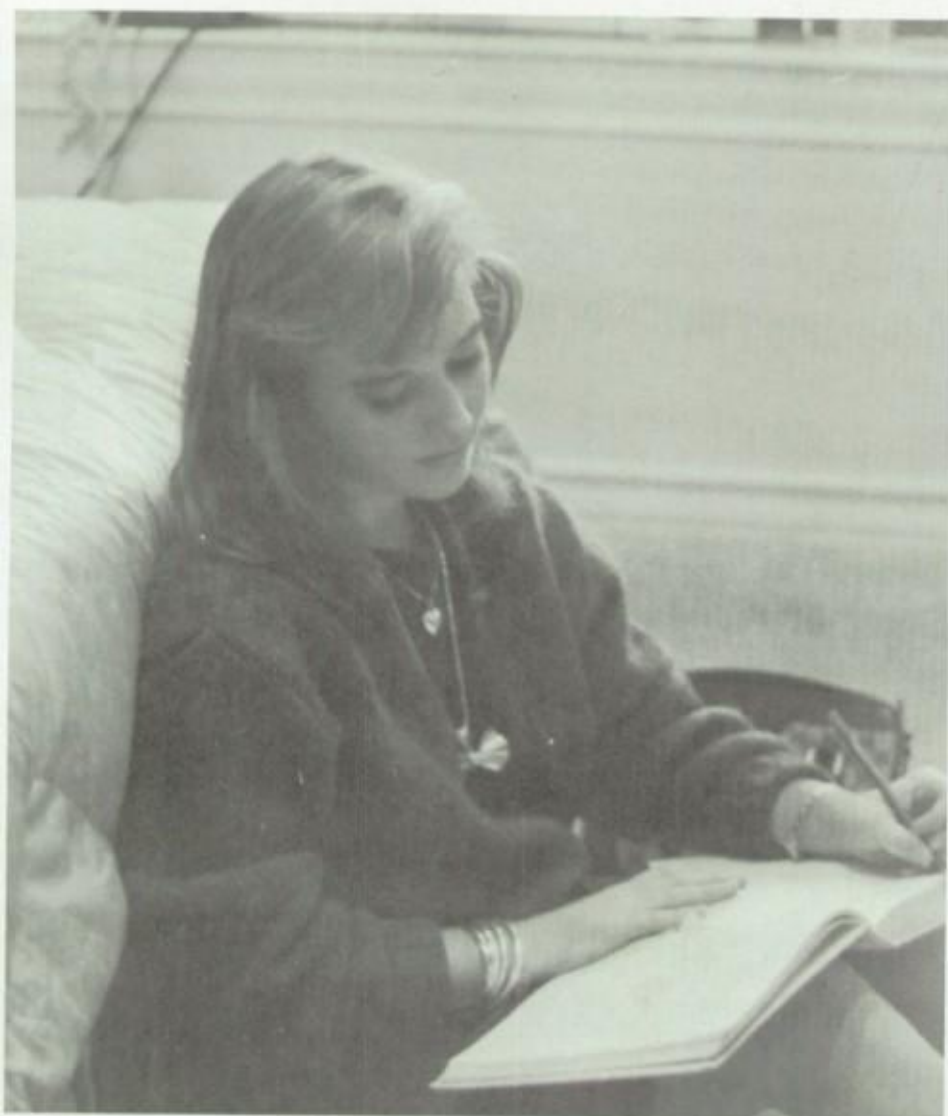

"Well, it took me two years training to do this." Lesli Seymour works at Park Hills.

Sean Ray plays in the park on a sunny afternoon.

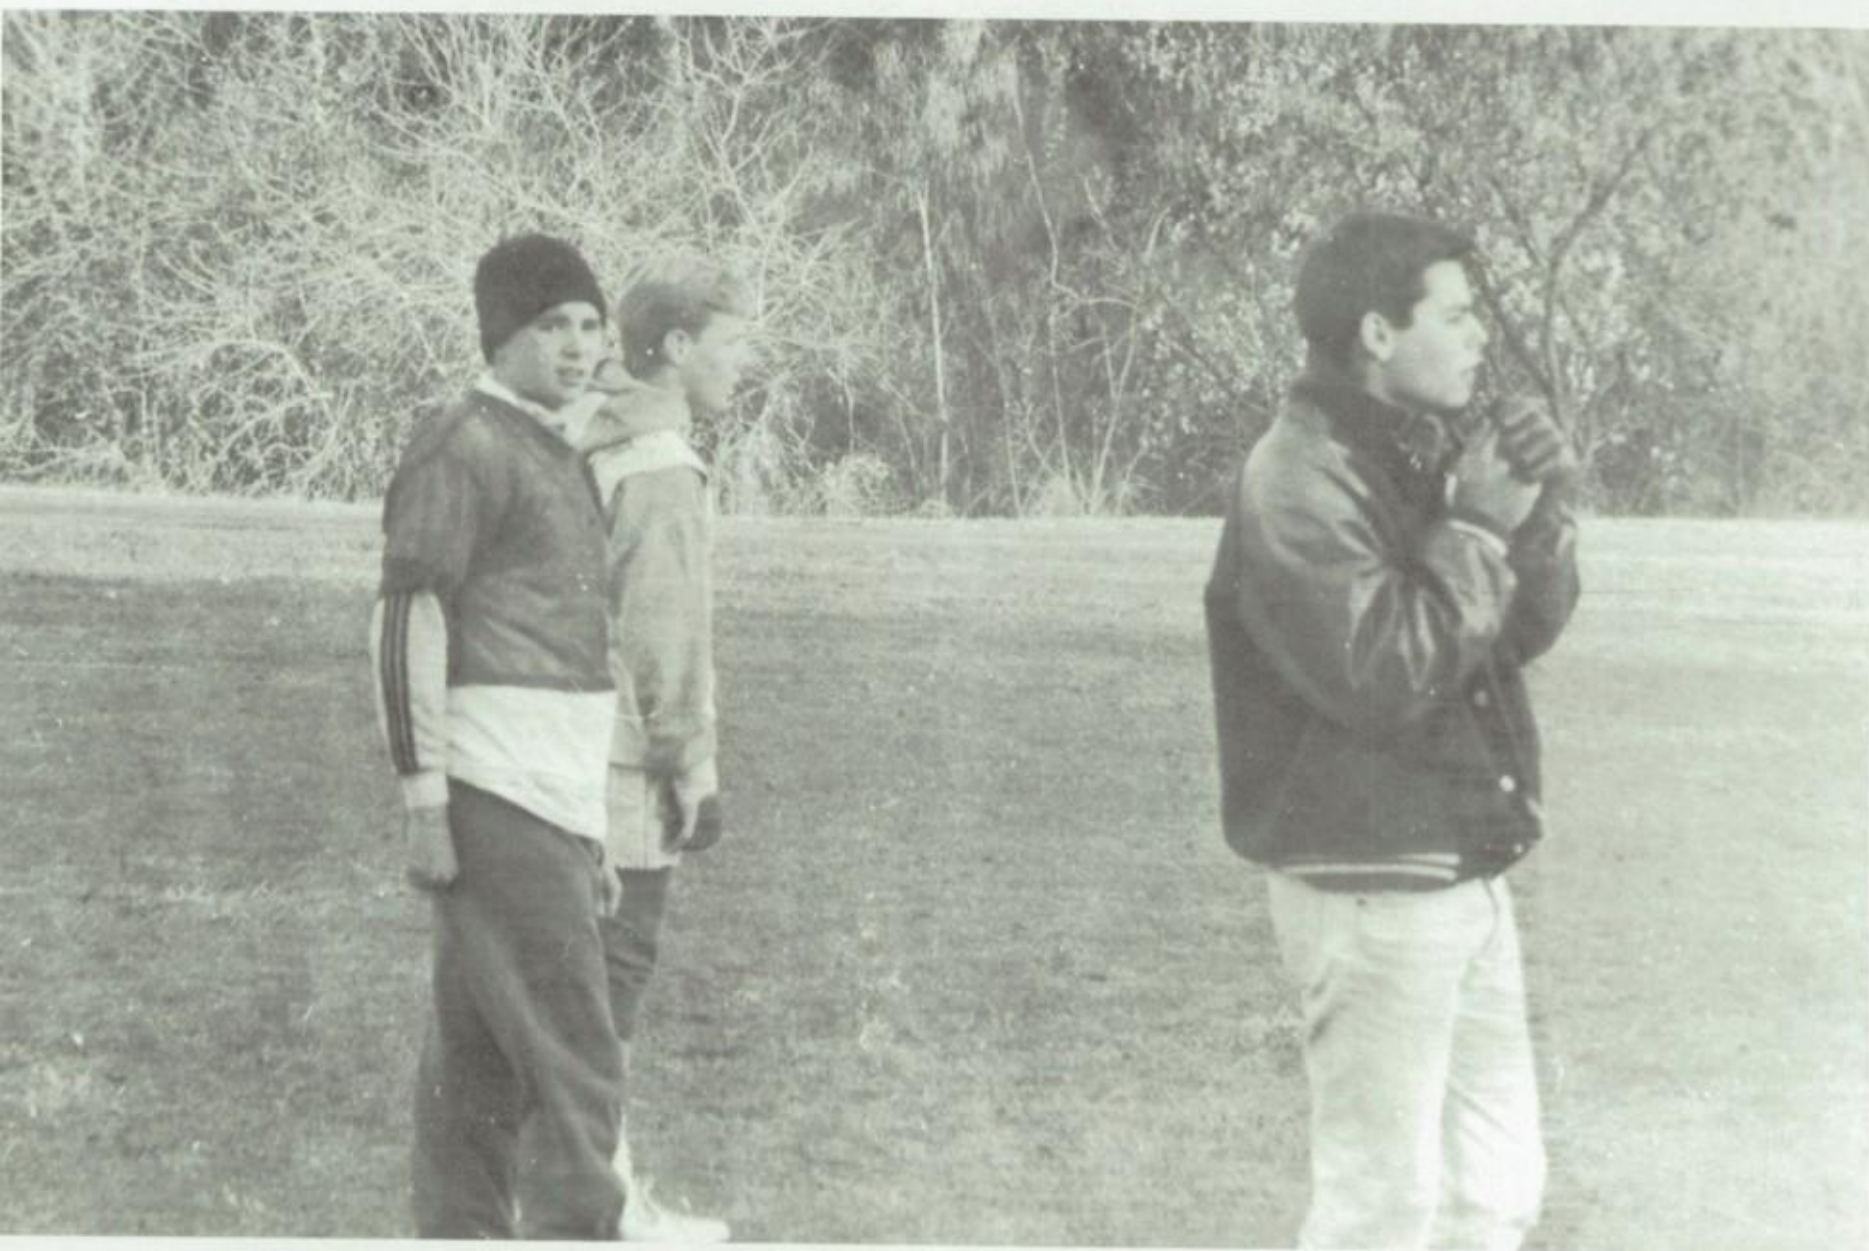

"I was on T.V. last week." Tracy Sharpe shops.

Angela Goodman studies for an algebra test.

"These late nights are killing me!" Tracy Traver types a paper.

"Don't ask me what I'm doing out here." Michael Franklin, Kevin Dubose, and Gene Aldeson play football on a cold afternoon.

Weekends Are Spent on Work and Play

Weekends drew near; plans became action. People traveled, went to work, or just hung out with their friends. Eventually, everyone looked for a good time.

Below are a few responses to the question, "What do you do on the weekend?"

Shelley Sherrill — "Wash my car, clean my room, go to Six Flags, movies, football games, mow my lawn, work . . ."

Kelly Kimberlin — "Work, play tennis, watch T.V., go to movies . . ."

Parrish Chapman — "Sleep, work, do my homework, mess around . . ."

Wendy Dragich — "Go out with friends, work, paint . . ."

Jennifer Jones — "Go out with Ray, football games, exercise in the park, go out with friends . . ."

Margie Gilreath, "Go out with Brad, study, work, and SLEEP LATE!"

Meredith King — "Go out with friends, watch T.V., and PARTY!"

Anne Moreno — "Talk on phone, watch T.V., and go out with friends."

"Then put it in this loop . . ." Tim O'Brien helps Heather Halbert try on shoes.

"Tim, look what I've got." Brad Richardson and Tim Prater play golf.

"It's root beer!" Mrs. Ruth Sullivan, Parrish Chapman and Ms. Jhani Wright help out senior car wash.

"Aw, come on, do you expect me to believe that?" Jill Cobb and Jennifer Jones eat before a football game.

"Are you serious? What did he do?" Stephanie Reese goes out with friends on Friday night.

"When is your mom coming?" O. P. Johnson and Brian Lamkin wait outside Hulen Mall.

The Usual Soggy Floats and Soaring Spirits

It was rainy, but that's not unusual. The floats were wet, but that's not unusual. Spirits were soaring, and that's not unusual. It was Homecoming, and nothing could dampen the spirits. The second and last pep rally of the year could not have had a bigger outcome. Packed in the auditorium, like sardines, students cheered as though they were at Texas Stadium. Some senior football players dressed as female cheerleaders and led a few cheers. The outcome did not affect the mood of the crowd at the O. D. Wyatt game Friday night. The dance was Saturday night at the Hilton and Shelley and the Cobras played. Questions filled the air. "Samantha, where did he take you for dinner?" "Was she ready on time, Nick?" "Mike, where are you going after the dance?" Everyone danced until it was time to leave. The clock struck midnight, signaling the end of the evening and a close to the Homecoming festivities.

Mary Jane Ebert displays her school spirit.

"It wouldn't be Homecoming without rain." Kathy Savage, Ben Swartzwelder and Patrick Perkins watch the parade from underneath an umbrella.

"Welcome to Panther Island." Lane Seymour is awed by the senior float.

Ghosts and turkeys were all that it took to give Paschal students a break from their books.

On Halloween they searched for candy and homes to raid, but later prepared for the Homecoming parade.

Panthers passed Turkey Day in a variety of ways;

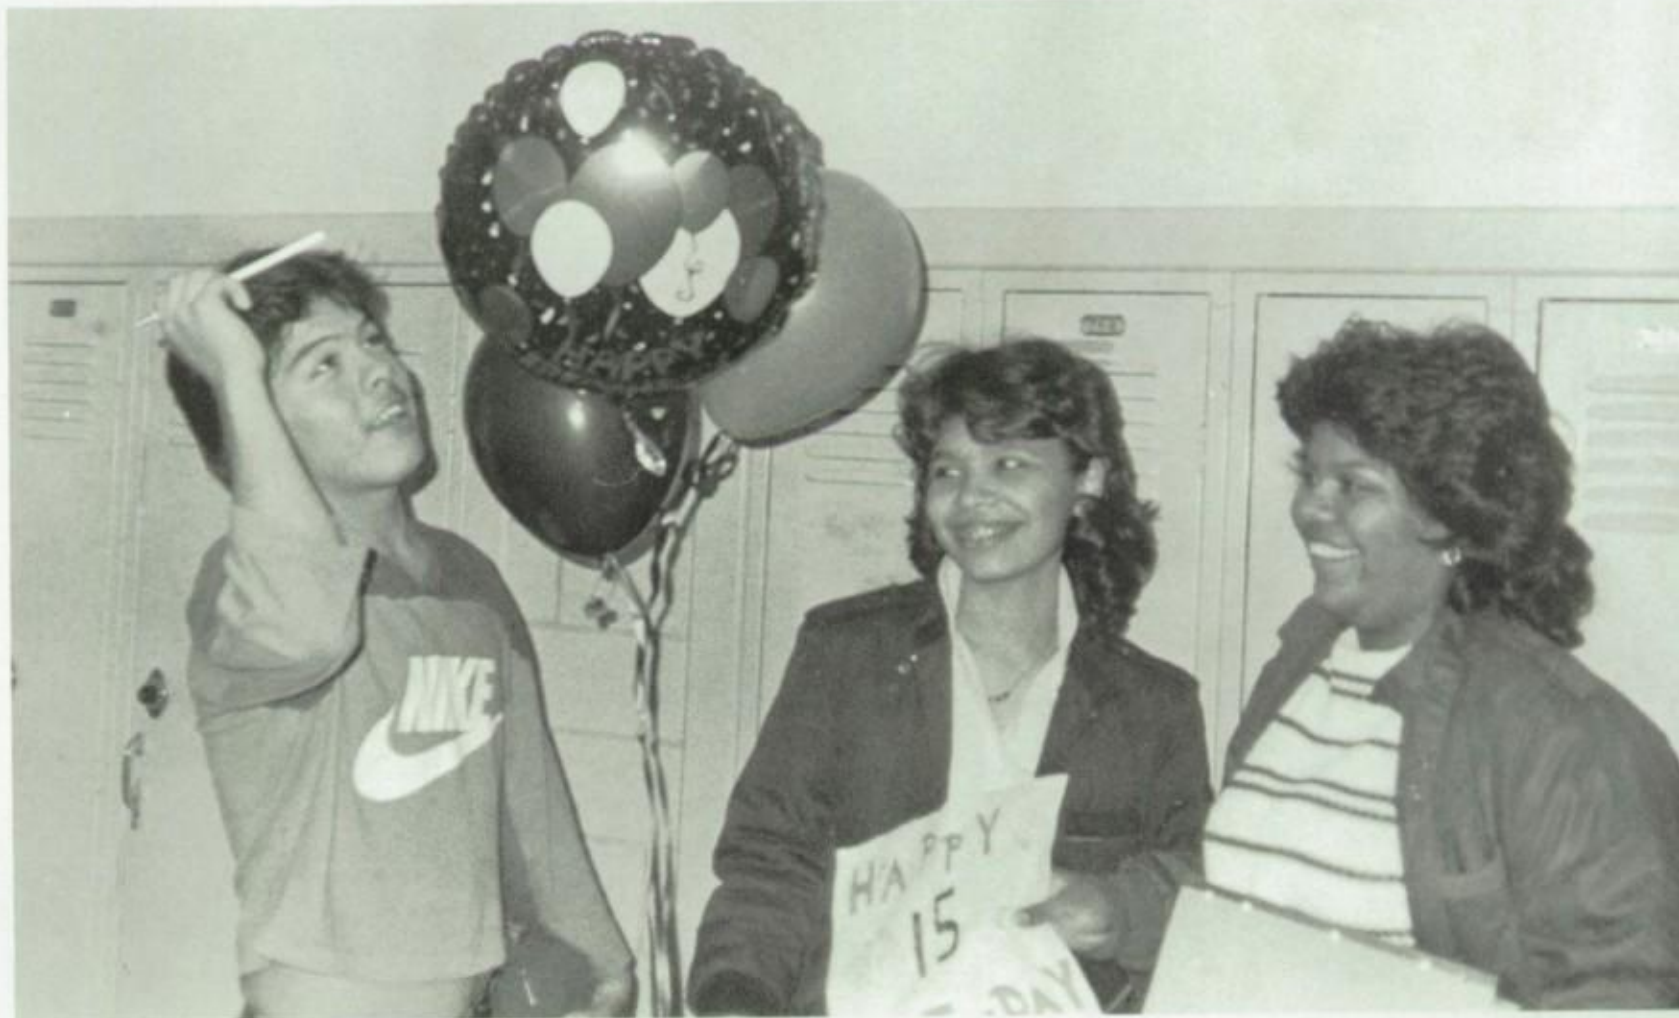

while some stayed home, others traveled for days.

Though students enjoyed this slight holiday reprieve, they still eagerly awaited the upcoming Christmas leave.

"No, I don't need help with my bags." Wanda Wade dresses as a bag lady.

"Pop It . . . I dare you." Phillip Herrera and Vanessa Raya celebrate Leticia Garcia's Halloween birthday.

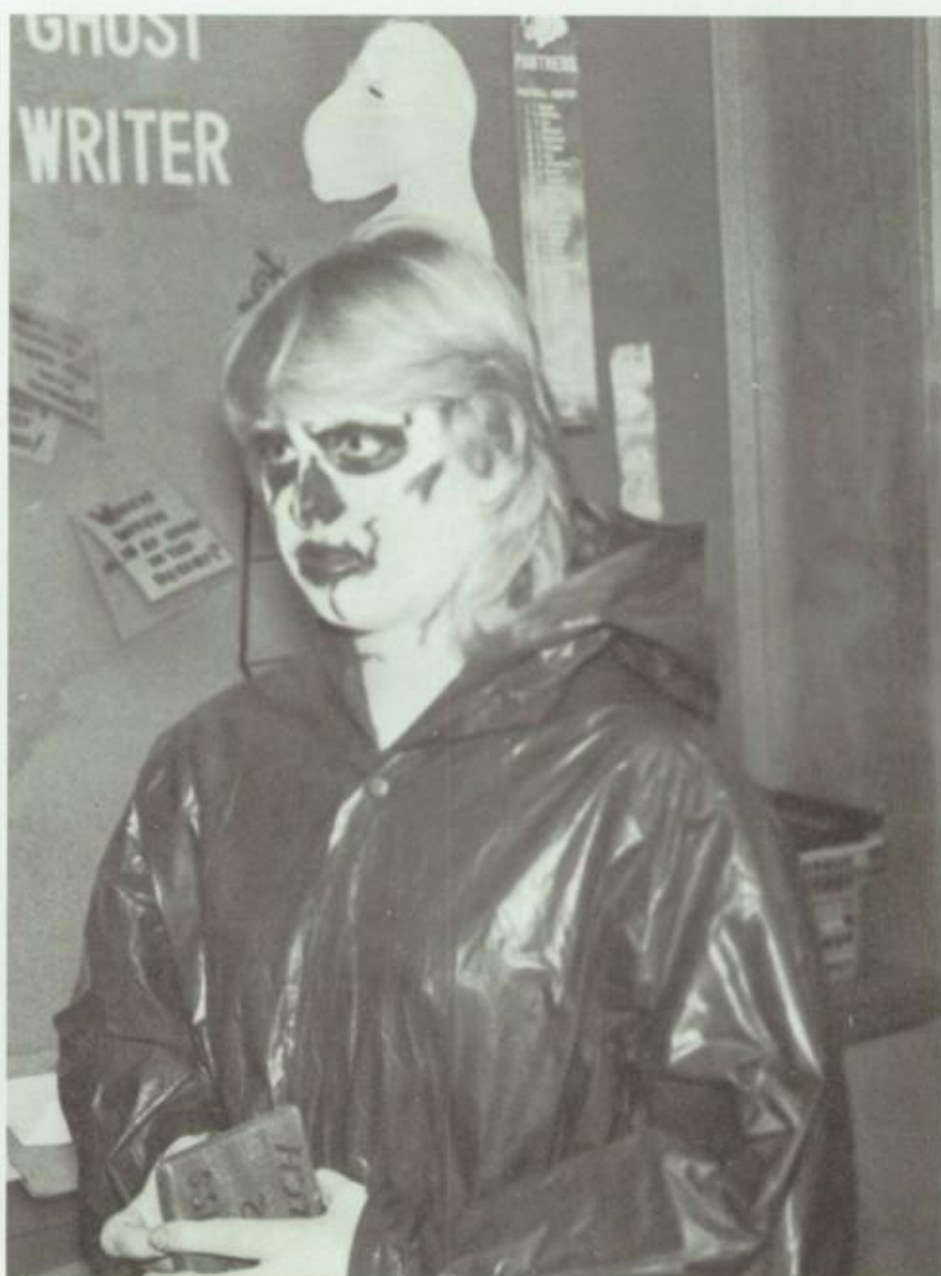

"Loving the Alien." Mark Perkins makes peace with Keith Savoy and Bryan Hill.

"Who's your hairdresser?" Abner Smith struts the halls.

"We're neat guys." Larry Lourcey terrorizes Scott Anderson and Derek Lamkin with his own brand of Halloween fun.

"But I thought the costume was my pass!" Holly Hendrix looks confused.

Students Enjoy the Holiday Season

Along with the month of December comes holiday spirits. Students began looking for short term jobs, shopping for presents, and planning out of town trips. Many got away from the mild Texas weather to the powder white ski slopes. Those who stayed home caught up on daytime soaps.

Carriage rides downtown and a Six Flags "Holiday in the Park" were also characteristics of the holiday celebrations. Everyone enjoyed having a two week winter break. "School did not even enter my mind," said Randy as he drugged into school, January 6. "It's too bad we didn't have a month." The holiday season was obviously enjoyed by everyone.

Halley's Comet Highlights '86

Astronomers and stargazers anxiously awaited their singular opportunity to view Comet Halley's twelfth appearance in our skies. Since the comet appears at intervals of seventy-five to seventy-six years, few have the opportunity to catch a glimpse of it twice. However, seventy-five year old V. T. Adamson was an exception, because he had the chance to see the comet in 1910. The comet also placed parenthesis around Mark Twain's life as it appeared the year of his birth in 1835, and again in the year of his death in 1910. In 1901, Twain wrote, "two unaccountable freaks, they came in together, they must go out together." The comet has marked other historical events, such as the siege of Jerusalem by the Romans in A.D. 66, the defeat of the Saxons by William the Conqueror in 1066, the conquests of Genghis Khan in 1212, and the battles that saved Christendom from the Turks in 1456. Historians have even traced the comet's appearance as far back as 240 B.C. Eleventh-century tapestries that show primitive illustrations of the comet prove that our ancestors had some knowledge of celestial bodies. Since Halley's comet will travel along its path to reach the earth's corner of the solar system at least once each century, it not only marks historical events but also will mark future happenings.

Comet Halley has a predictable path and schedule, so it is a prime candidate among the 1,000 known comets for study. The scientific revolution of the seventeenth century inspired introductory research of cometary science. Aristotle hypothesized that comets did not move in space; instead, they were an atmospheric phenomena. As Isaac Newton applied his universal law of gravitation, he contradicted Aristotle and proved that heavenly bodies do move in elliptical orbits around the sun. Newton collaborated with his friend, Edmund Halley, an English astronomer, to apply Newton's "Principia Mathematica" to the radiant comet he saw in 1682. Halley thus decided that this 1682 comet was the same one that had appeared in 1607 and 1531. Consequently he predicted its return in 1758. Since Halley died in 1741, he did not have the opportunity to see his prediction become reality. Yet, his name earned him honor as "Halley" has been immortalized in the title of the comet.

The comet that inspired Halley may have caught his attention with its brilliant tail that stretched seventy million miles across the sky. Comets' tails are made up of dust particles and ionized gas called plasma. The tail does not actually follow the comet. The solar wind blows the tail away from the sun and the comet travels behind its tail. Illumination occurs as particles in the tail reflect the sunlight and it is sent dazzling across the sky. Closer to the nucleus is the coma, a swirling mist of dust and gas that is 100,000 miles long. Inside the blanket of the coma lies the nucleus which is composed of ices (water and carbon dioxide), ammonia, and other compounds that, by the warmth of the sun, sublime from their frozen state into gas. This process, sublimation, increases pressure until the crust splits, allowing a jet of gas to stream outward and to propel the comet. The optical illusion of the comet and its unusual jet-propulsion add mystery to Halley's Comet.

Mystics, awed by comets, fear that the bodies are a "fiery harbinger of doom," while scientists feel that comets are like "an archeological dig in the sky." One theorist hints that a "death star" haunts the sky, and he suggests that if such a comet were to collide with Earth, the planet would be destroyed. Our scientists explore the origins of the Earth through the intriguing mysteriousness of comets. Their theories state that a cloud of hot gas one light-year across began to collapse 4.6 billion years ago. It formed a dense patch which became the sun, and the sunlight sent the remaining material into orbit. Away from the sun, these fragments met with gases to form the outer planets. Sir Fred Hoyle believes that inside comets are organic compounds which over the eons evolved living cells. Although some view comets as a destructive death "bomb," others regard comets as productive life cells.

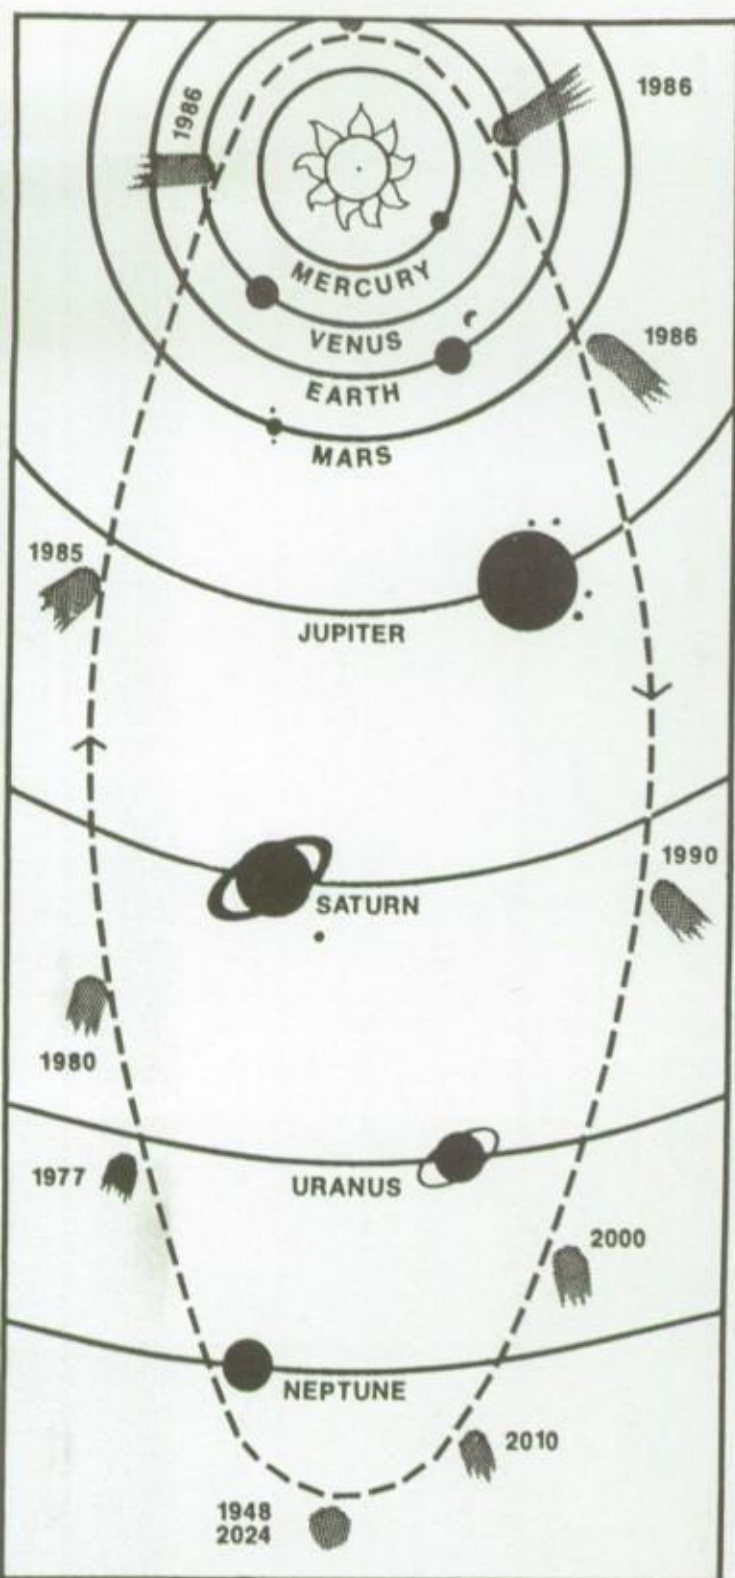

Regardless of how people perceive Halley's Comet, it did not alter its path through our skies this year. Neither did the comet roam the skies unsupervised. In March, a month before Halley's closest approach to Earth, five unmanned spacecrafts studied the comet in its orbit. The European probe, the Space Agency's Giotto, flew within 310 miles of the comet's surface. By using an unmanned space telescope, NASA scientists tracked the comet's thirty-eight year journey to far reaches of the solar system. Nine hundred astronomers from forty-seven countries organized into the international Halley Watch, and they observed the comet from the ground. Since amateur astronomers also viewed Halley's comet from the earth, telescope makers and ambitious entrepreneurs took advantage of the public enthusiasm. Owen Ryan planned for the visitor from deep space in 1982 as he trademarked his "official" Halley's comet logo. Ryan anticipated making several million dollars by licensing his logo to souvenir, clothing and fast food companies. Frank John has organized two tours to Australia and was paid $3400 by each of his 400 amateur astronomers who accompanied him on his journey. Some may not have thought John's tour was necessary as they have already caught a glimpse of the comet early in the year. In the Fort Worth area, Mike Coucke and Ron Dilulio sighted Halley's comet on September 18, 1985. They were joined by many other stargazers and astronomers when the comet reached its brightest on April 11, 1986, as it swept closest to Earth, still thirty-nine million miles away.

Astronomer Edmund Halley's name was immortalized in the title of the comet.

Thirty years ago, an American illustrator imagined a Buck Rogers culture fascinated by the return of the comet in 1986.

Love Blooms Throughout the Year

Yet, love, mere love, is beautiful indeed
And worthy of exception. Fire is bright,
Let temple burn, or flax; an equal light
Leaps in the flame from cedar-plank or weed:
And love is fire: And when I say at need
I love thee . . . Mark! . . . I love thee — in thy sight
I stand transfigured, glorified aright,
With conscience of the new rays that proceed
Out of my face toward thine, there's nothing low
In love, when love the lowest: meanest creatures
Who love God, God accepts while loving so.
And what I feel, across the inferior features
Of what I am, doth flash itself, and show
How that great work of Love enhances Nature's.

Students Brake for Spring

When Spring Break finally came around, getting out of school was no longer a dream. Time had gone by fast all year until the week before spring break. That week seemed to be an eternity. Although we did not get out of school an hour early as we have the previous years, the students' spirits were not dampened. As the last bell rang signaling the end of class everyone scrambled and went their separate ways. Well, maybe not everyone. Many headed for the coast. Party after party, tanning and more tanning, meeting guys and meeting girls. Maybe some even slept, ate, and swam. The only setback was time to leave. Who wanted to drive away from "fun in the sun?" Others worked to save up money for a car. People go up to the lake, watch soap operas, or just catch up on sleep. School started at its usual time on Monday morning; vacation was over.

"I hope I don't get my clothes wet. Mommy may get mad." Mark Villasana washes a car.

"Has the sun lightened my hair." Amy Bawcom fiddles with her hair in the park.

"Do you want to go for a spin?" Michele Nance and Kelly Cantrell sit on a dune buggy.

Powder Puffers Take to the Field

Irene Rangel and Christine Butler vote for Senior team name.

The Senioritas couldn't wait to play the Junior Mints in a nice, friendly game of flag football. Preparation for the game was tough. The coaches really put the girls through a lot of running, exercising, and practicing. The Senioritas were ready to give the Junior Mints all they had. The Junior Mints, on the other hand, practiced just as much as the elders. No one could really tell who was better until the night of the big game. The game illustrated that ultimately, strength will lead a team to victory.

Powder Puff is not just a game of pleasure. It is also for our education. The Powder Puff game is a fund raiser for the Charles M. Berry scholarship given by Paschal to deserving Paschal High School students.

"Hut, hut . . ." Sharon Frampton, Elisabeth Brooke, Michelle Reaves, and Gina Eno practice while Keith Paul observes.

"Is anyone watching?" Jennifer Muncy fills out ballot to elect cheerleaders.

AT THE MOVIES

The Fifties Rock Paschal Again

When the lights went down on opening night, no one dreamed that Grease would be the drama department's biggest musical ever. The festive evening was filled with singing, dancing, and lots of laughter. Since the production was double cast for all leads, the competition among the actors and actresses added to the strength of the show. From the smooth talking Danny to the King of the Thugs, Kenickie — and the not so innocent Sandy to the rough cut Rizzo — all the leads exhibited vigor and enthusiasm. The Pink Ladies and the Burger Palace Boys added to the laughter and occasionally to the trouble. The Rydell High Schoolers helped the audience swing the funfilled night away. The entire production under the supervision of Susan Williams, director and Joy Howington, music director took six weeks to stage. The band, pianist, and the stage crew donated valuable time. Grease ran for five nights. Each evening people had to be turned away at the door because of lack of seating. This was definitely the biggest musical production ever produced at Paschal; it may have even been the best. Who knows, the word might be Grease II, next year.

Texas Celebrates 150 Years

Texas, our wonderful state full of history and culture, celebrates its birthday this year. One hundred and fifty years ago, the ancestors of our state fought desperately to free Texas from Mexico. Texas was nicknamed the Lone Star State because it was the only state to have been an independent republic before joining the Union in 1845. The Civil War prompted Texans to secede from the Union to fight with the confederates.

Readmitted to the Union in 1870, Texas quickly became the nation's largest cattle kingdom. The first Texas cattle drive took place twenty-five years before ranchers pushed thousands of cattle through Oklahoma and up to Kansas. 1901 marked the first big oil strike at Spindletop, creating a whole new industry for Texans. Towns like Dallas, Houston, and Fort Worth became the industrial giants of Texas.

In 1960, the Supreme Court ratified a bill recognizing the states' rights to control their own tidelands. The tideland limits for Texas was set at 10.5 miles offshore. Since 1964, the Lyndon B. Johnson Space Center has been the headquarters for all manned U.S. space flights. The state song, "Texas, Our Texas," shall be sung proudly for generations to come — hopefully another 150 years.

Students Strive to Graduate Early

An approach to learning that allows students to progress at their rate is the format of the "school-within-a-school."

There are four subjects: Literature and the Arts; History and Philosophy; Math/Science; and Inquiry and Expression. T.C.U. students come to the Essential High School and help students with any problems they had on assignments. The school has time blocks instead of 55 minute classes. These are classes with mastery of objectives in an inter-disciplinary setting. As soon as a student can prove mastery in any area, he/she is awarded credit. This is the only program that allows a student to graduate early. Currently there are only ten such programs in existence in the United States.

"B-R-Y-A-N B-O-W-D-E-N." Bryan Bowden puzzles over spelling his name.

"Do you understand your new schedule?" Ms. Jhani Wright lectures her class.

Essential High School students attentively listen to a lecture.

Don't Despair! Help Is on the Way

"The retreat is next weekend." Mrs. Sarah Brooke talks to Jeff Harakal.

The Natural Helpers were selected by fellow classmates in the fall semester. Everyone had an opportunity to pick at least one student and at least one teacher to whom they could tell their problems. The Natural Helpers got together for a fall retreat which consisted of 26 hours of training. The retreat brought everyone closer together and helped everyone learn about other people and their high school pressures. The Natural Helpers were also involved with the group of Students Against Drunk Driving (S.A.D.D.). They listened to other students' problems and tried to help them solve them. Mrs. Sarah Brooke, sponsor, was involved with the group and was always concerned with students and their ability to cope with the problems and pressures of high school.

Sara Ellis swings in the breeze at a Natural Helpers' retreat.

"Geronimo!" Scott Anderson swings on the rings at a picnic.

ORGANIZATI

Revealing Cooperation

Students Govern With Eagerness

Student government was responsible for many aspects of school life. The Leadership Committee — composed of student body officers, class officers, and activities chairmen and treasurers — planned and ran the many fund-raising and community service projects Paschal is noted for. The Can Drive, the Toy Drive, and Powder Puff were all successful, and the Student Council strongly supported the LC endeavors.

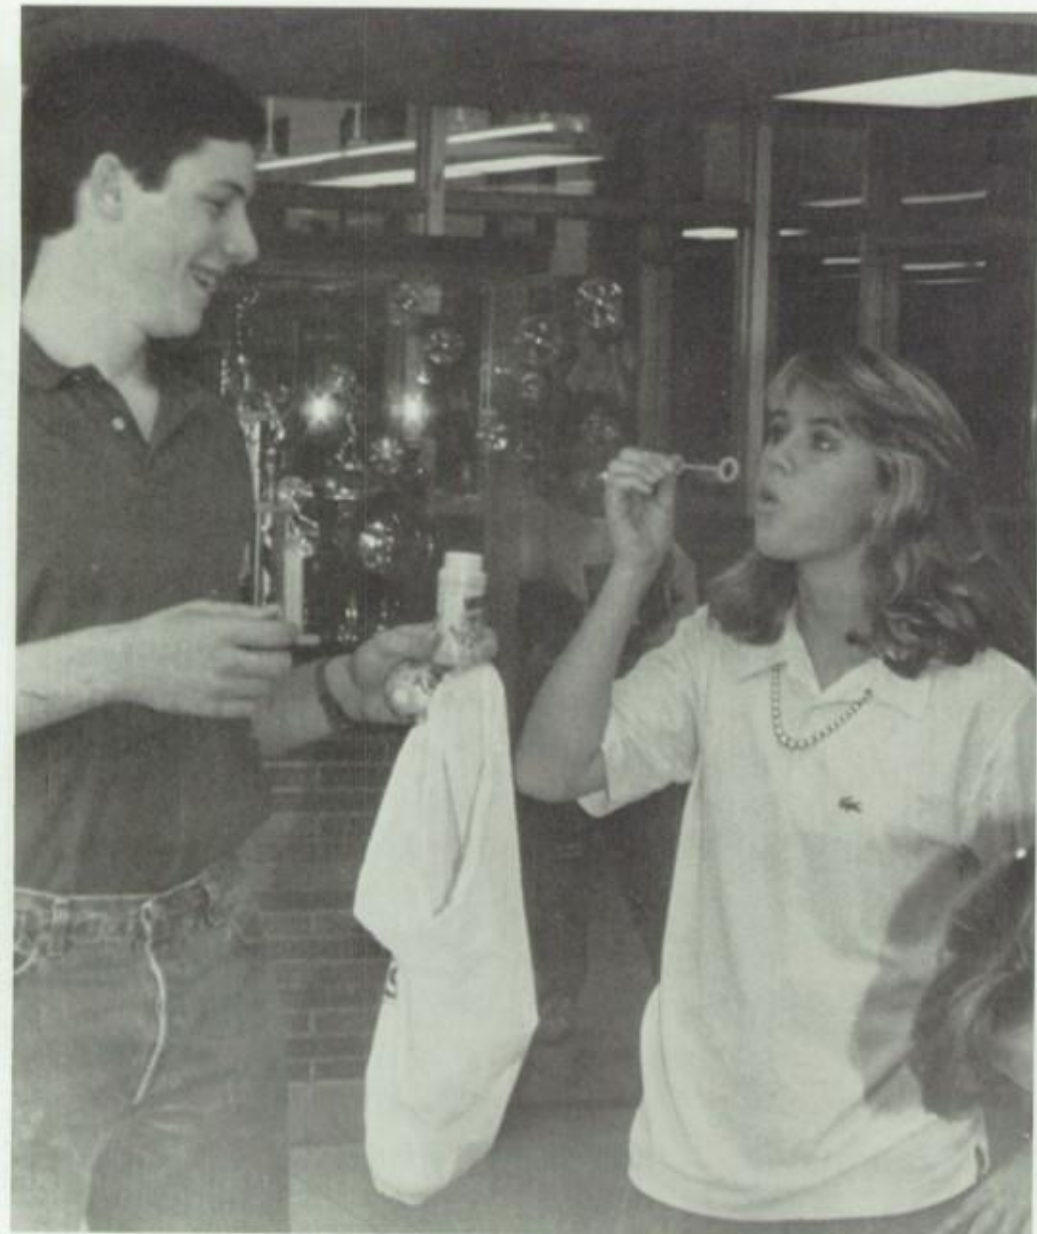

The Student Council and Leadership Committee were also responsible for many daily activities. Raising and lowering of the flag, reading the announcements, and cleaning the trophies were all LC duties. Likewise, each Student Council member was responsible for keeping his or her homeroom informed of LC activities and announcements. Together, the LC and Student Council involved and informed the student body.

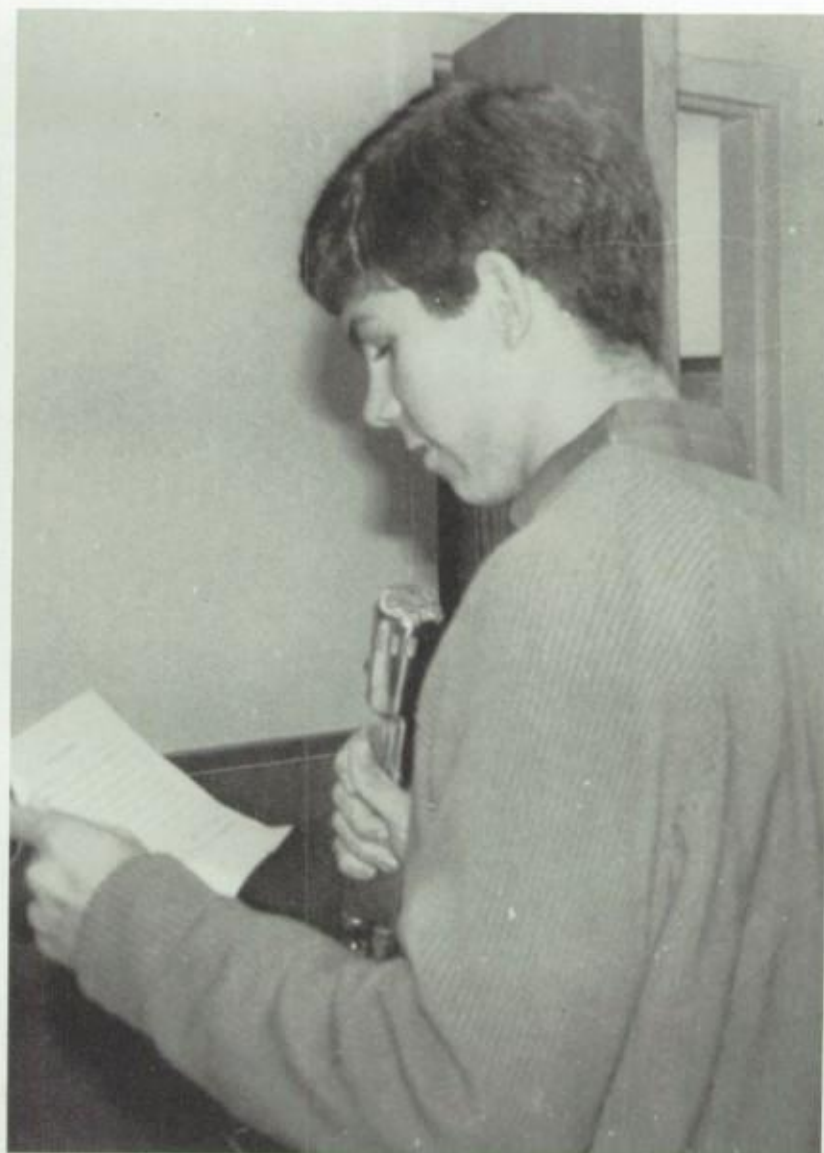

"Do you think they'll care if we sneak some cookies?" Amy McKinney, Jennifer Smith, and Shelley Lindsey prepare for Teacher's Appreciation Day.

Katherine Douglas and Sara Ellis count Sophomore favorite votes.

"Tiny bubbles . . ." Matt Price and Shannon Lindsey revert to childhood antics while they decorate the front foyer.

"Due to lack of interest, school will be cancelled for the rest of the week." John Andrus reads the homeroom announcements.

A lucky State School student will receive a Wuzzle for Christmas.

We're Panther Proud of Paschal's Pride

While strolling down the bustling halls of the number one high school, an eager student might encounter a colorful banner promoting an athletic event or the chants of the athletes themselves. In the classrooms, humorous signs added laughter to high school life. The entire surroundings boasted an attitude so cheerful that one could not help being overcome by the spirit.

Pride was evident in the student government through the many activities it sponsored. All of Paschal's clubs provided opportunities for student spirit to manifest itself. Roaring to the top of the list were the Paschal cheerleaders. They were a volcano of Purple Pride.

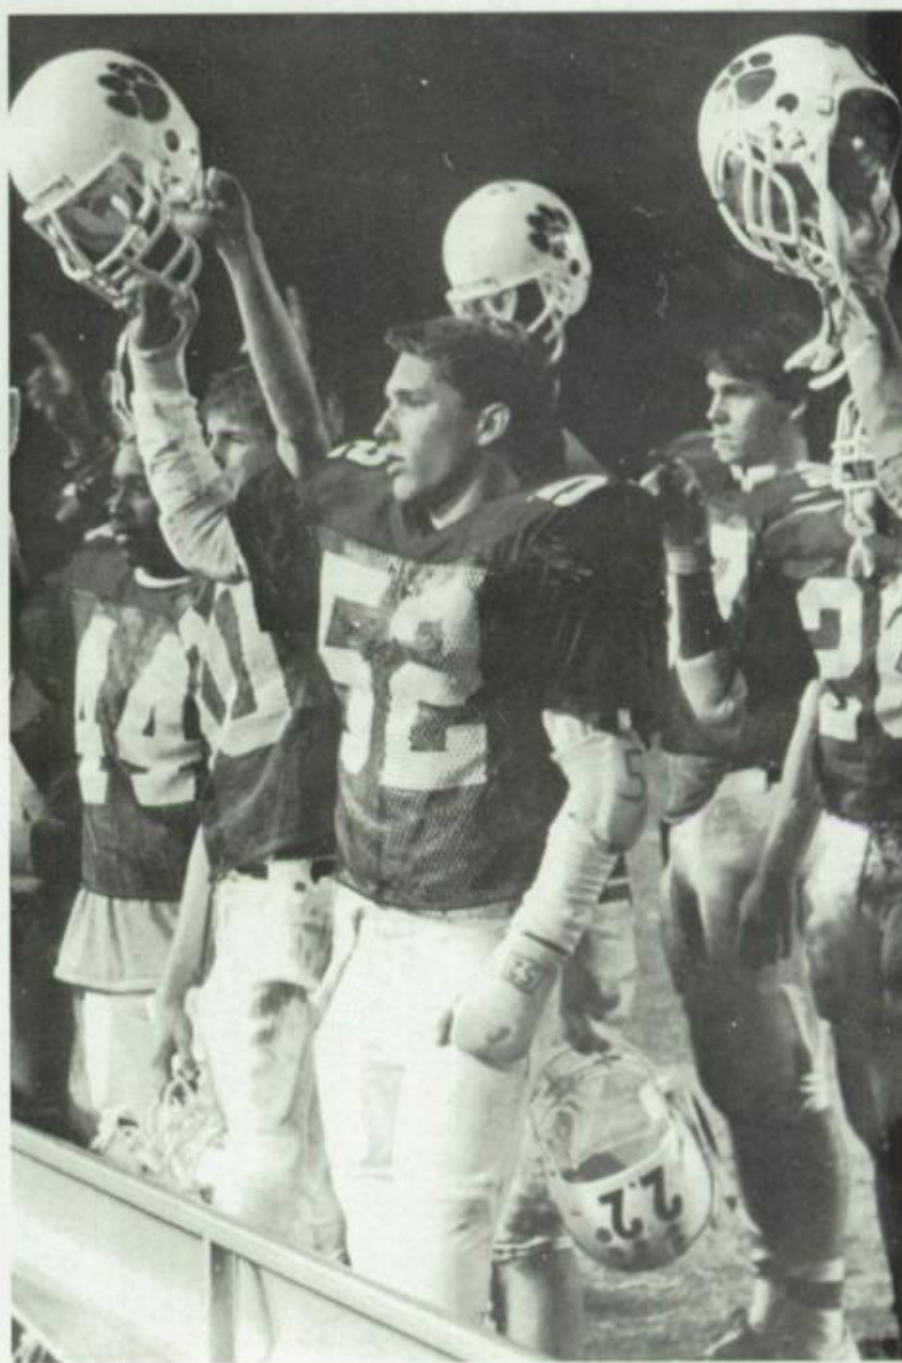

Caring and standing behind Paschal was probably the finest example of spirit, and this was displayed by the people in the 1986 Panther, we the Paschal Panthers.

Coaches Joe Billingsley, John Somsy, and Billy Warren watch the Panthers anxiously.

OH MY! Panther Pride members await the start of the game.

"Hail to thee Paschal, Purple reign." The Panthers salute the school.

Fun and Learning Go Hand in Hand

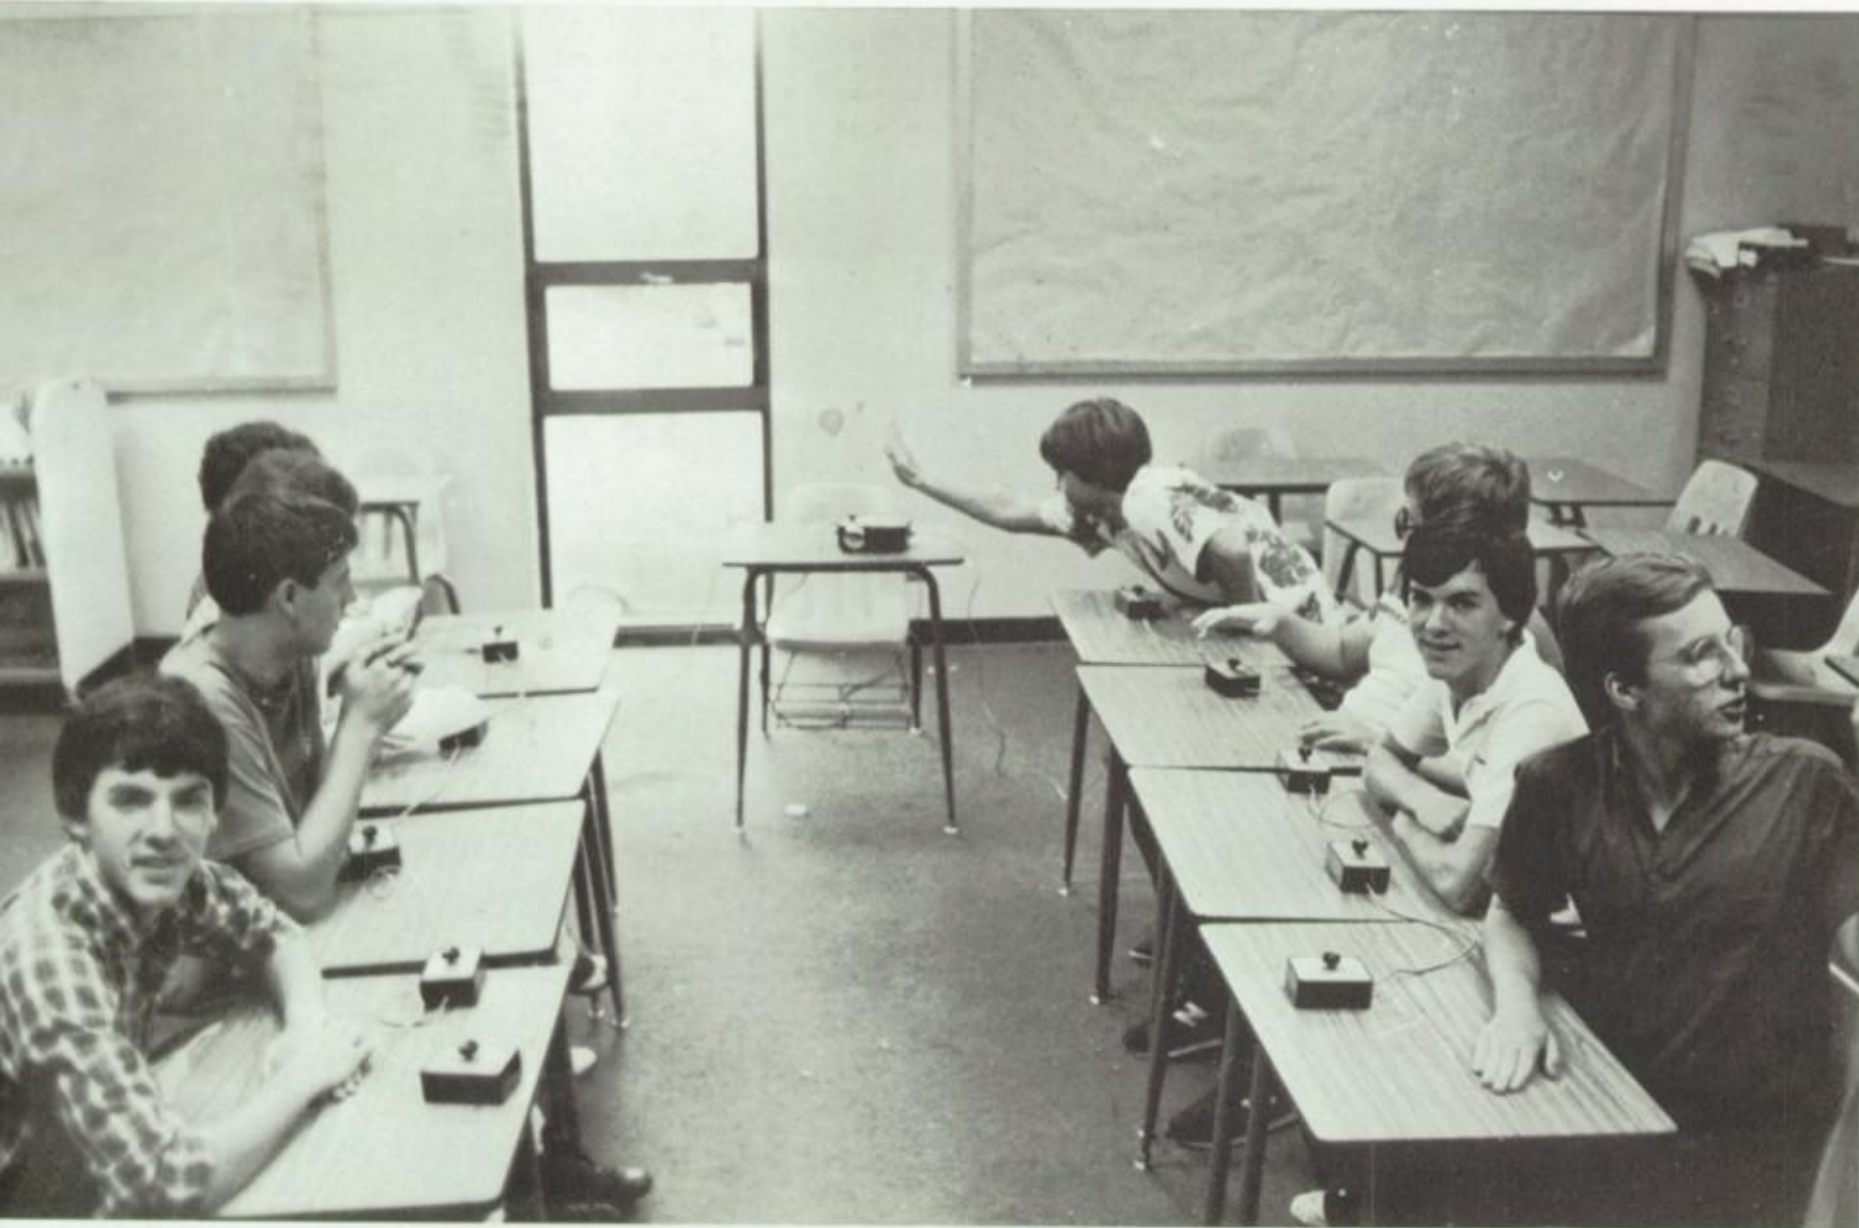

Fun and learning went together this year as students involved in academic clubs participated in social extra-curricular activities. The Penta Club worked to make math interesting and shared laughter in its annual pizza party, Turkey Awards, math contests, and Awards Banquet. The Spanish Honor Society held a party and banquet to welcome its new members as they joined in Spanish Club activities. Whiz Quiz and Academic Decathlon contributed to academic prowess with weekly study sessions that helped them win contests and brought them and the academic program honor. The National Honor Society helped teachers and directed parents at Open House. The society also held a fundraiser to provide scholarships for its members. The Science Club members invited guest speakers to their meetings and entered projects in the science fair. Although many hard hours were spent in club activities, the students involved still managed to have fun. These clubs provided not only a chance to learn but also a chance to laugh.

Culture Is More Than Just Yogurt

The sending and receiving of exchange students, and the joining of clubs to learn more about diverse cultures accounted for the cultural impact at PHS in 1985-86 school year. Many organizations at Paschal made trips abroad this year. The Spanish Club went to Puerto Vallarta, and several students made a trip to Europe with some of the Paschal faculty. Yet, culture goes beyond traveling. Culture is the understanding of the lives and ways of others.

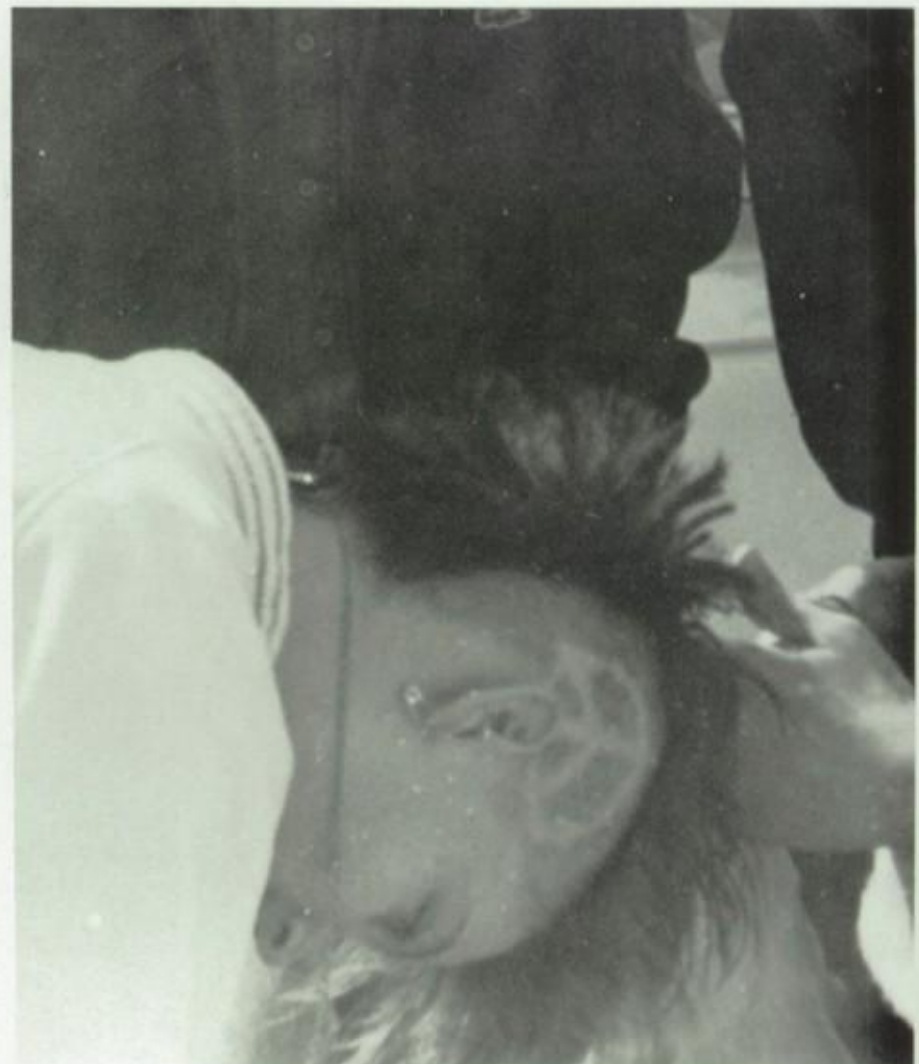

Starting off the new year, 1986, President Ronald Reagan and Soviet Party Chairman Mikhail Gorbachev exchanged New Year's greetings to the people of each other's country. Their efforts were an effective initiation, to the United Nations International Year of Peace, which was meant to bring about peaceful, cultural relations between all countries of the world. This included the exchange of actors, musicians, scientists, teachers and students to bring about a better understanding of other cultures.

Students Get Involved With the Fine Arts

To reap the greatest reward from one's education, one must pursue knowledge and interests beyond classroom instruction. The fine arts courses at Paschal provided these opportunities. Through practice, performance, and competing, students got a chance to relate their academic subjects to the arts. When they worked together for a common goal, students developed cooperation, responsibility, and leadership. The fine arts curriculum offered a sense of belonging and a chance to develop interests, skills, and talents beyond the basic subjects.

Vocational Classes Offer Advantages

Many students found an alternative to the regular school program this year. Vocational students not only found some academic freedom but also discovered a key to the future. Four hours of the day were spent in regular and vocational classes learning the skills necessary for special careers. Each student spent an additional four hours on the job. Students learned skills that gave them special insight into teaching, secretarial work, architecture, cooking and hospital work.

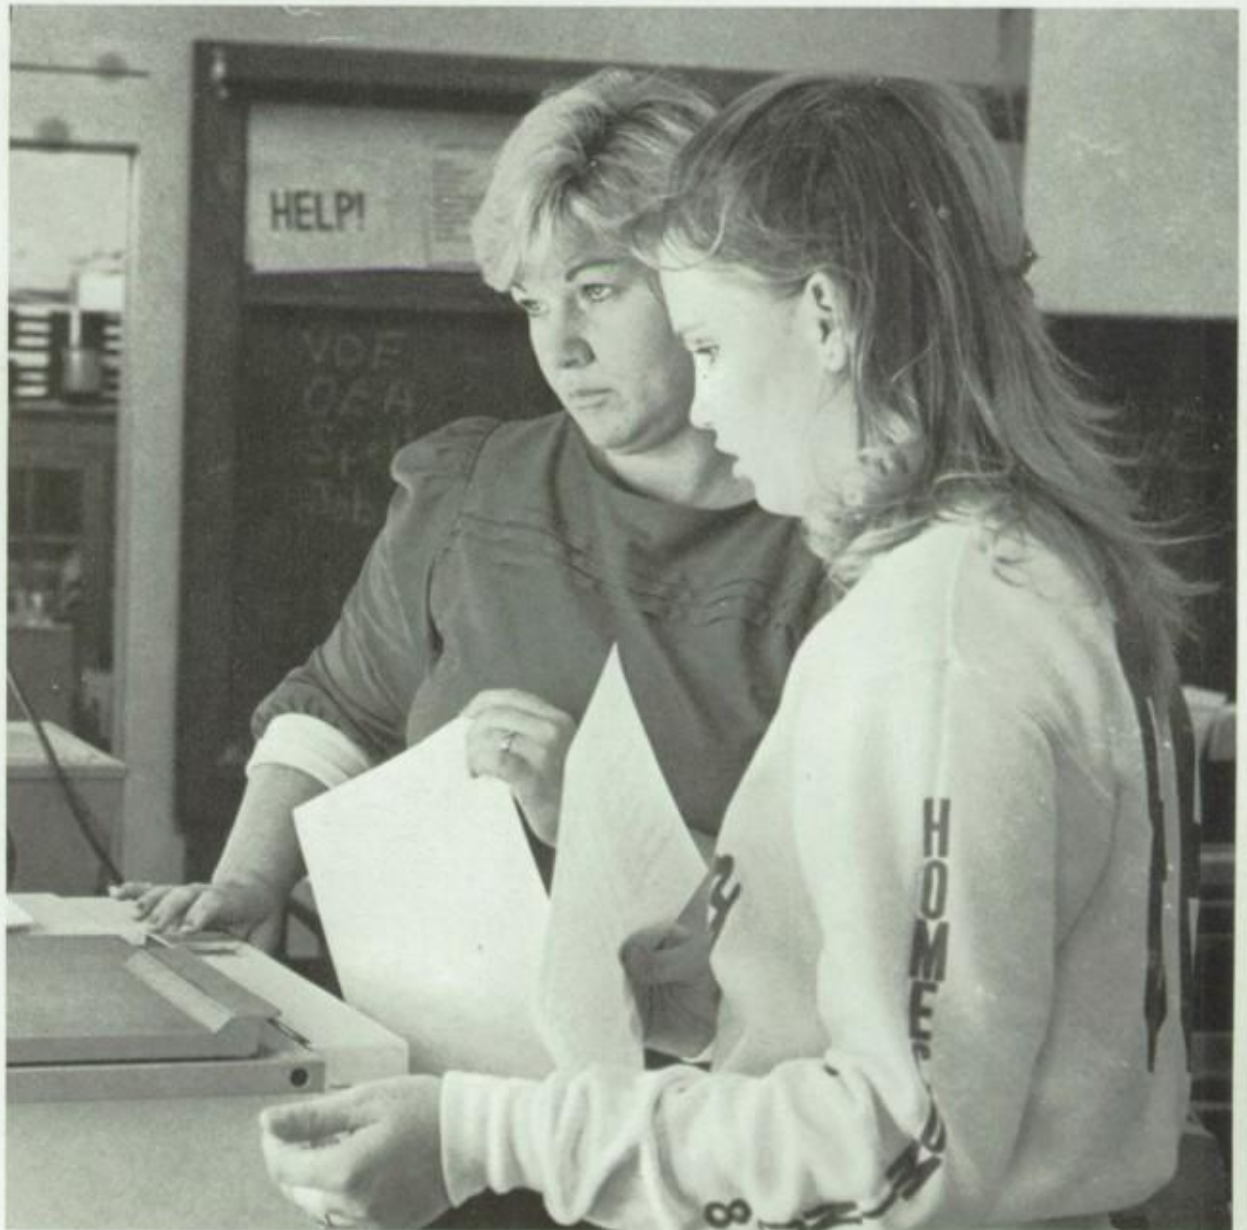

Lois Dunnam, senior, said, "I like the class because it helps me to prepare to work in an office after I graduate." Students in vocational classes achieved three things: an alternative to classes at school; the excitement of a job; and an advantage for the future.

Extra! Extra! Read All About It!!

Creative students enjoy many outlets through which they can vent their creativity while having fun at the same time. In the fall, pupils in Mr. Bob Reed's creative writing class write short stories, poems and even produce their own plays. Then, in the spring, they use the writing knowledge they have acquired to produce the Vignette, our highly-acclaimed literary magazine. Other students put their writing ability to work for the Panther, Paschal's yearbook. They write copy which, together with pictures, captures the spirit of the past year. The Panther serves as a long-lasting memory book that enables graduates to reflect on their high school years. The Pantherette staff, which produces the school's newspaper, informs students of current events in the school as well as in the surrounding community. The reporters write editorials, columns and exciting news stories that interest students and pertain to student life. The Pantherette also accepts and replies to letters to the editor on a variety of topics. These creative outlets — the Vignette, the Panther, and the Pantherette — enable and encourage student involvement in writing and journalism.

Heather Gallagher, Stacy Touzel, Lee Norman and Tiffany Russell await Panther delivery day with anxiety and anticipation.

"I always eat cupcakes like this — how do you?" Lee Norman, Stephen Moore, and John Bourland see who can eat a cupcake the fastest.

Deadlines. The Staff thrived on this word. Once a date had been set, we began working with the pages we were assigned. First we set a time to take pictures and plead with photographers to give up their Friday night plans to take our pictures. We also had to plan our pages and draw a unique layout. Along with the layout, we wrote copy about the subject matter of our double-page spreads. When the photographers emerged from the dark room with our prints, the production of pages went into action. Once the editors approved our layout, copy, and pictures, we drew our roughdraft layout on a quad-pak. Cropping pictures, writing captions, counting copy, calculating picas, typing and correcting, retyping and correcting added a final touch to a completed page. The editors proofed the pages once more, and the sponsor signed them, giving his approval for the pages to be sent to the printer. Last, but not least, when all the pages were in, we partied. Being the only ones in the school who knew the cover design, theme, and entire contents of our memory book, we soared through the rest of the year with pride.

"Just one more french fry and I will finish my pages!" Heather Gallagher makes promises.

SPORTS

unveiling success

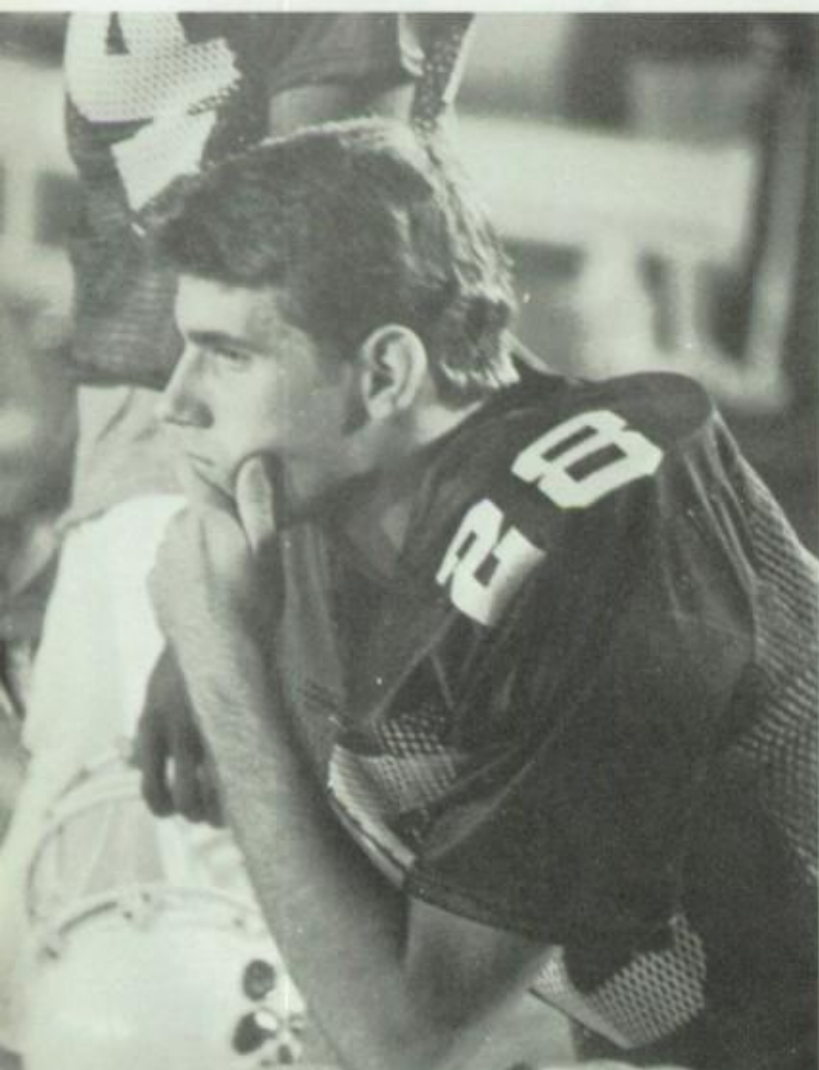

Panthers exhibit endurance

The game looked like a well organized war. "The game" was football. At the line of scrimmage, the players took their positions and waited anxiously for the ball to be hiked. Sweat and dirt trickled off their foreheads. Then the clashing of helmets sounded, along with the maddening clamor and growls of the players trying to get that all important pigskin.

Few understand what hard work and physical strength go into playing the game of football. The Panthers practiced for hours every day, simply for that exhausting two hour game they played once a week. These were also the games that set a reputation for the team and showed how good they were. It wasn't up to the fans or coaches to determine whether a player was a winner. It was up to the player himself. If he thought he was a winner then he would prove it on the field. But whether the team ended up winners or losers, the effort had always been there. The Panthers proved their willingness to win when they placed fourth in the district.

It must be dinner time. The Panther team breaks through the banner before a game.

Players Have Class and Style

Marvin Richardson blasts through the line as Keith Losoya blocks his man.

"If it's worth doing, it's worth doing well." Such were the words of coach and friend, John Somsy. As the Panthers anxiously awaited the start of the season, high hopes surrounded the eager team. The attitude of both the coaches and players was one of great expectations and friendly destruction. It all added up. "The success Quotient," coach said, "is discipline plus persistence equals success. It's an even kill. The players knew there was no 'I' in team; therefore, no one blamed anyone else for mistakes. The team strived for one particular goal, success."

The team showed a persistence for the game. They came back from a lost season and almost made the play-offs. Somsy said to his players, "The game is played so one can be the best he can be. Dream big dreams and discipline yourself to achieve those dreams. Persist when most would not." Coach . . . two times.

Did someone say destruction? Yes, it's the Panther's offensive line.

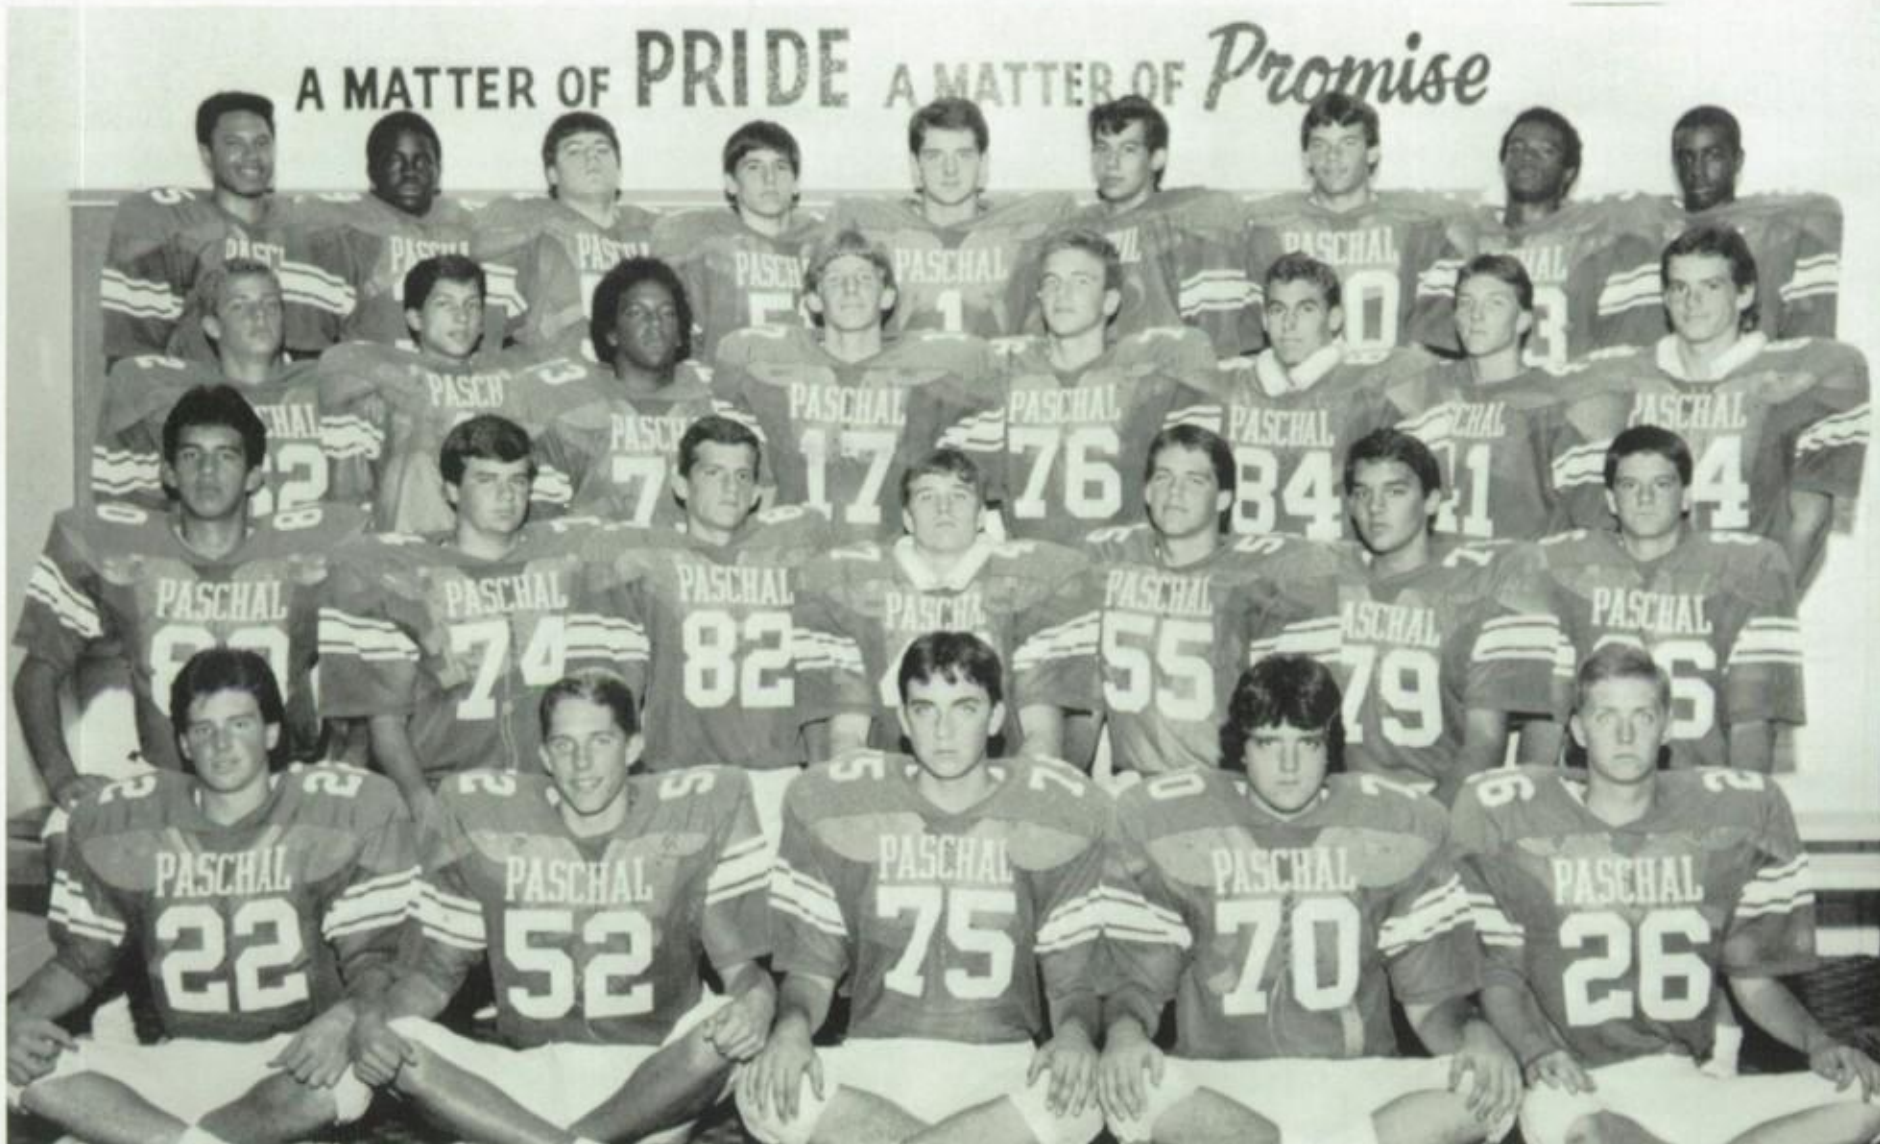

One For All And All For One

As the Junior Varsity team ran on to the field, many thoughts ran through their heads. "Will we win or lose?" Each team member became one as a pep-talker united the athletes by expressing the mutual hopes of victory of the entire team. "Tonight we're a team and that's what counts. Win or lose we'll keep on trying; game after game after game. We might not be the best of friends at school or on the weekends but we're like brothers on the field. The coach is like our father who gives us advice and support. We are united as one and work like a team. And that's what truly matters."

When the year's games were completed, the Paschal Junior Varsity team had a 2-7 tally. But the playing of the game is as important as the victory. Our Junior Varsity team worked long and hard to meet their opponents and have proved that sportsmanship and teamwork are always a winning combination.

Freshman Football Shows Perseverance

The boys Freshman Football team showed great potential this year with a game record of one victory and two losses. Halfway through the season, the team merged with the J.V. team and finished the season on the J.V. schedule. The coaches felt the team had few players, but it had a big heart. The players maintained a good attitude throughout the season, and the coaches were optimistic and anxious to work with these boys next year. In response to the "no-pass, no-play" legislation, Mr. Gary Ponder said, "For the time being, 'no-pass, no-play' was bad, but the coaches feel the team learned a good lesson." Despite the many drawbacks that occurred this year, the coaches eagerly awaited the new season with great expectations.

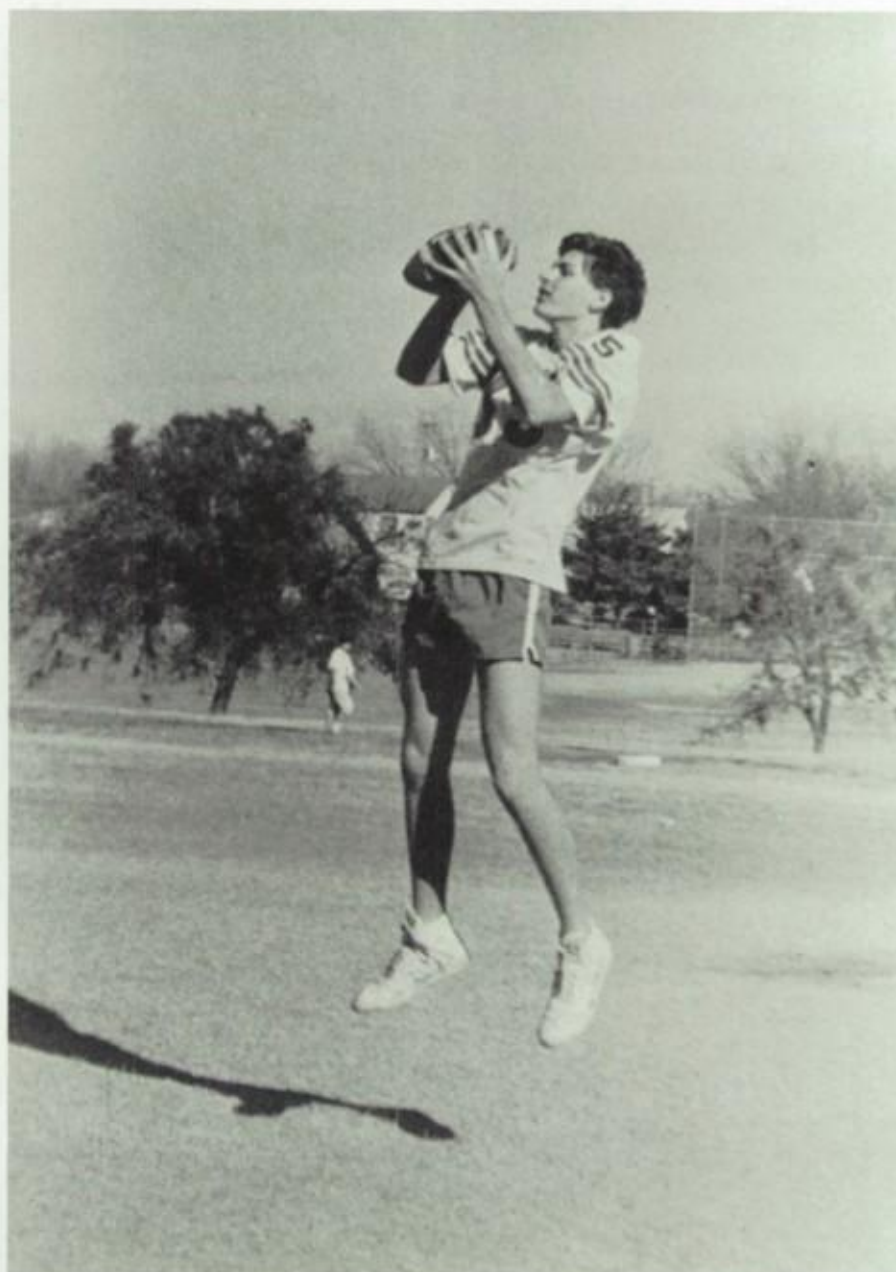

"Oh that hurts!" The team practices its tackling technique.

It's Going, It's Going, It's Gone . . .

The varsity soccer team gave new meaning to the word 'champions,' winning eleven out of nineteen games. The fighting Panthers (or those men in purple) took the bi-division title, qualifying them for the area playoffs.

This was not accomplished without hard and strenuous labor, meted out faithfully by Coach James Bretthauer. They practiced and prepared for coming games every day on the east field.

Practice consisted of a variety of maneuvering skills, such as multiple passing, team unity of play, head buffs and partner passes. This strenuous workout would last for the most part until sundown.

... Varsity Soccer Soars Into Action

I interviewed Coach Bretthauer after he taught his physics class, and he summed up a particularly strenuous season by saying simply, "I am very proud of the progress the team made through the season. Their hard work paid off for Paschal by winning the bi-district championship."

It would be impossible to list the team's star players since they are all stars in their own right. I am sure that every student, including myself, can be proud of our soccer team.

As you can see, soccer is a sport where hard work and practice go hand in hand in the making of tomorrow's sports champions, rivaling football in difficulty and skill.

J.V. Soccer Kicks Into a New Season

This year the J.V. Soccer team's practice was rewarding. Their vigorous workouts included running to Forest Park as well as extensive kicking exercises. They practiced every day after school until 4:30. They won a high percentage of their games, insuring a strong varsity team in the years to come. "I'm very proud of my boys," said Mr. Gilbert Anguiano. "They did a great job and I'm looking forward to next year." With enthusiastic coaching and enthusiastic players, how could next year be anything less than spectacular?

Members of the J.V. Purple Roster are: Jay Lohmann, Jose Rodriguez, Tim Bose, Richard Blazi, David White, Tyler Smith, Kyle Turlington, Sean Wall, Chris Yates, David McClean, Duc Le, Bobby Moore, Joey Robinson, Mark Moyle, Tony Rossing, Todd Halbert, Eric Story.

Girls Have a Challenging Season

This year's Girls' Soccer Team endured many hardships throughout the season. With only three returning players. The team lacked in experience. Captain Elisabeth Brooke said of the new players, "Although they are inexperienced, they have played hard and show great promise for next year's season."

Outstanding players this year included Elisabeth Brooke, Senior; Jennifer Cates, Freshman; and Suzanne Rekow, Freshman goalie.

Injuries are usually characteristic of the game, and this year was no exception. Freshman Tonya Cooper injured her ankle in a game against Country Day. Despite these setbacks, the girls felt the season was well worth their while because lasting friendships were formed.

Varsity Is Primed for a Winning Season

Tension was high at the field the day
The Paschal Varsity baseball team
First set out to play.

They had worked weeks for this night,
And each played with all his might.
The time had come to strut their stuff,
To show the schools they'd had enough.
Seniors wanted to leave their mark;
Underclassmen wanted to make a start;
Panthers would set the game on fire.
The opposing team always frowned
When Coach put Robbie on the mound.
Richard settled himself behind a batter
And pretended that it all didn't matter.
The ump said, "Strike 3, you're out!"
And shortstop Sean let out a loud shout.
The next batter never made it to first,
And baseman David had to beat the worst.
Second baseman Gregg Bell
Performed exceedingly well.
But when a rare runner did get past,
Larry, third baseman, made him the last.
Alex pitched as a change of pace,
And Alan took place at second base.
The fourth inning soon came to a close,
And we heard the opposition's woes.

"It's not my fault there's no wind!" Lee Scarborough coaxes the ball to his glove.

"Pick a hand, any hand." Alex Cox does tricks with the ball.

"What goes up must come down." Terry Wright waits patiently for his ball.

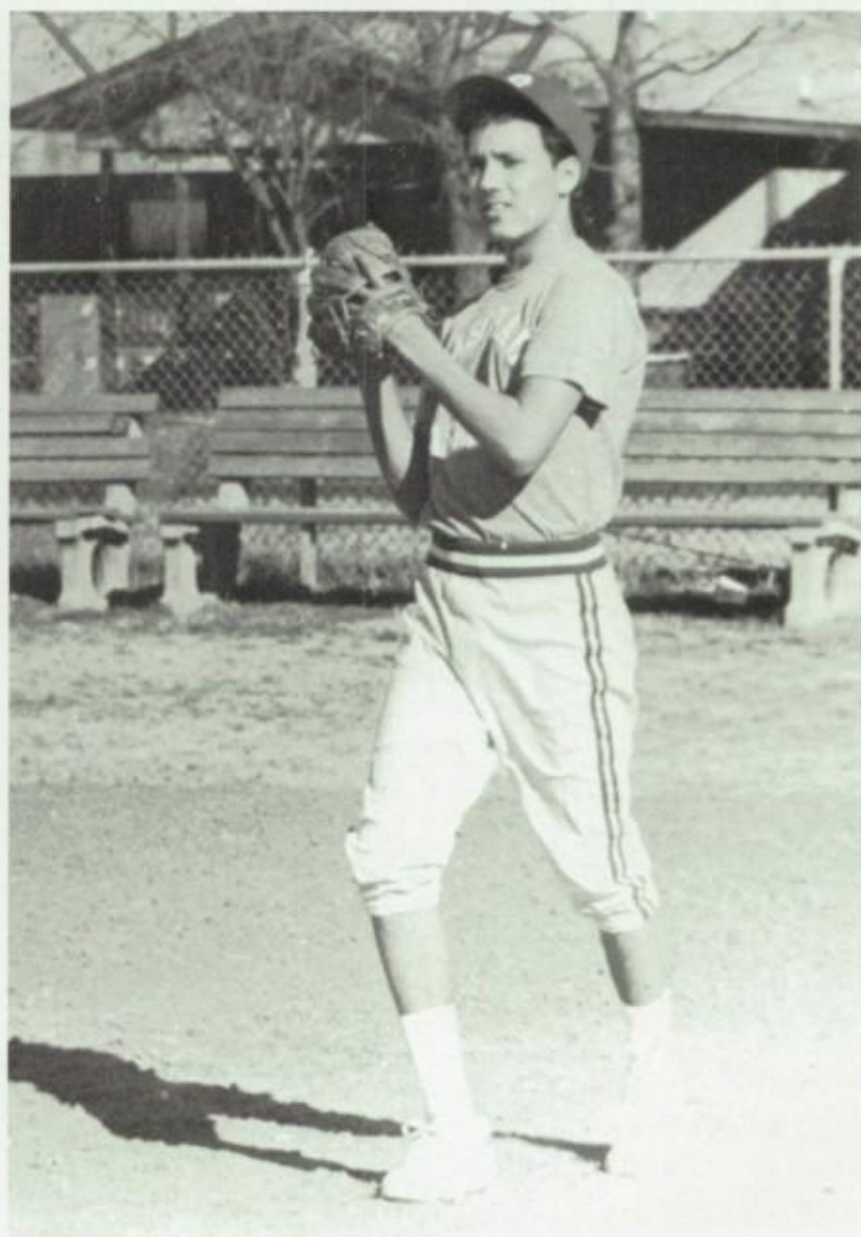

"Come on, you can do it." Homer Flores prays for a good catch.

"Where are my shades?" Larry Chenault practices on fly balls.

Sean Ray captures a sneaky ground ball.

Steve Quevedo prepares to throw.

Varsity Players Cover All Their Bases

At the top of the fifth inning
The Panthers were just beginning.
The coach gave out the word
To relieve the baseman at third.
Layne eagerly took his place.
And securely covered his base.
The batters completed a good round,
And the team seemed playoff-bound.
Homer was hoping to fulfill his name
To insure his standing for the game.
Sprinting around bases flew Gabe,
Who was trying to impress the babes.
Now it was the rival's turn at bat;
Outfield was ready in 2 seconds flat.
As the ball flew through the air,
Joey had no time to spare.
The next ball hit near the mound
And was quickly passed all around.
Terry executed a double play
With Lee at first base;
They made that batter pay.
Larry Chenault did his part
In the outfield, from the very start.
Steve Quevedo, last but not least,
Did his best to disrupt the peace.
The end of the game did finally come,
The Panthers, always, as number one.

"This ball is hot." Layne Kasper fans the ball into his glove.

Robert Cisneros winds-up for a pitch.

Richard Williams signals the pitcher as Gregg Bell takes a practice swing.

Gabe Harman catches a ball to make a third out.

"That's right, I'm bad!" Larry Mullins follows through with his toss.

"You want me to throw the ball now?" asks Joey Krajca.

Practice Makes Perfect for J.V. Baseball

"Baseball is not as easy as you think," said Micheal Peck, a JV baseball player. Practices, including hitting, catching drills, started at 2:00 p.m. and ran until 4:30. Coach Ponder began practice by standing on home plate and hitting fly balls to the outfield. The players caught the ball and threw it back, to improve the players' catching. They, in turn, will get a chance to hit the ball. After strenuous exercises they circled the field twice. With this kind of workout the team played to its best ability.

Paul Perez makes the catch in center field.

Holly Hendrix returns the ball to the batter.

Danny Trevino hurls the ball to home plate.

Tim Valleau throws a curve ball to the awaiting pitcher.

Andy Johnson picks up a ground ball to make an out.

Chris Gunzel walks out to the practice field.

Freshman Baseball Shows Great Promise

The freshman baseball team showed much promise this year. It was their first year at Paschal, and a tough one. Once they joined the JV team, freshmen proved they could perform as well as their elders. Each player worked hard after school running around the track, hitting fly balls and catching. Practice lasted about an hour each day. The workout consisted of throwing the ball at each other and sharpening their catching skills. "If you practice long enough on catching, it will come to you subconsciously," said Greg Smith. With this kind of practice the future looks bright.

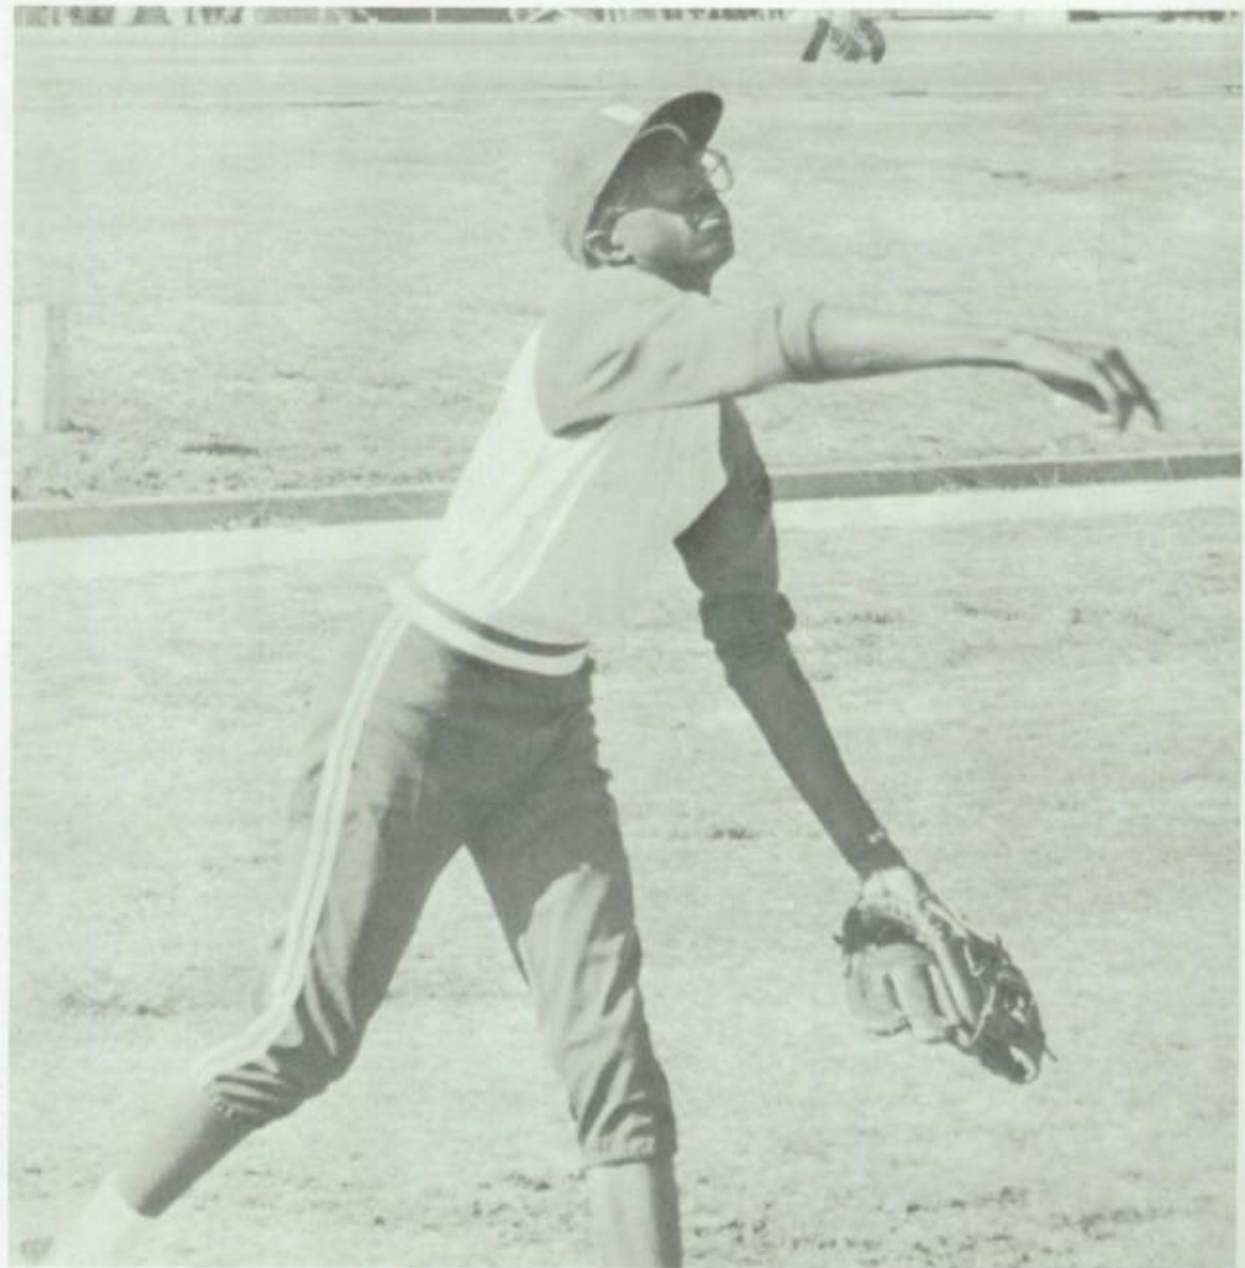

Robert Cornelius awaits the ball.

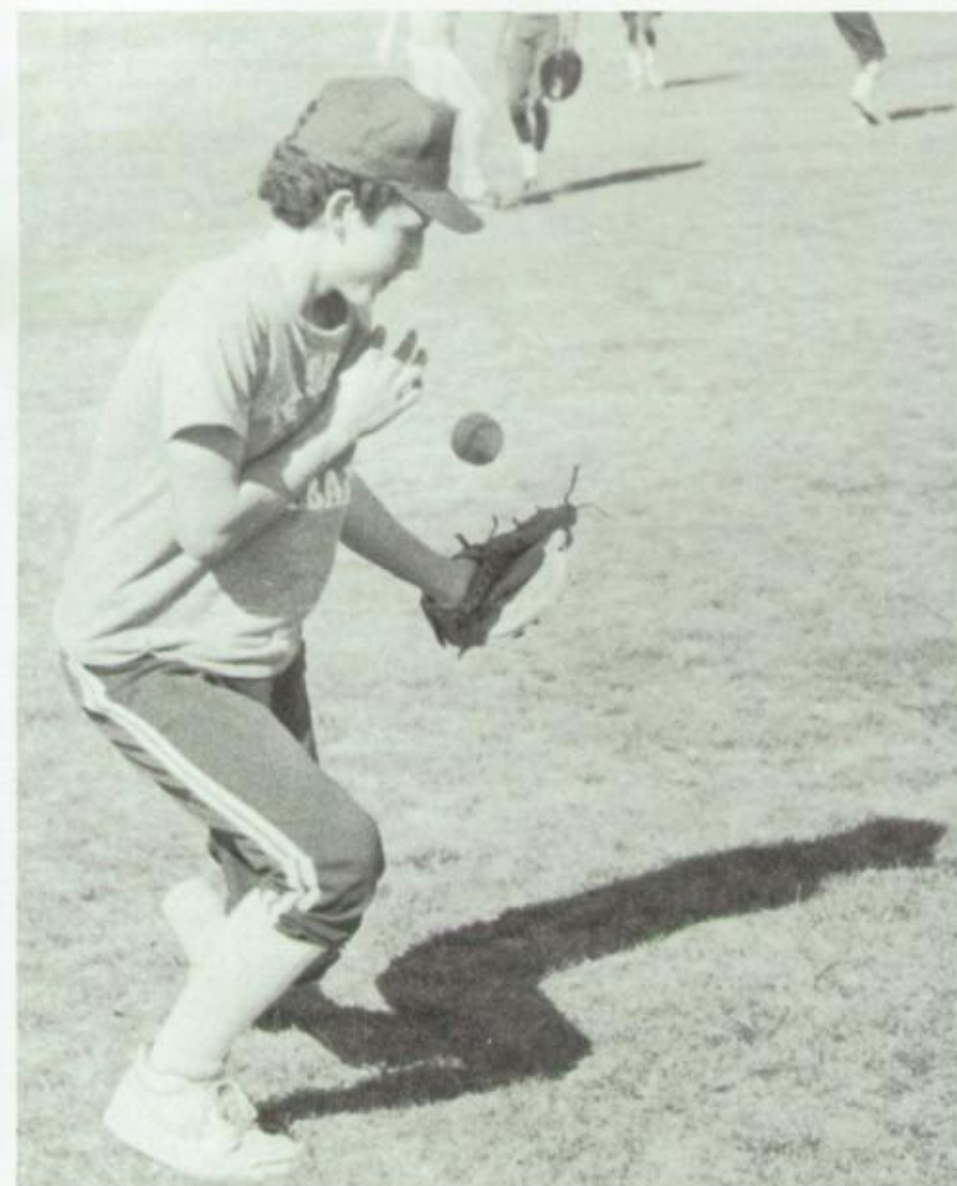

Johnny Cruz hurls the ball to homeplate.

Varsity B-Ball Bounces High

Right before the last game of the season, the boys' varsity basketball team found themselves reminiscing about the season. They remembered last summer when all they could do was wait until the season started. Now all they could think of was how they wanted the season to never end.

They sat and contemplated the upcoming game. This game was it. Could they make their school proud of them? Each team member saw a different vision in his head. One saw himself bringing the ball down the court with 10 seconds left, down by one. He would move in for a slam dunk to win the game. Another saw the game tied, a point was all they needed. A foul was made and a free throw was granted. With few seconds left on the clock he shot the ball and scored, bringing his team to a victory.

Coach Dansby brought the boys out of their dream. "Keep one thing in mind, guys. We are going out there to be a team, to work as a team, and to win as a team." As they headed toward the court, they thought about the coach's words. They soon burst onto the court to warm-up. The crowd cheered, and the Panthers knew they would always make their school proud of them.

Swoosh! The Panthers score a goal.

Donnell Browning (15) and Bobby Madkins try to block the opposing team.

Number 15 snatches the ball away from a Nolan player.

Paschal players run to congratulate their team members.

Frank Bailey (23) dribbles toward another victory.

Boys JV Basketball Rises to New Heights

Basketball is a game played with a large round leather ball by two teams of five players each. The players try to toss the ball through a ring into a net shaped like a basket. Paschal's 1985-86 Boys Junior Varsity Basketball team portrayed this definition quite adequately. Mr. Chuck Lincoln, the team's coach, believed that the team started out slightly weak, but had grown stronger throughout the season. Overall, the team showed its pride through its hard work and determination. As for the Freshman Boys Basketball team, the no-pass no-play legislation hit hard and prevented it from participating.

Number 52, Tyrone Carpenter, attempts to capture the ball for his team.

"Just be cool." The team agrees on strategies before the big game.

Anthony Gary receives the pass from another teammate.

J.V. Basketball Takes the Court Again

Eugene Miller puts a move on his opponent.

A tangle of arms reaches for the rebound.

Lawrence Tony buckets one up for Paschal.

The team rallies up before a game.

Anthony Hutcherson and Anthony Gay quickly drive for another two points for Paschal.

"Heads up," Paschal hoops up another two points for the Paschal's J.V. Basketball team.

Varsity Girls Pass, Dribble and Dunk to Victory

"Let's get the rebound Paschal," yelled an anxious fan from the stands. That's exactly what the varsity girls team did. The girls aimed for first place. Their faces and their actions illustrated their fervent ambition.

Under the direction of Coach Herb Stephens and the help of manager Georgette Lopez-Aguado the team entered into their games with a winning attitude. No matter what the outcome the team and Coach gained more confidence with each game. This confidence led them to victory after victory. The season of 1985-86 brought Paschal a team to be proud of.

"Let's hear it for the Coach." Herb Stephens instructs his team.

Pam Price sizes up the shot for an extra point.

Margie Taylor hustles downcourt.

Preparing to do throw-in after the ball has gone off court, Beth Moore checks out her best chances.

Kim Brown goes for 2 points.

"Was that good!" Beth Moore sinks a basket.

"How can I get this in the basket without running too far?" wonders Margie Taylor.

Pressures Of Wanting To Be The Best

Dribbling, passing, and shooting is exactly what these girls do when they get down to their game of basketball. As the girls run down the court they are all hoping the same thing, "We really want to make the next point." As the crowd looks down on the court it can see how the Paschal's Girls Basketball team puts forth all its effort to bring its team to victory. Winning is what counts.

Varsity Boys Tee Off to Par

Pecan Valley was the site of the Varsity boys' golf practices this year. Each Monday, Wednesday, and Friday the boys met there for an afternoon of fun-filled practice. Most of the time, the team practiced with other schools for competitive experience, but, sometimes they competed against each other for team positions.

The team agreed with saying "practice makes perfect." But they also agreed that there were other factors to consider in a good golf game: the wind and luck.

Cass Jenkins looks down the course and thinks about his shot.

Jerry Marshall carefully tees off at Pecan Valley.

Chris Flores tries to put a curse on the ball before he tees off.

JV Drives for Excellence

"Cold weather is just around the corner guys. Better get ready for it," announced Mr. Herb Stephens, coach, as a sudden wind whipped the covers off the guys' golf clubs. The team was preparing to play in an upcoming golf tournament.

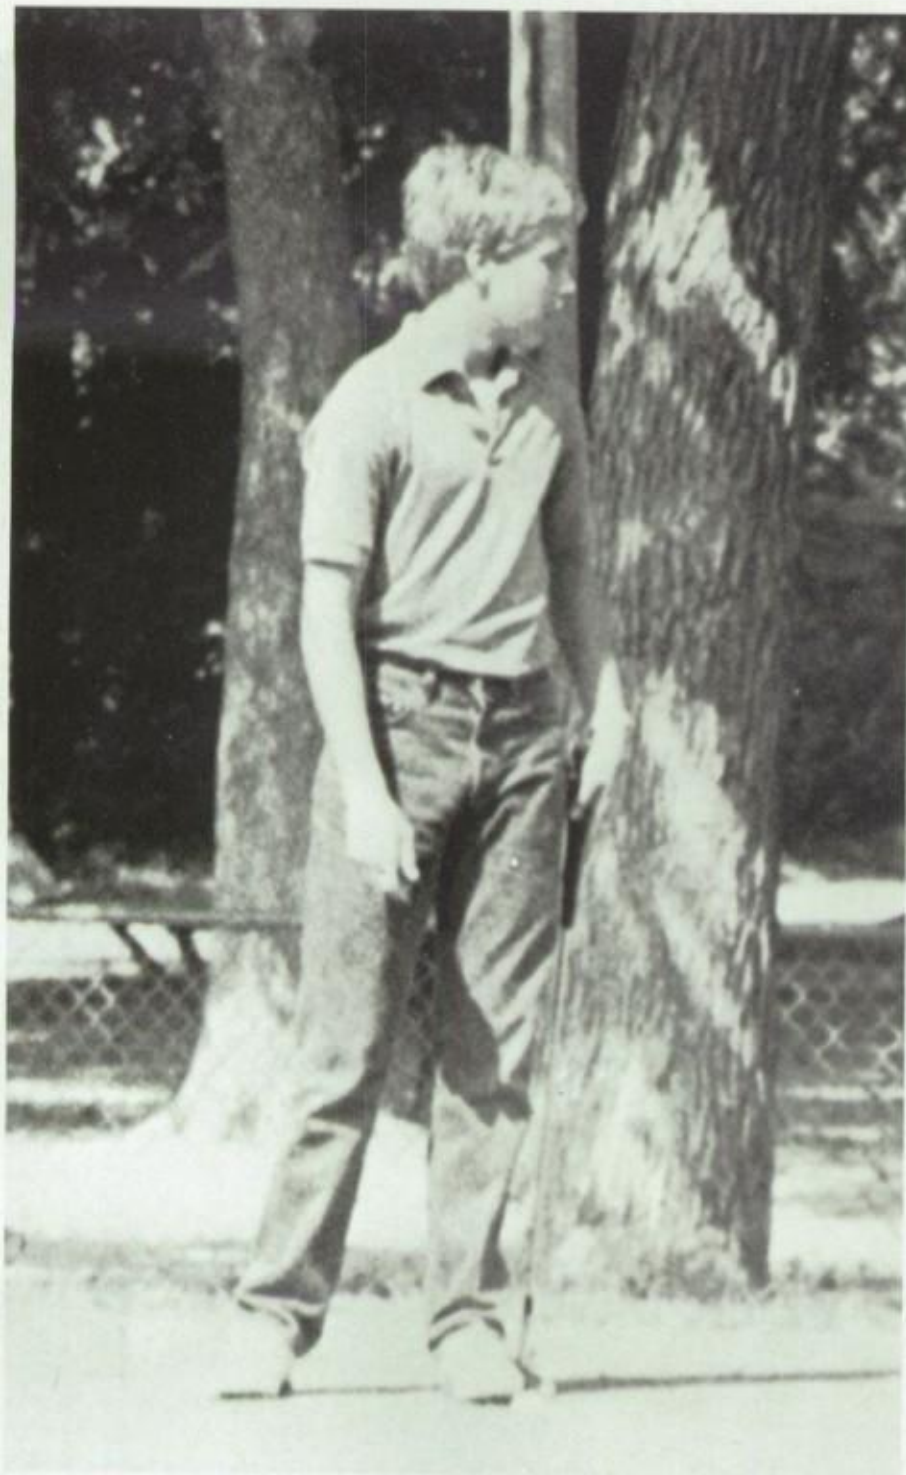

It was time for Judd Jenkins to tee off. The coach gave a few pointers and words of encouragement. The tee box suddenly became silent, Whoosh . . . "good swing," said the coach. Judd felt it would have gone farther if it were not for the strong wind. "The wind is just one handicap in the game of golf. Go on down and play a good game," urged the coach. It looked like a great start for the JV golf team.

"Did mom take them out to clean them again?" Tim Prater looks for his tees.

Hole after hole they walked until it seemed like they had been there for hours. Pecan Valley would never be the same after a match with these girls.

Daily, the girls' golf team makes the trip to Pecan Valley Golf Course for an afternoon of brisk practicing. Through rain, snow, the hottest summer sun and the roughest winter cold, these girls bear it all hole after hole. Nothing is too rough for these girls. Their minds may be elsewhere, but their hearts will always be on the course, striving to continue the excellence of good ole P.H.S.

Cherise Gibson, Ann Werner, Wendy Lawson, and Angela Baker take a breather.

"Where's the ball?" asks Carole Dubose.

During the 1985 season, varsity volleyball embodied the meaning of true team effort. Each team member put forth all her energy to succeed in this sport. Dedication to long practices and hard workouts proved each player's will to win. Even after losses, girls volleyball reunited and overcame past defeats to win the next game. Determination to propel the ball across the net, and the energy to endure an hour long game were two admirable characteristics of the girls varsity team. Paschal volleyball fans appreciated the perseverance which carried the team throughout the season.

The Junior Varsity Volleyball team made some great accomplishments this year. The team placed second at the Carter Tournament and won consolation at the Coaches' Tournament. In addition to these victories, the team held the title of District Co-Champions. Coach Jane Blaylock credited the results of the team's wins not to individual effort, but to team cohesiveness. As each girl played her best, the team was strengthened in attitude and physical skill. This winning combination led the team to victory.

Girls Ace the Season

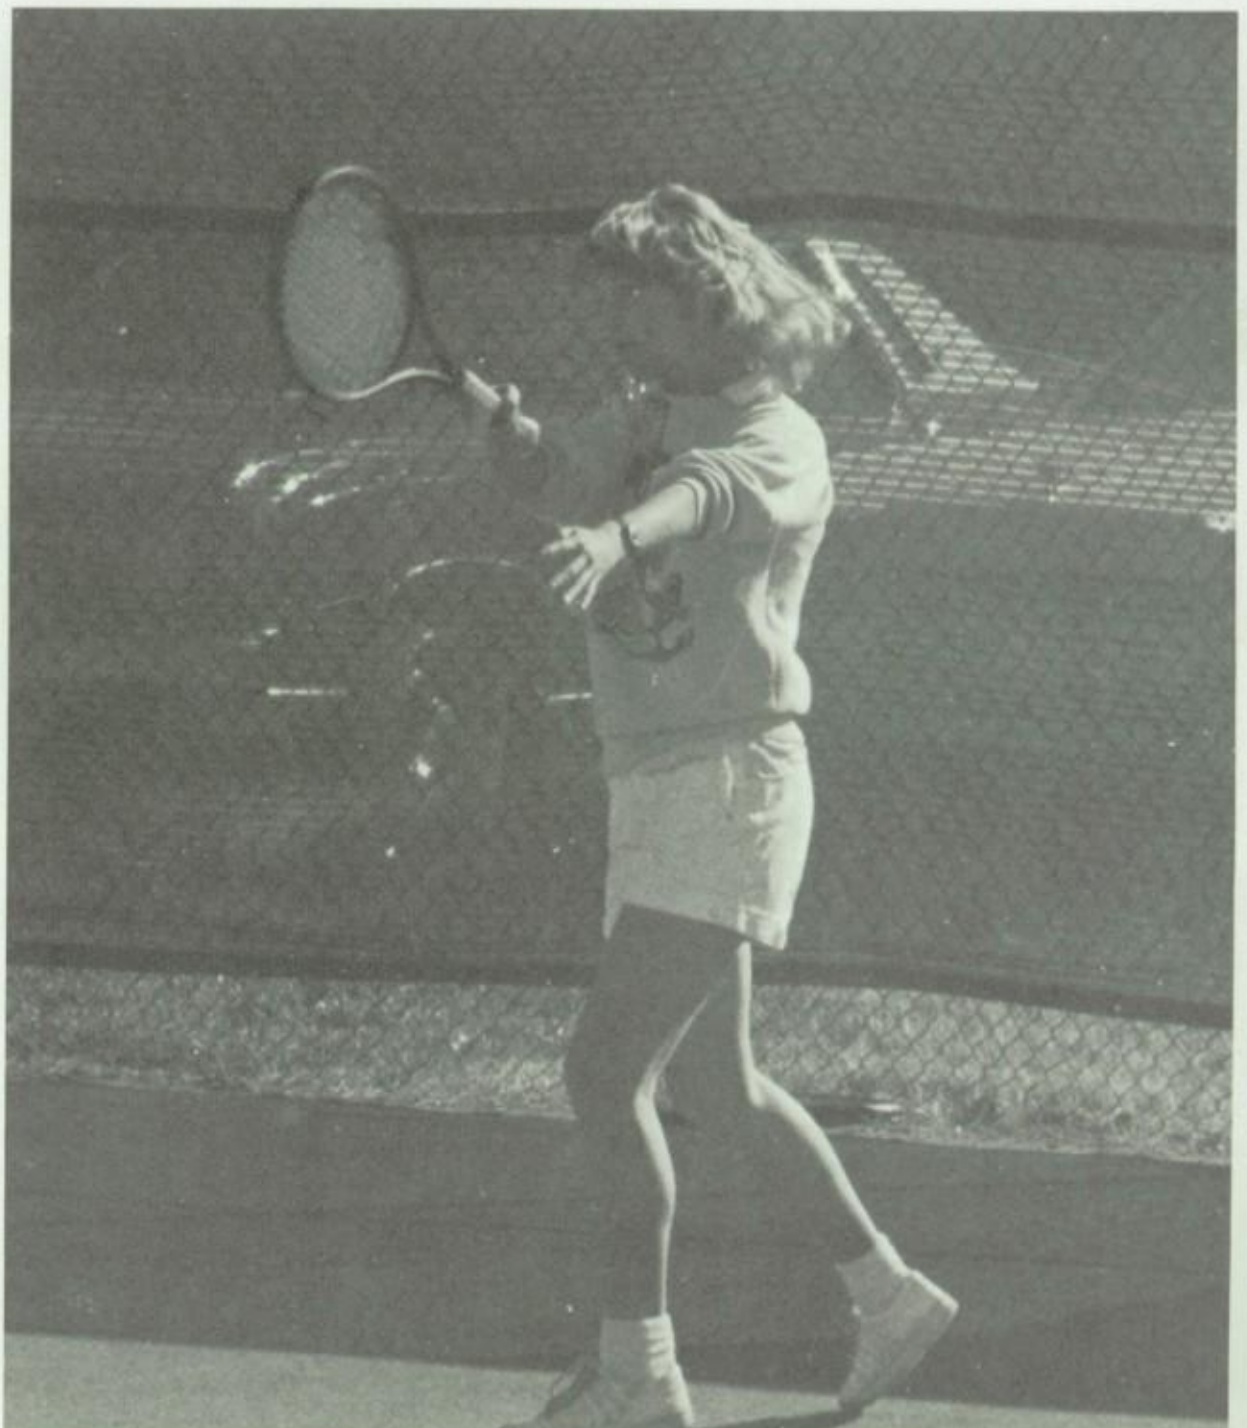

As the tennis ball flew across the court, Shelly knew her talents would prevail. Although she had doubted her ability, tedious hours of practice reassured her that she could defeat her opponent. After school, she practiced singles and doubles. On weekends she would practice against the backboards. She was prepared physically, but mentally she needed a boost. She was going to have to psych herself up for the match. So, she told herself she could do it. Upon viewing her opponent across the net, she knew the match would be a bitter struggle. She gritted her teeth, recalled her coach's advice, and shook her opponent's hand with confidence. Her hard work paid off because she was able to leave the court with a sense of accomplishment and triumph.

Swimmers Paddle for Action

6:45 a.m. workouts; out of town meets; 2 mile sprints; 30 minutes of butterfly stroke . . . These are just a few of the things faced by P.H.S. swimmers. They train and prepare daily, with strenuous workouts so they will be in the best shape possible for their upcoming meets. They have to work hard to keep in shape and keep their muscles strong. It will take a quality team to keep up the tradition of beating Arlington Heights in the annual archrival meet. But the spirit of this team is always high and up to the last stroke, P.H.S. will always come out of the water on top!

Gymnasts Tumble Into Perfection

The gymnastic team started off the new year with a new coach. Mary Ellen Langley took her first teaching job here at Paschal. Miss Langley's theory for the gymnast was to work them out for a whole year, to prepare them for the difficult meets they would be attending in the upcoming year. The team practiced daily, learning new routines on the floor, as well as on the beam and bars. The girls were extra excited to know how ready they were for the year to come and they showed it by tumbling into perfection.

Varsity Performs With Vitality

"Fire cracker, fire cracker, boom boom boom!" screamed the cheerleaders. Cheerleaders might have screamed this but they weren't the Paschal Varsity Cheerleading squad. The cheers and chants that were performed by this squad were difficult, dare devil, up to beat cheers and chants. The cheerleaders had the opportunity to attend the National Cheerleading Association summer camp at SMU's campus. For a week the squad was hard at work learning how to build pyramids taller than skyscrapers and cheers that left the spectators speechless. At camp the ten girls and three boys were awarded one of the top twenty squads and received excellent ribbons every night they competed. The squad also received three spirit sticks out the four nights they were given out.

At both football and basketball games the cheerleaders not only executed perfect pyramids but they proved to be dynamic dancers too, when they wiggled to the beat of "Wham Rap."

The rumor many people think of cheerleaders is that they are a bunch of girls trying to look cute and priss around. But this year's Varsity squad proved to be fierce, fighting, dedicated, talented, spirited, and most of all true panthers. They say that behind every student there is a panther, and when it comes to the 1985-86 cheerleaders it couldn't be a truer fact.

J.V. Shows Dedication and Spirit

Many people do not realize the hard work that goes into being a cheerleader. As soon as the girls are selected, they begin practicing for competitive cheerleading camp. At camp, the girls live in dorms and learn cheers. At night they compete with squads from other schools for ribbons. This year's Junior Varsity squad went to Texas Christian University's camp and won three superior ribbons and one excellent ribbon. The squad also was awarded a spirit stick which signifies spirit, teamwork, enthusiasm, and skill in cheerleading.

When the school year began, the girls found they had to adjust to many changes. One adjustment was the cancellation of in-school pep-rallies. This was a disappointment for the squad but their love for cheerleading and for sports lifted their enthusiasm. Sophomore cheerleader Christie Sprinkle said, "We get so wrapped-up in the games that cheering doesn't even seem like work. We're just supporting our team." This dedication and spirit should take these girls far in whatever they do.

Homecoming Court Reigns

Homecoming Queen was the thing.
To these six girls the name
Had a ring.
Once the court was announced,
The girls bounced and bounced.
Until that day would arrive,
Until that day, just to stay alive
They had to smile and be polite.
They wouldn't know until that night.
Would it be Stacy, or Sonja or
Holly Foard,
With Michelle, Lisa, and Shannon
They wouldn't get bored.
To get prepared for that night,
Everything had to be just right.
My hair, my clothes, the rain
They screamed.
There was not enough hours in the Day, it seemed,
To be at Farrington Field
Dressed apropos.
For this was the night we all
Would know.
Paschal's '85 Homecoming Queen,
All Six Girls were easily seen.
The announcer said with a
Great deal of sound
Would HOLLY FOARD step forward and be crowned?

Mr. Foard escorts his daughter.

The 1985 Homecoming Queen, Holly Foard.

The 1985 Homecoming Court — Front Row: Sonja Johnson, Stacy Touzel, and Michelle Reaves. Back Row: Shannon Lindsey, and Lisa Rambo.

Sonja Johnson and Shannon Lindsey are escorted by their favorite guy.

Michelle Reaves and Stacy Touzel are presented to the crowd.

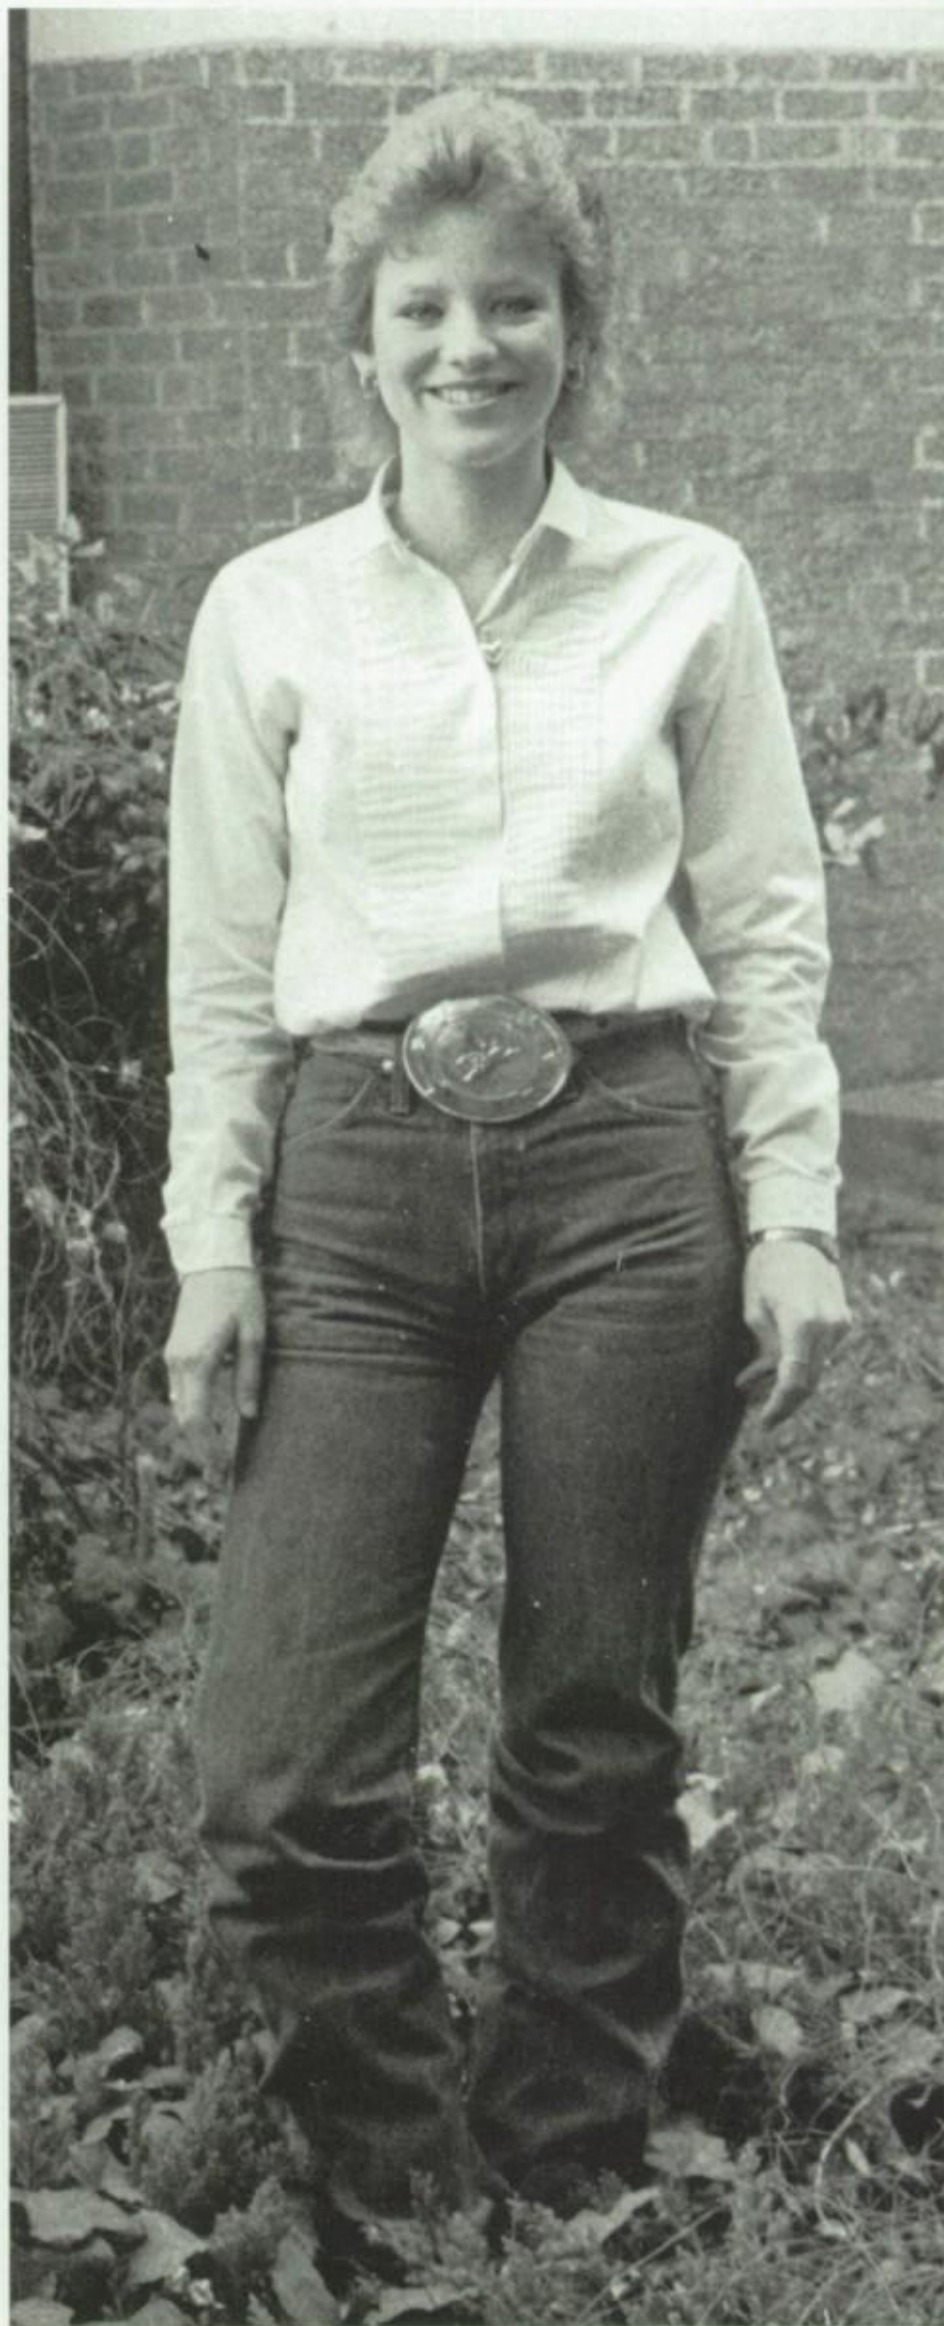

Lisa Rambo receives her bouquet.

masking the memories

Pride. No longer a complex word, but one we can benefit from every day:

"Gag me with a spoon!" Colin Christian does his impression of a valley girl.

"Mmm, mmm good." Jeff Williams looks for his lunch in the most logical place.

"Look at the legs on her!" Anthoni Hanson and Doug Garnett ogle at a beautiful girl in the hall.

"First you take the derivative, then set it equal to zero, then ... " Alan Duvall attempts to explain his calculus homework.

"Hey John! I didn't know you kept fish in here!" John Giordano and Gary Lewis prepare for summer fun by cleaning the Giordanos' pool.

"What? Me worry?" says David Arnn.

Solomon Surles works diligently at the computer.

The Panther photographer catches David Stanley, Sylvia Brown and Elisabeth Brooke planning a rendezvous in the parking lot.

pride in our schoolwork,
pride in our community,
pride in ourselves.

We, the Panther
Staff of 1986 urge you — challenge you —
to face the future
with pride,

Mark Twain, disguised as Todd Wilson, pays a visit to an AP English class

Heather Gallagher and Carrie Gibbs spend a sunny Spring day in the park

Mrs. Jan Carter helps senior Melanie Smith analyze a British poem

Christoph Menefee, Phuc Tran, Bassam Ghaddar, Sonia Martinez and Kimberly Cook study independently in English

"These invisible wings are great!" Alan Norman displays his superior hacky-sack talents.

"Hey! Lemme have some more of that popcorn!" Kristine Eckert and Kristen Strange catch a flick together.

The lockers are empty, the rooms are silent. R. L. Paschal High School is closed until September.

and let the Panther in you loose.

Robbie Wesley and Stephanie Perkins daydream about the prom dress they are going to make.

AUTOGRAPH

"Let me help you with your seat belt." Tiffany Russell and John Bourland obey the new law.

Patrick Perkins, John Nelson, Maike Michielson and Ken Neal get a glimpse of Paschal.

Tiffany Russell tells Mr. Larry Barnes what she thinks of his new tie.

"Yes, I'm paying attention," says John Bourland, doodling on a piece of paper.

"Wow Dude!" says John Anderson after he sees his final test.

Diana Soria does last minute cramming for an exam.
